GERMANS YIELD INITIATIVE ON WESTERN FRONT

Prince Rupprecht Trying to Muss Haig's New Stroke That Is Now in Full Preparation.

ALL GERMAN ATTACKS ARE REPULSED

(By the Associated Press.)

Although the Berlin military writers are admitting that the Germans can hardly regain the initiative on the western front the German high command is evidently doing its utmost to keep the British from making the most of their advantage in Flanders.

Apparently dreading the effect of the next British stroke, Crown Prince Rupprecht has been launching attack after attack upon Field Marshal Haig's troops in their advanced positions in an effort to disarrange the British plans.

Similar tactics were adopted last week on the eve of the renewed British thrust, heavy counter attacks being delivered on the evening of Sept. 25, when it became evident to the Germans that Haig was about ready to launch his drive. The record shows the effect of last week to have been futile. It is too early for the effect of the present attempt to be developed. The British commander, however, reports that the attacks themselves, five in number, were complete failures, the Germans not being able to make any appreciable impression on the British positions along the Ypres-Menin road and at the southeastern edge of Polygon wood, where the thrusts were delivered.

With the whole German line in Flanders hanging in the balance, as the military maps show, small surprise is expressed that the German command is making such desperate efforts to balk the British plans and is fighting hard for every inch of ground protecting the Lille-Ostend railway, a scant six miles beyond the present point of the advancing British wedge.

On their front in northern France the French are holding themselves in restraint at present, permitting the crown prince to hammer away at their lines in attacks which almost invariably are repulsed with heavy German losses.

Two attacks by the Germans in the Croennes sector on the Aisne front last night were repulsed. Efforts by the Germans on two occasions to recapture trenches which they had lost in the Beaumont region on the Verdun front also were unsuccessful. Despite the intensity of last night's air raid on England the officials figures show that the four groups of German airmen making their sixth attack in eight days inflicted comparatively few casualties by the bombs they dropped. LONDONERS ARE BOMB-BROKE AND TAKE NO FRIGHT

London, Oct. 2.—Londoners, despite the repeated German attempts to drop bombs upon the city, are standing the test well. Last night, when two squadrons of raiders succeeded in getting close to London and some of their number over the city, there was no panic and no untoward incident.

Immediately the coming of the raiders was signalled the people in the streets scurried for cover, while motor buses and cars drew up to the curb, where the passengers alighted quickly. Within five minutes the streets were deserted virtually and a strange silence fell over the city.

Most of the offices and shops had closed before 6 o'clock to permit their employees to reach their homes and there was only a fraction of the num-

M'ADOO IS AT THE CAPITAL

TELLS WORKERS WHY MONEY IS NEEDED

Bond Campaign is Given a Big Start in the Capital City.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 2.—W. G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, arrived here today in his speech making tour in favor of the second liberty loan. After a breakfast given in his honor by former Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks, Secretary McAdoo met the liberty loan staff of Indiana and bond salesmen and explained to them how the money obtained through the sale of bonds will be used. Mr. Fairbanks is to introduce Mr. McAdoo at the mass meeting in Tomlinson hall, to be held immediately after a parade, participated in by more than 1,800 troops from Fort Benjamin Harrison at noon.

McAdoo's Talk. "When war comes to a nation, the first essential is money," said Secretary McAdoo in his talk to the liberty loan workers. "We must keep our soldiers and sailors armed and equipped with the best that money can buy and American skill devise."

"We must constantly provide them with necessary clothing and food; we

DEATH CLAIMS LOCAL PIONEER

Michael J. Tancey, Justice of Peace 43 Years, is Dead.

CAME TO UNITED STATES IN 1857 Had Been a Resident of Fort Wayne for About Fifty-Eight Years.

ease brought on by his advanced years. Death occurred at his home, 210 Brackenridge street.

Mr. Tancey had not been feeling well for some time, but his condition did not become alarming until a few days ago.

The deceased was born December 16, 1838, at Carramore, Croghan, Roscommon county, Ireland, and came to this country in 1857, settling at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Canada. He remained there but two years, coming to Fort Wayne, where he had resided for a long period of years. His residence here was interrupted by three years spent at Park City, Utah, from 1882 to 1885.

He married Miss Ellen Fitzgerald, of this city, in 1865, and she still survives to mourn his death. In 1867 he became a bailiff and constable and served in this capacity for a period of eight years. In 1875 he became a justice of the peace and has followed this calling ever since. During the period of his absence from the city in Utah he was also elected a justice at Park City. This stretches his period of public service to forty-three years, which is no doubt a record for continuous service. He was probably the oldest justice of the peace in point of service in northern Indiana.

Surviving are the widow and five sons, all of Fort Wayne. They are: John H., Hugh P., Edward, William and Joseph L. Tancey. There are also five grandchildren, namely: Ursula L., Frank G., Lennord J., Michael E. and Gerald Tancey, all of this city.

Squire Tancey was a member of the Hibernian and the Holy Name societies. Funeral services Thursday at 8:30 at the house and at 9 o'clock from the Cathedral. Burial in the Catholic cemetery. Friends are asked to omit flowers. Auto funeral.

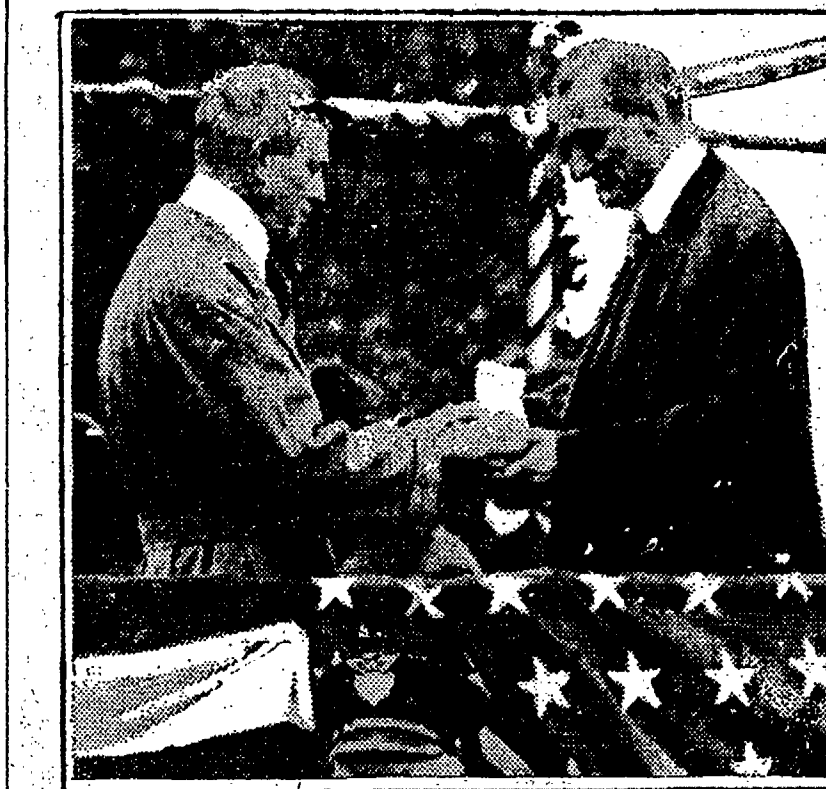

GOVERNOR GOODRICH IN NORMAL CONDITION

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 2.—Charles R. Sowder, one of Governor Goodrich's physicians, said today: "The governor's condition is absolutely normal. STRAW VOTE TO BE TAKEN

Fort Wayne Men at Camp Taylor Interested in Mayoralty Contest.

NEW UNIFORMS ARE FURNISHED THE MEN

Preparations Are Being Made to Receive the Next Forty Per Cent.

By E. F. F. (Staff Correspondent.)

Camp Taylor, Ky., Oct. 2.—Vote or no vote at the coming fall election, Fort Wayne men in training at Camp Taylor are going to have the privilege of voting anyway. A straw vote on the candidate for mayor of Fort Wayne are to be taken this week.

Although busy at all times much of the spare time, outside the discussion of the war is spent in conversing on the Fort Wayne election, its outcome and the possible successful candidates. Much interest is manifested in the mayoralty race and for this reason a straw vote has been suggested and accepted as a good plan.

All the Fort Wayne men in training here were fitted out with uniforms Saturday night. Sunday was spent in getting accustomed to the new outfits and the biggest complaint was that the breeches lacked hip pockets. Many of the new recruits had a difficult time in determining which was the right and left legging.

Preparations are being made to receive the next forty per cent of the quota who are scheduled to arrive at camp some time Wednesday evening. Camp Life Agreeable.

With but one or two exceptions, Fort Wayne men are pleased with Camp Taylor and are enjoying the life of a soldier more than they had ever anticipated. Several stated that they would rather be here than back home working on the old job. Others state that they feel much better than they had for the past five or six years. Regularity of hours is believed to be instrumental in the health of the men. Thus far not a single man's name from Fort Wayne has appeared on the sick report from the Third regimental infirmary.

Mess Fund Nucleus.

All three companies of this battalion, whose members hail from Fort Wayne are particularly anxious to receive donations for a mess fund. A nucleus is now in existence through the generosity of Max Weintritt, of Fort Wayne, whose liberal donation was received this week. All Fort Wayne young men were enraged over an article which appeared in another Fort Wayne newspaper which stated that the companies of the national army did not need a company mess fund. The article in itself was misleading and the men here at the camp regard it as a piece of spite work. An officer stated that he had heard no swearing or cursing in the Fort Wayne companies until that article was read to all.

Happy Recipients. Last week all the Fort Wayne men were elated over a gift which was presented to them by Dr. Maurice Rosenthal, of Fort Wayne. Dr. Rosenthal sent out one package of Fatima cigarettes to every Fort Wayne man in camp. All the men appreciated the

OFFICIALS OF THE TREASURY ELATED

Returns Pouring in from All Parts Indicate Fine Interest.

Washington, Oct. 2.—Treasury officials today were elated at the returns that are pouring in from all parts of the country that the appeal to raise three billion dollars for the second Liberty Loan is meeting with an enthusiastic response from the public.

Although reports from all large cities make it appear that the public welcomes the opportunity to assist the government in the present emergency, officials recognize that only a sustained, intensive drive can make the campaign a success.

It has been estimated that the volume of subscriptions must approximate $125,000,000 a day in order to attain the minimum figure of three billion dollars. The government has utilized every practical means of bringing before the people the necessity of floating the new loans. Trained speakers will address theater audiences, display advertising will greet the public eye in newspapers and on bill boards and various civic organizations will conduct a personal canvass of possible subscribers.

COAL PRICES IN NEW YORK TO BE ABOUT AS USUAL

New York, Oct. 2.—Coal which has been retailing in New York for several months at $8 and $9 a ton, will not undergo any great change in price by the ruling of Fuel Administrator Garfield, according to Arthur F. Rice, commissioner of the New York Coal Merchants' association. "It seems to us at first sight," he said, "that the method announced for fixing the retail prices of coal will keep prices at about their present level, but it will take further study to discuss the question with any certainty."

Leading coal dealers said they were perplexed over the new regulations and that the question was too complicated to be discussed at present.

GOVERNMENT GIVES OUT EXTRACTS OF HEYWOOD LETTERS

Damaging Facts Are Shown in Possession of the Federal Department of Justice Against Leader.

SEARCHING FOR I. W. W. MEN IN ARMY

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Search for alleged Industrial Workers of the World named in indictments returned here last Friday was made today in various army cantonments where, it is learned, a number of the men sought national service.

Officials here attach significance to the presence of several of the indicted men in the cantonments, all of whom are said to have gone into service without claiming exemption.

One of the charges made in the indictment is "the discovery of certain efforts of the I. W. W. to create among the registered men a feeling of disloyalty and insubordination."

Some of the evidence used by the federal grand jury in obtaining true bills given out by the federal authorities shows that it was contained, principally in letters and pamphlets, thousands of which were distributed over the country. From a book sent by William D. Heywood, secretary-treasurer, to Duluth, Minn., to be translated into Finnish, the following was taken: "We are going to take over the industries some day for three very good reasons: 'Because we need them, because we want them and because we have the power to get them. Whether we are ethically justified or not is not our concern.'"

A letter from James Rowan, sent from Seattle, Wash., under date of August 2, to Heywood, says: "We have the good will of the German people here and we feel that they are in sympathy with our cause. We do not call them Germans, however, but refer to them the same as others, the fellow workers."

"We are going to carry our points if we have to stop every industry on the Pacific coast. We did not declare war and we have not consented to the workman giving up his liberty and being drafted."

Another excerpt from the book sent by Heywood to Duluth said: "Is a strike contemplated by the most indispensable workers—those of the alimentary trades? a quart of kerosene or other greasy and malodorous matter, poured or smeared on the level of an oven, and welcome the scabs and scabby soldiers to come and bake the bread."

"The bread will be uneatable because the stones will give the bread for at least a month the foul odor of the substance they have absorbed. Result, a useless oven."

The Heywood book suggests as a means to paralyze railroads: "It would be well to choose those workers among the most skillful and experienced who would by a single stroke disable and render useless for some days the materials necessary for the regular performance of the service and the movement of trains."

Heywood and others are held liable for publication in the newspaper Solidarity last August: "The I. W. W. is more than a labor organization. It is a revolutionary union. We have shown the world how to go to jail in huge numbers, exasperate the taxpayers, and block the machinery of justice."

"The I. W. W. is fighting for himself. Self-preservation, like the copper trust, knows no law."

Washington, D. Official dispatches received here from Rome today say the second phase of the great battle is about to open.

FIREMAN FALLS FROM LADDER

Frank Miller is Seriously Hurt in Fire at the Bowser Plant.

FOUR OF HIS RIBS BADLY FRACTURED

Damage in Early Morning Blaze is Estimated at $2,000.

Frank Miller, 636 West Creighton avenue, for ten years a member of the No. 8 engine house crew of firemen, was badly hurt when he fell from a ladder, while battling the flames in the $2,000 blaze at the Bowser Tank works, Tuesday morning at 3:45 o'clock. Four of Miller's ribs are thought to be fractured and his side is lacerated. His side and chest are encased in a plaster cast.

The damaging blaze is thought to have started from spontaneous combustion in the heap of coal, stored on the concrete roof of the engine room at the Bowser plant. The fire was discovered by a watchman who immediately summoned city firemen. Three station companies answered the call. For more than an hour firemen

SOLDIER MAY KEEP A COW AND UNCLE SAM WILL FEED IT

Washington, Oct. 2.—Soldiers in the American army may not only keep a cow but they can feed it at government expense, provided they consume the milk, says a ruling of the judge advocate general. TWO BARNS ARE BURNED

Stock and Implements Worth $12,000 Consumed in Flames.

H. WIEGMAN FARM SEAT OF BIG BLAZE

Origin of Fire is Mystery and is Being Carefully Investigated.

Fire of a mysterious origin, which started in a hay stack, burned two barns, the chicken coops, six horses, two cows and chickens and all farm implements but one wagon on the Henry Wiegman farm, two miles east of Hoagland, Wednesday afternoon. Loss is estimated at $12,000. There was but $800 insurance, which was on one of the barns, a brick structure.

Rumor to the effect that many fires of mysterious origin are sweeping the rural districts is causing much consternation among the farmers of the region about Hoagland. It is thought that the straw stack, the most inflammable object on the farm, may have been picked for starting the conflagration by some German sympathizer or organization of German agents.

A board of farmers and underwriters made a careful investigation of the surroundings of the fire, on Thursday. No effort will be spared to apprehend the person who may have started the flames which swept away Wiegman's out buildings, his stock, implements and stored grain.

The farmer discovered the blaze when he chanced to look from his home while waiting for supper, shortly before 5 o'clock. He ran to the barn to fight the flames while his wife telephoned for help.

The blaze was well under way when the alarm was spread from the Wiegman home by telephone. Many calls were sent from the Hoagland central. Almost the whole population of the village turned out with buckets to fight the flames. It was the desperate effort of the bucket brigade which saved the Wiegman home from destruction.

Only one horse from the herd of seven fine animals was saved from the flames. Two cows were consumed and nearly all the chickens in the two large parks. A wagon was the only farm vehicle saved from the fire.

HOLD BOYS' RESERVE MEETING AT SCHOOL

Isaac D. Strauss and Asa J. Smith Urge Espousal of Cause.

"It is so tremendously necessary," declared Isaac D. Strauss, federal state representative of the United States Boys' Working Reserve, at the high school yesterday, "that we increase our food supply that I am letting my own business be neglected to aid in this work. Indiana farmers must not fail the country in the crisis and the young men of the country must volunteer to aid the farmers plant the crops next year."

In view of the continued state of unresponsiveness toward the working reserve for boys in Fort Wayne only a small percentage of boys and young men having enlisted for the war work, some wonderment has been aroused as to the cause of the disinterestedness. "It seems there is some misapprehension," continued Mr. Strauss, "about this boys' reserve. There is nothing about it that makes the volunteer open to military service. Each boy will be paid the full market value for his services and he will receive all the protection necessary. It is possible that the necessity of each boy taking the oath of allegiance is in the way and creates an impression that there is some intention to make the boy a soldier, but such is not the case. Every man who enters the civil service of the government in any way has to take the oath of allegiance."

Five prominent local men have agreed to serve on an executive committee for the reserves. They are C. A. Wilding, George W. Beers, Rabbi Weinstein, H. G. Hogan and C. R. Lane.

Asa J. Smith, of Wabash, state organizer, who addressed the meeting at the high school, explained in detail the purpose and plans of the Boys' Working Reserve. He said that as a reward for faithful service the government had prepared special bronze medals to be given to the boys and in case of special service, a bar will be added to this medal. Mr. Smith said further that working hours would be so arranged in every case that they would not interfere with school work. He said that if parents decide that it is not wise for their sons to continue in the service a written order will release them.

DWIGHT EASLEY WRITES LETTER FROM FRANCE

Fort Wayne Young Man Says Germans Fear Yankee Boys Most of All.

Dwight Easley has written the following interesting letter from "Somewhere in France" to his mother, Mrs. Charles Easley, 1708 Bayer avenue:

Some Place in France, Aug. 27, '17. My Darling Mother: No doubt you have wondered if I have dropped off the face of the earth, but when you have finished this letter you will know that I am very much alive, and you will also understand why you have not heard sooner than this from me. As you know, we left New York very unexpectedly, as I did not even get a chance to get word to Adda (his wife) or my going, and she was only a five or ten minutes walk away, and to leave without seeing her first was the hardest thing I have done in my life. You can not know what a blessing she is to me. Her letters, like yours, are like words spoken from her own life across the waters.

We are now allowed two letters a week and some weeks do not find time to write, and so you see we could not carry on a larger number of correspondence. A sergeant's duties call him at all times that his commanding officers order, and that is very often as there are so many special duties to perform.

We are now at our base of operations. The camp is almost complete and as soon as everything is completed here we will start in on real work. Four companies have already left, and we will leave soon. The few hardships that we have been through are nothing to that which the winter holds for us, so we try to do our bit with a smile, for it is all for our loved ones. He helped to make Uncle Sam what he is today. We are sleeping next to mother earth for the time being, but I hope it will not last long and that we will soon get our coats, for it is not very pleasant to wake up in the midst of your sleep with a flock of bugs parading over your face. One of our boys nearly went crazy from a bug that had entered his ear, but after some time the doctor was successful in removing it. Sometimes we are bothered with trench rats.

At night we have fireworks on all sides, and when you think what each flash means to some poor mother's boy it is sickening—heart sickening—and yet when you look at the other side and think of the crimes the Huns (Germans) have committed, it makes your blood boil in anger and you cry out for the price of his own blood and a complete victory, which is being brought about and nearer each day to the allies' side, which we feel sure is God's side. Therefore, the right side. If you could only see the dirty deeds of the Huns, as we see them, you would say drive them off the face of the earth, so that the world could

TWO FORT WAYNE OFFICERS ARRIVE SAFELY IN FRANCE

AL FOELLINGER, First Lieutenant.

JAMES BARRETT, Second Lieutenant.

Word has been received in the form of a cablegram of the safe arrival in France of First Lieutenant Al Foellinger and Second Lieutenant James Barrett, both of this city. The two young officers, together with a number of other officers, were detailed by the war department, following the receipt of their commissions at the close of the officers' reserve corps training camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison to go to Europe, where they will be taught the latest methods in modern warfare. After a few weeks they will return to this country to assist in the training of the national army.

The boys were told by one of the captains that the Kaiser was to blame for all our short rations and the sooner we licked him the sooner we would get the rations we are used to having. So the joke is, "Wait until we get hold of the Kaiser." What will we do to him? Starve him and give him a taste of some of his own treatment and see how he likes it. You can see how much we like him.

You ask in your letter if I would get eats if you sent them. The only things you could send would be anything that would not spoil in a month's time, such as tin canned goods, fruit cake, preserves, home-made candy, nuts and, as for eating them, why, I could eat a bear now and yell for more. This life sure works up a good hole in a fellow's stomach in a mighty short time.

Well mother, dear, I could sit here and write all night if I could only write what I knew, but censor will not let us talk too much. Address mail to following address: 11 Engineer (railway) Army Postoffice, S. 46 France, until your hear different. Tell daddy I am, trying to be the soldier that his father was. I would like for my Fort Wayne friends to know of my whereabouts and would be more than glad to hear from them, as it would help the red head to keep a smiling face.

Your loving son, DWIGHT.

Dwight's mother is planning to send him a box and if any of his friends would like to remember him, call 1351 red.

Like the Army. Friends in the export department of the S. F. Bowser company have heard from Merle Goshert of Battery D, and Hobart Harder of Battery B, who formerly worked in this department. They are stationed with the "rainbow" division at Camp Mills, L. I. They state in their letter that they like army life fine.

Visited Her Son. Mrs. M. C. Oakes, 322 West DeWald street, returned Wednesday from Fort Sheridan, Illinois, where she had visited her son, David Oakes, who is stationed there in the second officers' training camp.

Reber Reports for Duty. After spending his furlough at the home of H. C. Eckels on John street, Master Gunner Otto Reber, of the U. S. merchant vessel, Rheclia, has returned for duty.

DIPHTHERIA EPIDEMIC CAUSES MUCH ALARM

Little Margaret Slater, of South Whitley, Victim of Dread Disease.

Columbia City, Oct. 1.—The threatening diphtheria epidemic in South Whitley and vicinity has taken as its first toll little Margaret Jeanette, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Slater, residing just north of that place. The victim of the contagious disease died Saturday forenoon following an illness of several days. She leaves her parents and the following brothers and sisters: Harley and Robert, who are recovering from the disease; Elizabeth, Warren, Lyman, Mrs. Elizabeth Dyer, of Fort Wayne, and Mrs. Mabel Kreider, of Elkhart. A private funeral was held Sunday with burial in the town cemetery. The Slater home is under quarantine. The cases at the James Remington home in the same town, where Mrs. Remington and her ten-year-old son James are afflicted, have improved. These cases are the first to have appeared in South Whitley. Town Health Officer Dr. M. W. Webster has several other suspicious cases under observation and the schools may be closed to prevent a further spread of the epidemic. The origin of the disease is unknown. It is said the Remingtons had and his mother visited Chicago, where they may have contracted the disease. The Remingtons had later visited the Slater home, where the death occurred Saturday. Several cases are reported in Wabash county and around North Manchester, and the disease may have been brought to South Whitley during the week of the fair at North Manchester.

BUT FEW MEN ARE EXEMPTED

Many Appeals on Agricultural Grounds Are Denied.

EIGHTEEN MORE HELD FOR SERVICE

All Asking to Be Relieved for Industrial Reasons Must Go.

The district appeal board were unable to grant many appeals to Fort Wayne and Allen county citizens Thursday. The claims of many were refused because they had not sufficient claim for exemption. Out of all those who claimed exemption on industrial grounds none was discharged.

The board is now working on a list of men certified for service in Huntington county.

The following decisions have been rendered for the country district of Allen county:

Held on Appeal. Sylvester Schuler, Joseph Leffers, Clarence Messing.

Discharged on Agricultural Claims. Arthur Happle, Charles S. Love, Henry J. Meyers, Homer J. Blume, Arthur H. Zell.

Held on Agricultural Claims. Arthur Willbaum, Edward Heine, Oscar Doctor, Edwin Krauskopf, Samuel B. Addy.

Held on Industrial Claims. Ross O. Philly, Frank K. Lerch, Walter Beckstine, Paul Diba.

Another Objector. The sheriff of Adams county also made a trip to the camp, Monday, bringing with him David D. Schwartz, of Berne, Ind., who states he is a conscientious objector. He was attached for rations to the Cooks' and Bakers' school.

The Adams county and Jay county men are attached to two of the Fort Wayne companies. The Fort Wayne young men found it to be a hard sport watching Harley doing his extra fatigue duty. The Wells county men are quartered in adjoining barracks.

First Foot Test. The Fort Wayne men who arrived last Friday evening received the real taste of army work Monday when they were put through the first foot test. Foot movements were taught the entire day and at the close of the afternoon drill period a regular army sergeant made the statement that they would be real for sure soldiers in the short time of three months.

The effects of the first inoculation have worn off and all the men recovered from the ordeal in fine shape.

Thus far no announcement has been made that any of the Fort Wayne men have failed to pass the physical examination. It is believed that all have passed.

When Mrs. Neva Kurtz, 321 West Superior street, ran screaming from her home Thursday night, she called out a lot of trouble for police and started a court investigation which caused Judge H. W. Kerr to scratch his head in police court Friday morning.

Al McKee, laborer, went to the home of the woman in summons to a telephone call, says the man who is charged with disorderly conduct in city court. He found Mrs. Kurtz and her two small children in the house. McKee and the woman quarreled about the relations of Mrs. Kurtz with Lewis Kurtz, railroad fireman, McKee testified.

Mrs. Kurtz ran screaming from the house at 11 o'clock. Neighbors, who were alarmed by the woman's cries, called police. When officers arrived McKee was in the house attempting to care for the small children. The woman had fled into the night.

McKee was locked up. An officer was posted at the house to await the return of the woman. The patrolman waited through the long hours in vain for Mrs. Kurtz did not come back during the night. She did not appear at the house until late Friday morning. She was at once placed under bond to appear as a witness against McKee on Monday morning.

"This woman is supposed to be married to Kurtz but I don't think she is," said McKee, Friday morning. "I have bought all her clothes for the past four years. Most folk think we are married. I take her to shows and things."

"Those children are these at the house?" queried Judge Kerr. "We don't know," calmly replied McKee. "Let us try to unravel a part of this tangle on Monday," said the judge as he ordered McKee held and the fireman and Mrs. Kurtz placed under bond.

If Some One Was Beating Her—Will Not Don Soldier's Uniform.

By E. F. F. (Staff Correspondent.)

Camp Taylor, Ky., Sept. 28.—"I wouldn't defend my own mother if some one was beating her," stated William Harley, a member of a branch of the Mennonite church, who is at this camp in training.

Harley is a member of the Sixty-second company, Sixteenth battalion of the 159th depot brigade and arrived in the camp Friday evening with the Wells county quota. He resides near Bluffton.

Monday morning he refused to even drill, stating that it was against the teachings of his church. The officers in charge pleaded with him and explained the training was not necessarily taking up arms against another.

Harley could not see it that way so army discipline had to be enforced after words had no effect, or result. So the young man was put to work on some laborious fatigue duty with the promise that he could quit any time that he made up his mind to drill. He showed his griff and stayed at the task until he had it completed whereupon he was put onto another task. Just what the final outcome of the matter will be cannot be determined.

Pleaded in Vain. Members of his company pleaded with him in vain to have him quit the work and go out on the field and drill. They showed to him as best they could that drilling was not taking up arms against another and that it was very likely that if he showed any progress at all that he would be placed in a non-combatant branch of the service.

The young man had the sympathy of all his fellow soldiers until one of the men asked him what he would do if some one were striking his mother and he answered that he would not raise a finger. Sympathy switched at this point.

Further questioning brought out the answer that he would let a man keep "biffing" away at him as long as he could before he would strike back.

Other members of the same religious sect were put to work cleaning and leveling up a portion of the camp which will later be used for parade grounds.

It is said that there are twelve or fifteen more men of the same type as Harley coming in the next quota from Wells county. One man refused to come with the last forty per cent. He would not get up out of bed in the morning of the departure of the boys and rumor has it that the sheriff of Wells county is planning a trip to Camp Taylor in a few days with the man.

An unconfirmed report is causing much comment in the camp. The report is that a member of the church "took to the hills" on Sunday evening. This report could not be confirmed.

Many of the members of this religious sect have come to the camp with papers from their local boards asking that they be exempted from combatant service. Some of the men have even made the statement that they refuse to don a soldier's uniform. This action on the part of this class of men has not only aroused the officers but the members of the national army as well.

The sheriff of Adams county also made a trip to the camp, Monday, bringing with him David D. Schwartz, of Berne, Ind., who states he is a conscientious objector. He was attached for rations to the Cooks' and Bakers' school.

The Adams county and Jay county men are attached to two of the Fort Wayne companies. The Fort Wayne young men found it to be a hard sport watching Harley doing his extra fatigue duty. The Wells county men are quartered in adjoining barracks.

First Foot Test. The Fort Wayne men who arrived last Friday evening received the real taste of army work Monday when they were put through the first foot test. Foot movements were taught the entire day and at the close of the afternoon drill period a regular army sergeant made the statement that they would be real for sure soldiers in the short time of three months.

The effects of the first inoculation have worn off and all the men recovered from the ordeal in fine shape.

Thus far no announcement has been made that any of the Fort Wayne men have failed to pass the physical examination. It is believed that all have passed.

ENGINEER UNIT MAKES STEP TOWARD FRANCE

Entrain at Noon for Trip to Illinois Training Camp.

Fort Wayne gave another contingent of men to the army Saturday when the first group of soldiers making up the engineer unit left at 12:20 o'clock over the Pennsylvania for Camp Grant at Rockford, Ill. There were sixty-two of the best railroad men of Fort Wayne and neighboring cities in the unit. The first plan was to go to Fort Thomas, Ky., but on account of the urgent need of engineers at the front they were sent directly to the camp where they will receive all necessary equipment and be mustered into service. After a few weeks at the training camp they will leave for some Atlantic port and from there to France.

MADE AID TO HOOVER

C. B. Tolan Appointed District Food Administrator by Government.

OPENS WORK BY PROBE OF BREAD SITUATION

Will Report to Washington Local Food Market Conditions.

C. B. Tolan, deputy inspector of weights and measures, was appointed as a district food administrator for the federal government Wednesday morning. The solemn oath of his obligation in aiding to better food conditions of the nation was administered to the city officer shortly before noon. He began his work for the government at once.

Mr. Tolan is to be one of the aids to Clarence Hoover, federal food administrator, who has the national nutritional problem to solve. The city officer will have the power of a federal official in enforcing food measures in the region of Fort Wayne.

The first order issued to Sealer Tolan by the government, through H. E. Barnard, Indiana food administrator, was that of preparing data on the local bread situation. Mr. Tolan is expected to report to Mr. Barnard at once on the most common weights of bread sold, the cost of bread in Fort Wayne and whether or not stale bread is taken back by the bakeries.

Starts His Work. The new district food administrator took up his work Wednesday morning by calling on all bakers of Fort Wayne and asking them the questions propounded by Federal Administrator Hoover.

None of the twenty-five Fort Wayne bakeries called by Mr. Tolan are taking back stale bread, a practice which prevailed before the opening of the war. All local bakers told Mr. Tolan that they are trying to cut out waste wherever possible. The making of fancy pastries has been stopped in a part of the Fort Wayne cake shops, Mr. Tolan was told.

Weights of the loaves of bread most commonly sold in Fort Wayne are the twelve, sixteen and twenty-five ounce loaves. These are the weights after the bread is baked. Retail price of the loaves is 7c, 10c and 15c.

The report collected by Mr. Tolan will be sent to Indianapolis and later to Washington. A comparison of the bread status of all cities of the United States will be made. It is expected that an edict on the cost of bread and the approved bread materials, based on the result of reports from all cities, will be made by the government later.

Orders for action in gathering food Wayne are expected to pour in thick and fast upon District Administrator Tolan as the national food effort gains force. The city officer will give all the time possible to the work.

Sealer Tolan has been assisting federal agents in probing local conditions and it was his activities along that line which brought him the government appointment.

HAD STOLEN $200 WORTH OF GOODS

Telford Craddock, Colored Elevator Boy, Makes Confession in Court.

A trunk full of silk shirts, waists, sweaters, ties, silverware and other jewelry opened in police court, Friday morning, bears mute evidence of the culminating power of "little by little and bit by bit."

Telford Craddock, colored, formerly elevator boy at the Tepper store, on East Berry street, admitted that he had gathered the goods, valued at $200, by the patient process of removing an article at a time from the store by putting the piece of goods under his coat when he left the store of an evening.

Police claim that Preston Lyons, colored, former porter in the Tepper store, was an accessory to the theft. Officers produced a signed statement which Craddock admitted that he had sworn to on Thursday evening and which told that Lyons had helped steal the property.

Craddock testified that he had signed the statement under the influence of Chief of Police Lenz and Detective Sergeant Walter Immel, who Craddock testified had told him that he would get off light if he involved somebody else in the case. The officers deny making such a statement and declare that outside influence has been brought to bear upon Craddock since he made a full confession.

Lyons stoutly denies a part in the theft. Both the colored men were bound to the circuit court under $500 bond.

Craddock was arrested in Chicago Thursday, after Detective Sergeant Walter Immel had located him in that city and had wired officers to capture him. Craddock had tried to sell the goods, officers state. On the way back to Fort Wayne the negro divulged evidence which caused Lyons, a married man, living on Eureka street, to be arrested.

Case Sentenced Again. For the sixth time in the past twenty years Jack Case, 48, was sentenced to the state farm upon a charge of indecent exposure of person. He was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 180 days of confinement.

Other Police Court Cases. Cases of public intoxication were Jefferson Meyers, fined $5 and costs; John Pollard, $1. Arthur Funstel, Charles Mantus and Mark McKinnis were released. George Vail will be tried on Tuesday on an assault and battery charge.

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 7

PSALMS OF DELIVERANCE.

LESSON TEXT—Psalms 55 and 124. GOLDEN TEXT—They that sow in tears shall reap in joy.—Psalms 126:5.

These Psalms breathe the spirit of the true patriot. The Psalmist sees his afflicted country suffering for the sins of the people, prays for their restoration to the Divine favor, and with the eagle eye of faith anticipates the joyful day of spiritual and temporal blessings because of restoration to the Divine favor. Doubtless such patriotism would be pleasing to the Lord on the part of us all.

Psalm 55.

I. Praises for Mercies Received (vv. 1-3).

Praise is given for (1) Deliverance from Captivity (v. 1).

He had in mind the specific mercies of a given time; perhaps it was one of the oppressions of the Philistines from which they had been delivered.

(2) Forgiveness of Sin (vv. 2, 3). "Thou hast forgiven the iniquity—covered all their sin." God's restoration was the proof that he had pardoned. Great indeed was the sin of Jacob, but God's forgiveness was greater. He is peculiarly a God of mercy. Having forgiven the sins his anger is taken away. He stayed his hand from the judgment which would have justly fallen, to show his mercy.

II. Prayer for Restoration From Backsliding (vv. 4-7).

He knew how worthless the outward blessings of the Lord would be unless the people inwardly turned to the Lord. He, therefore, besought the Lord to

NEWS FROM OUR NEIGHBORING TOWNS

PROTEST STOPPING RAILROAD SERVICE

Hearing on C. B. & C. Line Will Be Held by Public Service Commission.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 1.—Whether a railroad or other public utility has the right arbitrarily to abandon its service to the public and cease doing business, is a question that will be determined by the Indiana public service commission in a hearing next Tuesday.

The problem has been raised in connection with the fate of the Cincinnati, Bluffton and Chicago railroad, which runs from Portland to Huntington, when it runs at all. This road has been in the courts for years, under receivership and otherwise, and a few days ago it was sold under order of court for $300,000 to Herbert Sonken, representing a firm of junk dealers.

Sonken declined to tell what he proposed to do with the road. Immediately after the sale he discontinued the running of trains and all other service by the road.

Weber & Purviance, grain dealers of Huntington, have filed with the public service commission a petition saying that when the train service was discontinued the firm had 10,000 bushels of grain in a warehouse at Simpson, a small village in Huntington county, and that without service on the railroad this grain cannot be moved to market. The firm asked the commission to issue an order to Sonken to resume train service and move its grain.

The commission has sent a notice to Sonken to appear before the commission at 10 o'clock next Tuesday and show cause why he should not resume and continue the operation of the road.

"I do not believe a public utility has the right to discontinue service to the public without first obtaining the approval of the public service commission," said Charles A. Edwards, commissioner, who issued the order for the hearing.

KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTO.

Decatur, Ind., Sept. 27.—Mary Ellen, aged 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sark, of Bartlesville, Okla., who, with her mother are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gallego, was knocked over by the creamery automobile last evening at 5:30 o'clock, a bone of her lower right leg being split. The little girl had gone across the street for some supplies from the grocery and was returning with little Junior Coffee. The creamery auto was coming slowly and turned out for her. She did not see the vehicle but when the little boy she was with called to her, she started to turn back, getting in the way of the auto which struck her on the leg. She was not bruised or scratched in any way, except for the fracture of the leg, the bone being split.

TWENTY-EIGHT TO LEAVE.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 1.—Twenty-eight Wells county men, making up 20 per cent of the quota, will leave at 8:30 a. m. Friday, October 5, for Camp Taylor, Louisville. This official announcement was received by the county conscription board. It was first figured that only 27 would be sent, but the official figures add one and the name of Robert Edgar Nash, employed at the M. & B. traction offices, is added to the list of regulars. He was first in the alternates.

CONGRATULATED BY KING.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 1.—Mrs. Fred A. Metts has received a letter stating that her cousin, Spencer Kirby, a member of the British aviation corps, was congratulated by King Edward last week as the result of his shooting a German plane, sending the aviator into the sea and then throwing his life preserver to the drowning man. The king shook the hand of the young man and London newspapers referred to the act as "the difference between a gentleman and a German."

RIBS ARE BROKEN.

Warsaw, Ind., Sept. 26.—Monday afternoon while cutting corn on his farm east of Warsaw, J. D. Goddard fell off the corn cutter and broke several ribs besides receiving a number of bad bruises. He was brought to his home in town and was resting all right on Tuesday.

ALLEGED WHITE SLAVER.

Kendallville, Ind., Sept. 26.—Clarence Rosenbrook, of Coldwater, Mich., under arrest here charged with wife seduction. A more serious charge, that of violating the Mann white slave law, may be brought against him.

LEAVE OCTOBER 3.

Hartford City, Ind., Sept. 26.—The call for the second 40 per cent of Blackford county's quota for the new national army, will be sent out soon by the local conscription board. This contingent, comprised of thirty-nine men, will go to Camp Taylor October 3.

C. B. & C. TOWNS HOPEFUL.

See Chance for Resumption of Traffic on Short Line.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 29.—Small towns along the C. B. & C. received a faint ray of hope for resumption of traffic on the short line when they learned of the interest being taken in the matter by the public service commission. The traffic was stopped Tuesday, and all industries that were dependent on the road for cars and transportation have been at a standstill. The announcement of Charles A. Edwards, of the commission, that the new owner should have asked permission to stop traffic, was the ground for belief that the junk firm might be compelled to give some kind of service.

Claude Cline, attorney in Huntington for the Sonken-Galamba Iron and Metal company, the new owner, said he knew of no way that the firm could be compelled to resume operations, as the supreme court had ordered the road sold free of the condition that it should continue operations. The new owner is not a railroad corporation, he said.

Judge Cook, of the circuit court, took a hand in the effort made by Herman Sonken, president of the junking company, to buy claims against the road at 25 cents on the dollar, and ordered that J. C. Curtis, the receiver, who was mentioned as agent for Sonken in letters to creditors, have nothing to do with such negotiations. He ordered the receiver to give notice in newspapers in Wells, Jay and Huntington counties that he is not the agent for Sonken.

TELLS OF AIR RAID.

Hartford City Boy Writes Letter from England.

Hartford City, Ind., Sept. 26.—In writing to his parents, Guy Brock, who is stationed at a camp in England, tells of witnessing an aerial fight on August 22.

Ten big German planes came over the camp and were attacked by the British. Two of the German machines fell in flames. "The guns in the harbor, on a big monitor there, were booming so that one had to scream to make oneself heard," the writer says.

The planes came directly over the camp and looked like silver fishes in the sky. No bombs were dropped until the machine reached Dover. They were driven to sea there and back to Belgium.

TRAFFIC SUSPENDED.

No Wheels on the C. B. & C. Are Turning at Huntington.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 26.—Huntington traffic on the Cincinnati, Bluffton and Chicago railroad stopped today, after Charles Levenson, who bought it at receiver's sale for $310,000 Monday, announced that his firm was not in the business of operating railroads. The men propose to offer the road to business men along the line for the price of $400,000 and to give them a short time to decide whether they wish to make an effort to reorganize the road. With the stopping of traffic several men are making plans to operate overland automobile buses.

KEYSTONE GIRL HURT.

Bluffton, Ind., Sept. 29.—The two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gettys McCammon, residing east of Keystone, was seriously injured yesterday when a plow to which a runaway team was hitched, struck her in the head. The girl was unconscious from the time of the accident about noon yesterday until today. She started to regain consciousness this morning, but this afternoon had not entirely rallied. The girl was playing about the barn lot at the McCammon home when the team hitched to the plow came dashing past her, the plow swinging around and striking her on the head. The child was taken to the office of a Montpelier physician. The outcome of her injuries cannot be determined yet.

BURGLARS AT BLUFFTON.

Bluffton, Ind., Sept. 27.—Burglars were abroad Tuesday night, and according to reports, two homes were entered, money being obtained at both. At the G. Hookenson home at 113 East Cherry street, the thief got in the house through a window and obtained a woman's purse lying on the dining room table. The purse contained nearly five dollars. At the Adalga Wandel home on South Main, the thief was frightened away. It was about 11 o'clock when the man forced an entrance into the kitchen by removing a screen. Miss Florence Wandel had just left home to go up town for a few minutes and Mr. and Mrs. Wandel were upstairs at the time.

FISH STORY.

Warsaw, Ind., Sept. 29.—This is a fish story, but a true one. George Anson has caught three big pike during the last week in Lake Leno; but the climax came yesterday evening, when he landed a pike weighing 12 pounds and 10 ounces and measuring 40 1/2 inches long. George caught the fish on artificial bait, wooden, which he himself had manufactured. It certainly looked good to Mr. Pike for he struck at it three times before he was finally captured after a struggle of twenty-five minutes.

PAINTING COURT HOUSE.

Warsaw, Ind., Sept. 26.—The painters have started work on the court house. The work up to date bids fair to give the county official headquarters a fine appearance in preparation for fair week. At the present the bright stone color of the part completed stands out in clear distinction from the main part dark with the dust and smoke of years.

PIONEER DEAD.

Albion, Ind., Sept. 26.—Jacob Favinger, 80, and practically a life-long resident of Noble county, died Monday evening at his home in Albion following an illness of a week. Death was due to apoplexy. The aged man was stricken with apoplexy about a week ago, and since that time his condition had been critical and death was expected momentarily.

MACHINES NARROWLY AVOID FATAL CRASH

Three Youths Unhurt When Car Does Not Turn as It Leaves Road.

Bluffton, Ind., Sept. 28.—Three Oshian youths had a lucky escape Thursday afternoon when a Ford automobile driven by Lee Somers left the road and plunged into a deep ditch. Somers and his two companions were coming to the Bluffton fair when the accident occurred. They were going at a high rate of speed trying to keep ahead of a National Six, which was following. Both cars were speeding when the driver of the larger machine went around the Ford. The wheels of the National slipped on some loose gravel at the edge of the road and skidded, locking its back wheel with the front wheel of the Ford, causing the latter to plunge into the ditch. The Ford did not turn over, which was a miracle considering the speed at which both cars were traveling. The driver of the National slowed up to see if anyone was hurt, but on seeing the boys crawl out of the wreckage resumed his trip.

WILL DEDICATE CHURCH.

Bluffton, Ind., Sept. 28.—After months of patient endeavor and effort on the part of the congregation, the Union Chapel church, located near the Wells-Jay county line, will be dedicated Sunday, Sept. 30. Plans are being made for an all day meeting to be featured at the noon hour by a big basket dinner. The church structure was destroyed during the cyclone two years ago, and the congregation has been busy ever since raising funds to have the church rebuilt. The new building is a great improvement over the old one, and a good sized vestibule at the front adds to the convenience of the church. Rev. Arriek, of Farmland, will preach both in the morning and afternoon.

TRAIN KILLS FARMER.

Kendallville, Ind., Sept. 28.—A farmer by the name of Marsh, residing two miles east of Swanton, O., was killed Tuesday by New York Central passenger train No. 636, eastbound, according to Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McDonald, of this city, who were passengers on the train. Mr. McDonald said the train was running at high speed to make up time, when the fatality occurred. Marsh, who was 55 years old, stepped onto the tracks just as a freight train cleared the crossing and was in the direct path of the passenger train which struck him, badly mangled his body.

HAS EYE REMOVED.

Warsaw, Ind., Sept. 28.—C. H. Meese, of this place, was operated on at Hartford City for the removal of his right eye following an accident last Friday a week. While working on a silo on the Wolverton farm, north of Hartford City, he was struck in the eye by a fragment of stone. He thought nothing of the injury at the time, but two days later the eye began to pain him and he consulted a doctor. It was found that an ulcer had formed on the tear sac. Last Sunday the eye burst and the eye was removed as the only means of saving the other eye.

VALENTINE BURNS DEAD.

Bluffton, Ind., Sept. 28.—Valentine Burns, well known civil war veteran, is dead at the state soldiers' home at Lafayette. Mr. Burns was of advanced age and death came from a complication of causes and his old age. Surviving besides the wife are several children and a step-daughter here, Mrs. Nora Hedges. Mr. Burns was a member of the G. A. R. post here and only went to the soldiers' home about a month ago. The body will be brought here for burial, arriving tomorrow morning. The funeral will probably be held Saturday.

GO INTO A DITCH.

Warsaw, Ind., Sept. 28.—About 8:30 o'clock Wednesday evening A. L. Byler was driving out of town on Lake street and after he had crossed the old river bridge he was blinded by the lights from another auto coming south, and in trying to make room for the other car, he and the car that he was driving went over the embankment. The car turned over with Byler underneath. He was unhurt but the top of the car was torn off.

PIERCETON MAN HURT.

Piercetown, Ind., Sept. 28.—Alva South, who is employed as lineman of the Piercetown Telephone Co., was slightly injured on Wednesday while working on a pole near the John Maynard home north of town. The pole snapped and fell over him, alighting on his feet. Drs. Long and Leedy attended him. He was brought to his home here.

WILL BE ASSISTANT.

Kendallville, Ind., Sept. 28.—Warren Otis, who is a senior in chemical engineering in the University of Michigan, returned to that institution Thursday afternoon to resume his work for the coming year. He has an appointment as assistant in the laboratory for the year, necessitating his return a few days earlier than the formal opening which takes place next week.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Stroh, Ind., Sept. 28.—Roy Shrock and William Cox narrowly escaped death when they fell a distance of fifty feet from the peak of a barn. Cox suffered a dislocated arm and a fractured leg, while Shrock received a badly sprained leg. The men were engaged in tarring the roof of the barn on the Dr. H. E. Fleming farm, about four miles east of here, when the accident occurred.

THREE DESEINTERS.

Wabash, Ind., Sept. 27.—Virgil Bowers, of Huntington, was placed in the Wabash jail as an army deserter. Monday two more gave themselves up to the authorities, Thomas Novina, of New York, and George Metevier, of New Bedford, Mass.

SUICIDE AT CAMP TAYLOR

Roy Coffelt, 25, Member of Fort Wayne Company, Found Dead.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky., Sept. 28.—By means of a rope tied to a crossbeam in the barracks bathroom, Roy Coffelt, age 25, of Geneva, Ind., committed suicide here early this morning by hanging. He was the son of Mrs. Anna Coffelt, formerly of Geneva, an inmate of the state insane asylum at Richmond.

No cause is known for Coffelt's action. He was last seen at 12:35 a. m. when a fire call aroused all the men from the barracks and at that time he was supposedly in good spirits. The body was discovered hanging by a rope tied to a crossbeam in a shelter house. A small bench near by had evidently been used to carry out the deed.

The deceased was a member of the Sixty-seventh company a Fort Wayne organization. He was the first man to be called up in the draft from Geneva and had been regarded as being in good health by those who knew and unopposed to serving in the army by those who knew him. Before coming here was a laborer at Geneva, having been employed in several places shortly before being called into service. He is said to have relatives in Fort Wayne.

The only Coffelt listed in the city directory is Percy Coffelt, 327 Montgomery street, a barber, who could not be located at time of going to press.

WILLIAM RAYBURN, 91, GETS PROPERTY BACK

Man, Once Adjudged Insane, Wins Out in Suit Against His Son.

A compromise was reached Thursday in the Adams circuit court at Decatur, in the case brought by William Rayburn, 91 years old, for the recovery of a piece of property in Bedford, Ind., which he had deeded to his son, W. O. Rayburn, of this city, whereby the property is to be deeded back to him and he is to pay for improvements amounting to approximately $300 which the son had put on the property. When Mrs. Rayburn died she enacted a promise from her sons, it is said, that they should look after their father and see that he did not want. About a year ago the senior Rayburn came to Fort Wayne from Bedford to make his home with his son, W. O. Rayburn. The property in Bedford was deeded to him with the understanding that he was to look after him and provide for him during the few remaining years of his life.

Later, however, insanity proceedings were brought against the senior Rayburn, which, however, were later dismissed. Then Rayburn filed suit in the Allen circuit court against his son for possession of the property which he had deeded to him. He claimed that the son had failed to live up to his contract. The son asked for a change of venue and the case was taken to the Adams circuit court and was to have been tried, Thursday, when a compromise was reached and the case dismissed. Another suit which the son had brought against his father for room and board also was dismissed.

The elder Rayburn left Saturday for Riverside, California, where he will make his future home with another son, Hugh S. Rayburn, who has urged his father to come to him and spend the remainder of his days with him. Mr. Rayburn, although 91 years old, is making the trip alone. He is in splendid health for a man of his years.

MAXWELL SAYS HE IS RESEMBLANCE VICTIM

Was Shot in the Leg Because He Was Mistaken for Another.

Charles Maxwell, local bartender, and secretary of the bartenders' union, has notified Fort Wayne friends that he was shot in the leg in Anderson Thursday evening because he was mistaken for another man. Maxwell was only slightly hurt as the bullet entered the fleshy part of his leg and was easily extracted, it has been learned.

Maxwell was a delegate to the Indiana Federation of Labor convention at Anderson. He was on a downtown street when Sheldon Neff, an Anderson teamster, shot him through the leg. Neff fled and later took a train for Elwood. He has not been captured.

For a time it was thought that Maxwell was critically hurt. Hospital examination revealed that the wound was not critical, however. Anderson police claim that Neff had quarreled with a man named Ross, whom Neff accused of being intimate with his wife, and that Neff no doubt took Maxwell for Ross as the two men resembled.

FORT WAYNE BOYS TO HATTIESBURG

Third Regiment of Indiana Infantry Leaves Fort Ben Harrison.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 28.—The Third Indiana infantry regiment started on its way to Hattiesburg, Miss., today, where it will join the First and Fourth Indiana regiments for training at Camp Shelby. The regiments traveled in day coaches. Three sections of the train were required to move the troops. Only a few visitors were at Fort Benjamin Harrison early today to witness the final preparations for the departure and to bid the men good-bye. The early part of the day was required in loading the last of the property of the regiment. The first section of the train was in command of Major Guy L. Shaugnessy; the second section in command of Captain Lester L. Borge and third section was in command of Major Carl F. Beyer. Practically all the companies in the regiment are from the northern part of the state. The hour of departure of the various sections was not made public.

REACHES HIS 81ST MILESTONE OF LIFE

Corp. Lewis W. Johnson, widely known as a dialect poet and prominent in the Grand Army of the Republic, on Friday celebrated the eighty-first anniversary of his birth. A few friends gathered at his home, 1210 Columbia avenue, and were entertained by Mrs. Johnson and himself. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Will Polson, of Indianapolis.

Corporal Johnson is still hale and marvelously active at 81 and claims that his war garden, cultivated by his own hand, is the finest in Fort Wayne.

Corporal Johnson has just returned from Mansfield, O., where on Tuesday he attended the annual reunion of the First Independent battery of Ohio, a well known fighting unit in the civil war. Of 350 men who went out but thirteen were in attendance at the reunion.

TAMING THE BOASTERS.

Members of the Industrial Workers of the World, some of whose leaders are now in jail, already have begun to make a great boasting of their intents and purposes. Boasting is a regular part of the I. W. W. "business," just as a low sort of espionage is a part of the regular "business" of Prussian diplomacy, and still further in resemblance of it is a thing to which there is no end.

Fast upon the arrest of Heywood and other leaders the still unmolested adherents of the Heywood dynamite cult began to boast of the resources of the I. W. W. organization for defense. There was in hand a half-million bundle and as much more "where that came from." No doubt the organization has or will have money for the defense of its leaders. In whatever interests its disloyalty and sedition have been exerted, the labor can scarcely have been without material compensations. But there will be some reluctance of these interests to come further into the game. The federal government knows too much already respecting the activities of the I. W. W. to encourage the secret employers of that element to take greater hazards.

Boasting is the long suit of the I. W. W. On the day following the lynching of the lawless lawyer Little, at Butte, the local crew of the organization began its boastings of knowing the identity of the lynchers and of its purpose to "get them" forthwith. Up to this time no one has been uncovered as having been of the small mob that took Little from his bed to a railroad bridge in the environs of Butte and hanged him without shrift. No sooner had the people of Arizona bundled the I. W. W. disturbers into cattle cars and shipped them without time for adieu out of the state than there began the boasting of the I. W. W. that the consequences to Arizona would be such as the state would not bear with comfort. Nothing has been done. So, too, in respect of the federal government, which placed the imported men in a barbed-wire compound in New Mexico and kept them under guard. Uncle Sam would learn what it meant to monkey with the sacred persons of the "Wabblers." The answer to that was a nation-wide raid of the I. W. W. quarters, the detention of some of those in charge, the seizure of tons of "literature" and documents and the latest sequel of wholesale indictments in a federal court of the men identified with the leadership of the society.

The fact is that the I. W. W. does nothing it cannot do in the dark. There is not going to be much darkness and secrecy for that precious element of our complex society. The federal agents are among them and what is done has ceased to be secret. Boasting is cheap and bootless. So it will prove in the case of the Industrial Workers of the World. The government has possessed itself of enough evidence to procure prompt indictment of many scores of the leaders and, if it cares to go farther, of thousands of the rank and file of the organization. If the organization is so well fixed for funds as it now boasts, we believe there would be no great delay on the part of Heywood and some of his lieutenants in availing themselves of the immunity it would give them from further confinement in jails.

WHY BUY LIBERTY BONDS?

There still may be some persons in the country able to invest in Liberty Loan bonds who wonder why they should.

It would be a practical answer to such persons to say that the government's bonds are the finest investment that can be found. They are perfectly safe. They pay a good rate of interest. They are not taxable for any purpose except as the possession of enough of them produces an income within the scope of the federal income surtaxes. They are the most convenient form of investment for immediate liquidation. Indeed, they are as liquid as currency. They give no trouble, cause no anxiety and run for a long period. As an investment they have every quality that can be desired.

Beyond all this is the better reason that to buy Liberty Loan bonds is a patriotic duty that falls upon all who are able to pay for them. The government needs the money to carry on its righteous war against autocracy that our own nation may be made secure and that democracy all over the world may dare seek a place in the sun. Men by the million are going from home to fight for their flag. The government must support the patriotic valor of these men with everything that can discount the cost in blood and make their fighting victorious. This can be done only with unlimited money. Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo thus sums up the duty of patriots and makes clear why we are at war and why we must support the government and through the government the army:

People by thousands ask the treasury constantly how they can help the government in this war. Through the purchase of Liberty Bonds every one can help. No more patriotic duty can be performed by those who cannot actually fight upon the field of battle than to furnish the government with the necessary money to enable it to give our brave soldiers and sailors all that they require to make them strong for the fight and capable of winning a swift victory over our enemies.

We fight, first of all, for America's vital rights, the right to the unmolested and unobstructed use of the high seas, so that the surplus products of our farms, our mines and our factories may be carried into the harbors of every friendly nation in the world. Our welfare and prosperity as a people depend upon our right of peaceful intercourse with all the nations of the earth. To abandon these rights by withdrawing our ships and commerce from the seas upon the order of a military despot in Europe would destroy prosperity and bring disaster and humiliation upon the American people.

We fight to protect our citizens against assassination and murder upon the high seas while in the peaceful exercise of those rights demanded by international law and every instinct and dictate of humanity.

We fight to preserve our democratic institutions and our sovereignty as a nation against the menace of a powerful and ruthless military autocracy headed by the German kaiser, whose ambition is to dominate the world.

We fight also for the noble ideal of universal democracy and liberty, the right of the smallest and weakest nations equally with the most powerful to live and to govern themselves according to the will of their own people.

We fight for peace, for that just and lasting peace which agonized and tortured humanity craves and which not the sword nor the bayonet of a military despot but the supremacy of vindicated right alone can restore to a distracted world.

To secure these ends I appeal to every man and woman who resides upon the soil of free America and enjoys the blessings of her priceless institutions to join the League of Patriots by purchasing a Liberty Bond.

There is both the statement of duty and the broad ground of duty. We are fighting for peace, as Secretary McAdoo says, and as everybody in America knows. We are not after a foot of alien soil. We want only to protect our own and make it safe for ourselves and our posterity forever. As the fathers won it by fighting and preserved it by fighting, so their sons must now secure its perpetuity by fighting. Each and all who aid the cause of the nation by lending their money to the government will also be enlisted in and fighting for that same great cause.

GET IN THE WAR GARDEN FAIR.

There are a good many of Fort Wayne's people who should take an uncommon pride in being exhibitors in Fort Wayne's war garden fair at the baseball park tomorrow. Among the hundreds who gave soil and time and hard work to the duty of their bit for the country in that way there must have been a good many to whom cultivation of the soil was wholly a new and untried task.

Whatever may have been the result of this patriotic adventure into new fields, the fruit itself ought to be shown. Those who have grown something that can be exhibited now ought on no account to fail to be among those represented in the display. It also will be worth while for the people of Fort Wayne in general and those from the country surrounding, who will be in for Interurban Day, to look at this exposition of the fruits of city gardening.

It is ceased now to be of so much concern what was accomplished in the summer just closed by way of increased production on vacant lots and in back yards. The supervening question now relates to next year. There must be more of it and we believe this war garden exhibit will give impulse for more of it. The great farming interests are expected to do their share in making a vast increase of the grains next year and every bushel of that can be made two if the people in general will undertake to raise in war gardening the equivalent of the surplus wheat and rye and corn that is urged and expected.

Give your interest for a day to the war garden fair.

Reassurances that Governor Goodrich is now in practical certainty of full recovery affords the people of Indiana a deal of relief. The governor is needed today more than he has ever been at any other time of his life.

Considering the confusion in the coal industry and the absence of fuel from many bins, the conduct of the weather is simply beautiful.

So cruel, yet so kind!
Come, thunder out in cosmic symphony
My own aspiring mind!

I know full well thy heart that broods in thee,
Thou monastery of satiety,
That sings, and sleeps, and sings!
One step sideways is heaven's mystery—
One step to eyes and wings.

Keels cut thee like sharp swords; cold horror sweats,
Deep in thy changeless quiet; amulets
Lie hid in wrecks of fools;
And U-boats prow and struggle in black nets,
Like dying ghouls.

But now—my boys—to pay Time's oldest debts,
Ride down in boats beside Death's parapets,
Upon the breast full brave.
I pray thee favor these—they're Hope's cadets—
I pray thee see and save!

The European war has been a most important factor in the development of aviation, yet it has acted as a powerful hindrance to the general utilization of the flying machine. It has absorbed by far the greater part of the world's output of these mechanisms, and it has drawn into its activities trained aviators as rapidly as they have attained experience and skill. Not everything is commonly known, because not all can be told, concerning the degree of efficiency to which the belligerent nations have brought their military and naval aerial forces. Such information as the censors have permitted to become public, however, is of a character to convince the interested observer that, with the dawn of peace, aviation along general utilitarian lines will take a secure place beside railroads and shipping, and as a close competitor of both.

In the war zones, the machine and the operator have been compelled to contend against obstacles and to overcome difficulties that would never present themselves in normal conditions. Inventive genius has been constant and unremitting in its effort to render the enemy's aeroplanes and dirigibles harmless. Anti-aircraft guns are constantly sweeping the sky with the purpose of "bringing down" the sirmen, and, where the long range gun is not a factor, the aviator is running under, or over, or through fleets of enemy machines, his plane at once a target and a battery. Navigation in such circumstances is, perhaps, the least hazardous of the aviator's tasks. He manages and steers his machine mechanically while he is attacking or attempting to escape. It is not a question of meeting or overcoming unfavorable natural conditions; it is not a question of engine control; none of the dangers of which the early airmen were conscious, and none of the fears that beset them, troubles the aerial fighter. Keeping aloft with the aid of the planes and the engine has become a minor consideration; keeping aloft despite the projection or dropping of shells and peppering of bullets from earth and sky, is the principal thing.

Insecurity of aviation in the sense that obtained before the war is now given no more thought than is bestowed on insecurity of travel by steam, or motor car, or boat. The experimental stage in aerial navigation has passed. Experience at the front has made it apparent that, under normal conditions, travel by air is no more unsafe than travel by land or water. We believe the conviction is now strong and common among practical people, as well as among theorists, that, as soon as tranquility is restored to the world, the air will be, as it were, alive with flying machines, the great majority of which will be engaged in useful activities.

There was nothing premature, therefore, in the recommendation of the United States postoffice department to congress that $100,000 should be set aside for the purpose of putting into operation an aerial mail service between New York and Chicago. In asking for this money, Postmaster General Burleson said:

"The flights of Ruth Law and Victor Carlstrom were much more difficult and remarkable than the regular trips we are planning. They had no help along the route, whereas, we would provide everything that could be thought of."

It will seem like gross negligence of opportunity on the part of the United States government if, with all of its advantages, it does not, without needless delay, establish aerial mail service. The project need not be entered upon in a too extensive or costly fashion. It, at least, can be inaugurated. Then those familiar with the time and labor required to get the rural delivery, the parcel post and the postal savings bank systems started, and with the rapidity of the growth of those systems, once under way, will look forward to the speedy growth of aerial mails, when the first trunk line, that from New York to Chicago, for instance, is found to be in successful operation.

Improved and stabilized aeroplanes, as experience has shown, are almost as dependable as any other mode of carriage for passenger or freight now known. Improvements that have been checked in recent months, by reason of the urgency of orders upon the builders, will, with the end of the European conflict, be adopted. Nobody at all informed as to the present and prospective aeroplane will doubt the feasibility of a New York-Chicago service. Let that be successfully instituted and the demand for air routes will soon become as persistent and urgent as was the demand for rural postal routes in the early days of that service.

Mail by air routes! Why not?

There are some old cities in this country where marketing in person has never been abandoned by leading people. They have kept a continuing realization that the comfort of the household depends very much upon the keeper of the home has done her duty at the market. She pays for what she gets, and her accounts are never behind or confused. Everything which comes upon her table is seasonable and fresh. The best ordered home is never embarrassed by the delay of delivery wagons. Peace of mind and repose of soul there prevail to bless all who dwell under the roof.

A large element in the achievement of such a home atmosphere is a market basket that is never neglected nor forgotten. In the light of these things the men of the country welcome the crusade that is being made by the women's committee of the council of national defense, the home preparedness leagues and other organizations who urge the housewives of this nation to go to market as their grandmothers did, pick out their supplies, pay cash for them and carry them home.

ARGUMENTS FOR CORN.

In urging the more general use of corn meal for making bread Mr. Hoover does not stop with pointing out that there are four bushels of corn raised in this country to every one of wheat. The company will probably locate here, though they have had some very flattering offers from other places. They expect to employ at least fifty hands at the start. A large number of orders have been received and it will take steady employment to fill them.

IT IS A TITANIC TASK TO PROVIDE DOCTORS FOR THE U. S. ARMY

BY L. HARPER LEECH.

For every million fighting men—20,000 surgeons and doctors are organized to go to France. With them will go 40,000 doctors—about one-third of those now practicing in the United States.

These figures give some idea of the immense organizing job thrust upon Surgeon General Gorgas and the medical corps of the army. But they tell the least part.

Quality counts more than numbers. The soldiers are to be surrounded with every sanitary safeguard. The new kinds of wounds—mostly in the head, and abdomen—call for the highest surgical skill. The problems of shell shock call for nerve and mental specialists. The use of serums to combat infection and the new systems of camp and trench sanitation require the highest experts.

Added to the problem is the conserving of the health of the folk back home, and the workers in munitions plants and shipyards. As badly as skilled specialists are needed at the front, the organizers of the new medical army must provide for leaving enough skilled men in America.

Practically all the force must be raised by volunteering—as the kind of doctors the army wants are mostly over 31. Again, the doctor going abroad makes the highest sacrifice. He carries with him all his capital and earning capacity, unlike the business man who leaves behind a "going concern" to continue to earn for his family.

Medical societies are arranging a voluntary system by which the stay-at-home physicians are to turn over 35 per cent of the fees earned from the absent doctors' patients to their families or legal representatives.

On their return other doctors are pledged to abstain from treating their patients for a certain length of time, unless there is a formal request from the patient.

Already 13,000 have volunteered and are in uniform.

The big job now is classifying them. To do this there have been formed some twenty committees each headed by the most eminent specialist of that kind in the country.

The famous Mayo brothers head the committee on surgery and are backed up by specialists almost as eminent. Everything is being provided for, even to the accurate reporting and writing of the medical history of the war.

RETURN OF MARKET BASKET.

(Springfield, Mass., Republican.)

The war is leading this country and the world toward simpler living. Our part in the transformation from luxury to good sense has been as yet a small one, but we are moving that way. When food becomes difficult to obtain, nobody cares about fancy methods of transporting it. The thing then, is somehow to get the supplies. While women in Europe stand in bread lines, too many housekeepers in this country find it disconcerting to carry bundles home. The contrast establishes the foolishness of one of our social conventions, and we shall be doing wisely to make humble carrying popular before it becomes absolutely necessary.

The most intelligent shopper has always ignored the telephone and gone to market herself. Those hitherto unaccustomed to do this have been surprised to find how much better results are to be gained by picking out the meats, vegetables or fruits that are to enter the home. In this way, and by carrying purchases home the housekeeper knows that everything needed is on hand. In the old days market baskets were plentiful and the best housekeepers deemed

QUIETLY MARRIED. WEDNESDAY.

MRS. FRANK C. DEHAVEN.

MR. FRANK C. DEHAVEN.

Miss Winifred Louise Flagle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Flagle, and Mr. Frank C. DeHaven, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. DeHaven, were united in marriage on Wednesday noon at the home of the bride in East Third street. Rev. Edward W. Averill, the bride's pastor, officiated at the marriage ceremony in the presence of only the immediate family relatives. Miss Bessie Patrick, of Indianapolis, and Mr. Lee Johns, of this city, were the attendants to the bride and groom. The bride wore a beautiful plum color silver tone suit with blouse of gray and rose georgette crepe with gray shoes and gloves and a plum color velvet hat trimmed with a single ornament of guinea metal. The bride wore a corsage of bride roses and swansonia, and made a beautiful appearance. After the marriage service the wedding party was served a dinner in the dining room. The table was laid in chintz lace and in the center of cluster of three crystal candlesticks in silver holders and down each side two more single ones, all filled with bride roses and swansonia, made a lovely effect. The bride's cake stood on the buffet, and pink roses decorated the room. The house was very handsome with its decoration of rich fall flowers. The bride and groom stood in an archway that was banked on both sides with large gardeners of dahlias, pink and white in coloring, while on the piano and mantels and in other rooms were roses, dahlias, cosmos and in one place a jar of the vivid scarlet salvia. Miss Patrick, the bridesmaid, wore a silk gown of plaid mixture and a bouquet of Aaron Ward roses tied with ribbon. In the afternoon the bride and groom left on an automobile trip to Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and Rochester, N. Y. After Dec. 1 Mr. and Mrs. DeHaven will be at home to their friends in their own bungalow at 2125 Crescent avenue, which the groom has just built. The bride is charming and particularly of domestic tastes though she has devoted considerable time to piano study. Mr. DeHaven holds an important position with the Fisher Brothers Paper company, and he has the good will and confidence of all who know him.

"GIVE ME LIBERTY," WAS BAUER'S PLEA

But Landlady Held Door Shut and a Slap in the Eye Was Necessary.

POLICE ORDERED TO RELEASE PRISONER

Major Ryan Holds That Man Deserved to Go With Unit.

Police action in striking a member of the engineering unit and in locking up a recruit of that military organization is held by Maj. Thomas Ryan as being unwarranted and deserving of censure. The police released the soldier prisoner, who was Joseph L. Trotter, of Hammond. Saturday noon, after a member of the recruiting station force, following Major Ryan's order, had visited the city hall and demanded that the soldier be allowed to go away with the unit.

Members of the engineering unit were standing in front of the recruiting station awaiting final orders to entrain, Saturday noon, according to witnesses. The men were in civilian clothes and their suitcases were along the sidewalk at their feet.

Patrolman Joe Harris passing on East Main street halted in the midst of the party of engineers and told one of the men to stop looking people in the crowd, it is claimed. The man, who is a recruit from Hammond, answered the officer by stating that he was a soldier and that he did not mean to harm anybody, witnesses say.

The officer says that the man told him "I am no drunker than you were at 4 o'clock this morning."

One word brought on another. The soldier refused to leave the street as ordered by Harris.

The policeman struck the man and then was reaching for his club, apparently to strike the man again, when another soldier, Joseph L. Trotter, interfered. The intruder held Harris' club. Two other policemen ran to the scene in response to a call from a citizen.

A crowd which surged out into the street blocked the East Main street traffic before the affair ended. The two officers held Trotter. Patrolman Harris struck the man with his club at this time, witnesses say, and in the face of the fact that many people shouted "Don't hit him."

The patrol was called. Trotter was taken, with his suitcase, to the city jail. The man with whom the officer had first talked had disappeared in the crowd. Later an orderly from the recruiting station went to the city hall and after a talk with Lieutenant Harry Gihmane the prisoner was released.

"I expect to write a note to Mayor W. J. Hosey stating that I hold the attack upon the soldier as unwarranted," said Major Ryan.

Trotter and the thirty-three other members of the engineering company left the city at 1 o'clock.

SUCCOOTH, THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES

Achduth Vesholom Congregation to Keep Harvest Home Festival.

Religious services for the Feast of Tabernacles, or the harvest home festival, will be conducted Sunday evening at 7:45 at the Westminster Presbyterian church, West Berry street. Rabbi Aaron L. Weinstein will have as his sermon subject, "The Sacredness of Food." The welcome will be to all.

"Succooth," or the Feast of Tabernacles, falls on the 15th day of the 7th month Tishri, which this year coincides with Monday, October 1. The festival lasts eight days, the final day being known as the Feast of Conclusion. Only the first and the last days are regarded as sacred.

"Succooth" is a harvest festival. In scripture it is known as the "Feast of Ingathering" and is ordained in Exodus xxiii-16 and xxiv-22. It is associated with the journey of the Israelites through the wilderness. In Leviticus xxiii-42 it is commanded that the Israelites "dwell in booths seven days" in commemoration of the fact that Israel dwelt in booths when God brought them out of Egypt.

In this festival stress is laid upon the Providence of God evidenced by the richness and bounty of nature. By it the ideal of Judaism is expressed that God is the dispenser of all things. The fruitfulness of the soil, the teeming bounty of the earth, the Jew is reminded, are the gifts of the Giver of all life. Gratitude is due to Him alone. Man, in the midst of the many blessings gives thanks to Him who is the source of all that maintains life.

The synagogue decorated with flowers and fruit and products of the field, and the services of the festival express grateful recognition of the beneficence of God.

ROSCOE JOHNSON IN POETICAL OUTBURST

Writes Letter from Ft. McPherson, Georgia, to Friend at Sheldon.

Roscoe Johnson, a member of the medical department, barracks K, at Fort McPherson, Georgia, has written to Miss Mable Baker, at Sheldon, an interesting letter in poetry, as follows:

"I'm in the army and working for Uncle Sam, and hope to soon be fighting, for very brave I am. I'm working in the kitchen, but the work is easy though and with choice food so handy you should see me make it go. I'm in love with Fort McPherson and my kitchen duty, too. Only two things I like better; that is home, sweet home, and you."

"Would like to be in Indiana; in the good old, grand old state, yet I'll work for Uncle Sammy and become a doctor great. And when I get back I'll tell you, I believe one thing I'll do. I will find some girl and marry, some good girl I don't care who."

"Gee, it's warm down here in Georgia, but it's very cool at night, so I always do good sleeping for the weather is just right. First, I go to see the movies at the Y. M. C. A., and of course I get some paper to write letters on next day."

"Soldiers are not quite so wicked as some people seem to think. All of them were once civilians and a few were fond of drink. Yes, a soldier may be noble or can be a wicked guy; so it is with the civilian, who does not for honor die. You will always find a striving to be clean and pure of heart, loving right and quite despising Satan's crafty, cunning art."

"How are all in Indiana. Hope the folks back there are well, and you know I'd like to see them; it is needless that to tell. Well, I'm using up my paper and can't think of much to say, so I have to close this letter and write more some other day. Well, good-bye and may God bless you, as I've often prayed before. So write soon and a long letter and I'll love you more and more."

BATTERY B LEAVES SOON FOR FRANCE

Earl Oberkeiser Writes His Brother That the Boys Are Now Packing Up.

That Battery B, of Fort Wayne, and also Battery D and other members of the Rainbow division will leave in the next few days for France is indicated in a letter which Earl Oberkeiser, a member of Battery B, has written to his brother, William Oberkeiser, under the date of September 26 from Long Island.

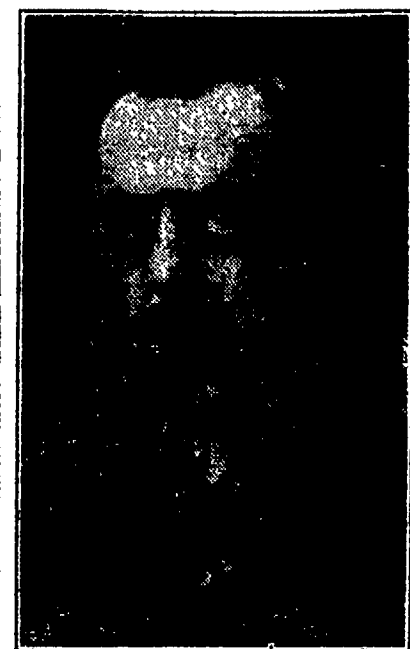

It states that the impression is made that the division is to locate in Cuba for the winter for training, but as each member has been supplied with two new heavy suits, and overcoat and raincoat, and gloves, his impression is that they will land in the trenches for training, which will be quite satisfactory, as he thinks the sooner the Rainbow division gets a poke at the Kaiser, the sooner the war will end.

The writer states that he has been promoted to the rank of sergeant, having twenty men under him, and they are supplied with a six inch Howitzer gun and will be delighted to operate the same on the enemy. He is hale and hearty, and is enjoying life as well as can be expected.

NEGRO PROBLEM GROWS FOR CHARITY WORKERS

Officers of Organization Are Elected for Next Year.

The effort of providing for needy negroes in Fort Wayne, which is a growing problem, engaged a part of the discussion at a meeting of the local organization of Associated Charities, Tuesday. The number of families of colored people who are soliciting aid of the charity workers is increasing with the influx of negroes into Fort Wayne.

There are several cases in the districts of the city where the colored population is collected that reveal scenes of squalor and filth when investigated by charity workers, it was brought out. Several families of negroes are living in one small house in some cases, it was said.

At the present time most of the negroes who have been attracted to Fort Wayne by the industrial opportunities which the city offers, are working. The condition may grow to serious proportions this winter, however, it was shown.

The following officers were elected for the Fort Wayne Associated Charities for the ensuing year: William H. Scheiman, president; Mrs. G. W. McCaskey, vice president; O. E. Mohler, secretary, and E. H. McDonald, treasurer.

Delegates were appointed to attend the state charities and corrections conference at Laporte, next week. Those who will go from Fort Wayne are: Mrs. G. W. McCaskey, Mrs. F. J. Kanaga, Miss Minetta Baum and O. E. Mohler.

The rolling mill district was made into a separate city section for charity work. Rev. T. P. Potts will act as supervisor over the district and will report conditions to the charities board.

MAY MAKE AEROPLANE MOTOR IN FORT WAYNE

Proposition Up to Realty Men at Tuesday's Meeting.

Airplane and automobile motors manufactured in Fort Wayne may become a reality within a short time if a proposition made to the Fort Wayne Real Estate exchange at its meeting at the Country club, Tuesday night, is carried out. The prospects for such a concern to add to the list of local industries appear to hinge upon the placing of some of the stock of the company in this city.

L. E. Jerome and Benjamin J. Cline, of the Elgin Motors company of Chicago, put the proposition up to the members of the real estate board. The Chicago men claim they have a motor for airplanes and automobiles that surpasses any now being manufactured and say they do not ask any site or any bonus for the location of the plant in this city.

Cline is the designer of the motor. Mark V. Rinehart, of Indianapolis, secretary of the state organization of real estate men, spoke at the meeting on plans for holding the state convention at South Bend in October.

FARMER'S WIFE HURT WHEN CAR HITS WAGON

Mrs. Hachmyer Hurlled to Street When Vehicle is Wrecked.

Mrs. William Hachmyer, who lives on rural route No. 8, near Fort Wayne, is critically hurt, early Thursday morning, when a street car struck the rear of the produce wagon, on which the woman was riding with her husband, at the corner of Calhoun and Berry streets. Mrs. Hachmyer was thrown to the pavement. She received serious body hurts and lacerations. She is being cared for in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Oswald Bricker, on Lehigh street.

The horse attached to the market wagon was thrown to the pavement and its legs badly adraided by contact with the street, when the street car, going north, struck the vehicle which was proceeding east. The rear left wheel of the wagon was demolished. Tomatoes, cantaloupes and baskets of string beans were scattered along the street in profusion. William Hachmyer leaped from the wagon as the crash came and was not hurt.

Many citizens gathered about the wreckage, at the southwest corner of the court house, while the horse was being extracted from the tangled harness and the scattered fruit gathered up by many helping hands. The police patrol was called to take Mrs. Hachmyer, who fainted twice on the scene of the accident, to the home of her daughter. Effects of the nervous shock makes her condition critical, it is reported.

Motorman on the street car stated that he expected the farmer to stop before reaching the tracks at the corner. The street car man says that he sounded his bell before advancing to the corner. The wagon was driven directly across the path of the oncoming car, it is said. Hachmyer says he expected the car to stop on the south side of Berry street and the carrier only slowed down and then advanced.

WEDNESDAY

Sensational charges are made in an affidavit filed Wednesday in the superior court by Pearl Vandine in answer to his wife's complaint for divorce.

Vandine sets out that the separation was caused by improper conduct of his wife. He denies that he ever struck her or threatened to kill her; that the only thing that has ever caused trouble in their home and which was the cause of their separation was the plaintiff's infatuation for another man, whose name is Dal McDaniels; that several months before their separation Mrs. Vandine agreed with him in the presence of McDaniels that they would no longer continue being together and would not from that time on have anything to do with each other, but since then and previous to their separation he had seen his wife and McDaniels frequently in each other's company.

CAPTIVATED BY LOVE.

Lydia Harter Sues William Bayless for Breach of Promise.

Declaring that during her courtship with an alleged suitor, Bayless was formed, moulded and trained by his plastic hand into his ways and thought and that her heart opened and expanded under the radiance of his smile, Lydia Harter has filed suit in the superior court against Bayless asking $3,000 for breach of promise.

She sets forth in her complaint filed through Attorney Hans Meland that she met Bayless in February, 1914. Friendship soon ripened into love of the deep, abiding kind, and after a courtship of several months they agreed to get married. She was carried to the highest pinnacle of happiness, she declares. Life seemed more beautiful nor wonderful; the birds never sang so sweetly and the flowers were never before more radiant. She was the happiest woman in all the world.

But it was not always to be thus. Bayless' love and apparent devotion seemed to weaken. Investigation revealed that her suspicions were not wrong, and the revelation has broken her heart and made her the most miserable person on earth. She says she is confident that Bayless is about to marry another woman.

The plaintiff sets forth that the defendant is the owner of considerable property and that he earns from $8 to $10 a day.

BEN LEHMAN HAS PASSED

Well Known Fort Wayne Merchant is Dead in Chicago.

Was Not Known to Be in Ill Health

Death Comes as a Shock to His Friends in This City.

Ben Lehman, prominent local merchant, proprietor of the Lehman Clothing company, died Tuesday morning at Chicago at the age of 57 years.

BEN LEHMAN.

Ben Lehman, prominent local merchant, proprietor of the Lehman Clothing company, died Tuesday morning at Chicago at the age of 57 years. Mr. Lehman had been spending the summer at Charlevoix, Mich., endeavoring to gain strength after a period of illness. Funeral services will be held in Chicago Thursday morning.

While it was known that Mr. Lehman had been for some time indisposed, his friends here had no notion that he was in a serious state of ill health and his death comes to them as a sudden and great shock.

Ben Lehman had been a prominent merchant of Fort Wayne for thirty years. He was a member of the Order of Elks and the Knights of Pythias lodge. He belonged to Achuth Veshalom congregation.

Mr. Lehman was one of the most active workers in every movement for civic improvement. He had been allied with every important city enterprise during the past fifteen years. In business dealings he was known as a man whose word carried the strength of his bond made good.

Started on Small Basis. Ben Lehman's start in business in Fort Wayne was on a meagre scale. He had a small part of what is now the Lehman Clothing store, 808-811 South Calhoun street. The store and business have grown from years of painstaking effort.

The family lived at 508 West Berry street until a few months ago, when preparations were made to move to Chicago. It was thought well to spend several weeks along the lake beach because of the husband and father's delicate health. He had shown symptoms of heart trouble.

It was not known on Monday that Mr. Lehman was in a critical state. His death came early Tuesday morning and shortly after a physician had been summoned. Heart failure is given as the cause for his demise.

Word of the death was sent to Frank Clemens, manager of the Lehman store. The store is closed. Many Fort Wayne business men will go to Chicago to attend the funeral on Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Surviving are the widow and two children, Katherine, aged 16, and Lawrence, aged 9. There are also two sisters and a brother, Mrs. Harry Meese and Mrs. Benjamin, of Cincinnati, and Ike Lehman, of Chicago.

Rabbi Aaron L. Weinstein, of Achuth Veshalom temple, of which congregation Mr. Lehman was long a member in this city, will go to Chicago to conduct the funeral services.

Dr. Rosenthal and Dr. L. Park Drayer visited the camp and were highly impressed with the conditions in general.

Sunday was another visiting day and the camp was thronged with people who came early and brought with them lunch baskets filled with good things to eat. Eats of any kind are always appreciated by soldier boys.

Get Second Shot. All the men who came to the camp in the last forty per cent received the second shot in the arm of typhoid fever Sunday morning. Those men on whom the first vaccination did not take were scratched the second time, and recovered from the effects sufficiently to be about. Nearly all suffered from a light fever Sunday night.

The men who came to the camp with their first five per cent are finished with their shots in the arm, having received their final one last Tuesday.

Mrs. Harry Wagner, of Fort Wayne, visited her husband at the camp Saturday and Sunday.

All the men are in good health.

radish or sugar beet or a ten-eyed potato will have their product on exhibit.

Nearly 150 entries have been made already and others are urged to get in line in the effort to show what city farmers of Fort Wayne can raise.

The object of the displays is to show that food can be raised in the city. The motive for the several addresses will be to tell people how to raise more fruits on little back yards. Methods of killing insects will be told in an interesting way. Fall plowing to blight insect germs will be made to appear like a romantic adventure.

Above all will be held out the need for America to awaken in the line of producing more food. The fair is the first step in the movement for securing a more concerted food growing effort next year.

Young women from the Boss Manufacturing company will distribute pledges among the people in the evening. The cards which are to be signed will express the purpose of planting and raising more food bullets for beating the Kaiser.

Here is the program.

The following is the program as revised by the Food Relief organization: 1:30 to 2—Band concert.

2 p. m.—Address by Dr. W. A. Stone, president of Purdue university.

Selection—Elks' band.

3:00 p. m.—Address by Dr. Christian Sihler, of New York City.

Selection—Elks' band.

4:00 p. m.—Address to Boys' working reserve by Carl Vrooman.

Selection—Elks' band.

7:30 p. m.—Band concert.

8:00 p. m.—Community singing led by Prof. William Miles.

8:30 p. m.—Address by Carl Vrooman.

Dr. W. A. Stone, president of Purdue university, is one of the most forceful speakers in the west on agricultural subjects. He will portray in an unimpaired fashion the needs of the land and the methods for subduing adversity.

Dr. Christian Sihler, a former Fort Wayne man, knows the practical ways of gardening. He was a pro-German at the opening of the war but has been convinced that the German method is one of selfish greed. He will tell why.

Carl Vrooman is one of the national officials who is close up against the food problem.

The Fort Wayne Real Estate exchange will banquet the three speakers at the Commercial club, Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock. More than 400 invitations have been sent out. Citizens who did not get invitations are welcome to attend the affair if they will arrange for a plate at once.

Promoters of the affair are anxious to give the visitors a warm reception.

Frank Hilgeman, head of the local food relief association and life of the free fair movement, has arranged to have food displays brought to the ball park grounds up until noon on Wednesday. He wishes it understood that farmers may also bring in fruit to show the city folks that the rural fields are helping win the war.

French reports today that ten persons were killed and 33 injured.

While Britishers are urging reprisals for the German attacks on London, the French are actually conducting such retributive enterprises. Sunday they bombed the German city of Stuttgart, 100 miles behind the frontier, and last night the reprisals were continued on a larger scale.

Stuttgart was again visited by French airmen and the Prussian city of Frankfurt-on-the-Main, with about 200,000 population and more than 125 miles from the French border, also was subjected to aerial attack. The Prussian towns of Treves and Coblenz were other places bombed by the French raiders.

Berlin's account of yesterday's fighting on the Flanders front in which the British admitted the pushing back of two of their advanced posts near the southeast corner of Polygon wood, claims the capture of ground here by the Germans to a depth of more than 500 yards. Russia's northern front have again shown aggressiveness, Petrograd reporting an advance of a mile by the Russian vanguards south of the railway in the Kronenberg-Spital-Grounds sector.

News is received of a revolt against the Russian controlling element in Turkestan, central Asia, which is regarded as serious, the revolutionists having obtained control of the military and installed a revolutionary government.

must pay their wages; we must, as a humane nation, support their dependent families while they are risking and giving their very lives for us; we must supply them with a reasonable amount of life insurance. We destroy their insurability and conscript almost the whole of their earning power when we draft them and send them to the front. We can do no less than reconstitute their destroyed insurability and their diminished earning power.

Must Dominate Air. "We must increase, strengthen and maintain our navy; we must provide a predominant fleet of airplanes and air fighters; we must build a great merchant fleet so that our long range of commerce with our gallant soldiers in France may be maintained and our commerce carried across the seas in defiance of the German kaiser and his submarine; we must succor our noble compatriots who arms—the British, French, Italians, Belgians and Russians—by lending them money with which they can buy arms and food and other supplies in our markets. All these things must be done and done quickly.

"It is upon the treasury of the United States that every demand in time of war focuses, because everything goes back to the gold pile. The problem of the American treasury is the problem of the American banker and the problem of the American people; it is the problem of keeping the treasury supplied with the means to carry forward these great objects under the direction of the commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States, your president.

Yast Sum for Army. "The money that we are raising by taxation and by bond issues is being devoted to these purposes. More than $8,500,000,000 of the money that you are going to provide this fiscal year is being expended or will be expended upon your army—upon from 1,800,000 to 2,500,000 of the bravest and most gallant soldiers that ever donned the uniform.

"And your navy, recruited to the full with brave tars, under whose uniforms beat the true hearts of American freemen, is being built up, equipped and manned with this money."

The Indianapolis district which comprises sixty-two counties of the state is called upon to furnish $95,200,000 of the loan.

Fatal to Fall. If by any possible chance a single loan offered by the United States government to the American people should fail it would be a most fatal disaster, and have worse effect than the loss of a great battle, said Secretary McAdoo, in a speech to a mass meeting of persons interested in boosting the second liberty loan throughout the state here today. He made the statement concerning the effect of the failure of a loan after having told how the United States treasury is the heart of the war machine and feels the shock of everything done through the expenditure of money.

The "gold pile" in the treasury must be kept as plentifully supplied as the coal pile of a business, Mr. McAdoo said.

fought the stubborn flames, which were snoudering in the heart of the coal heap. Five streams of water were finally able to subdue the blaze.

Damage is to the coal bunkers and to the coal elevating machinery, which are a part of the automatic coal stacking machinery at the top of the one story building. There is little damage from loss of coal.

Fireman Miller mounted a ladder, which had been placed against the one story shed. When six feet from the ground the ladder turned. The fireman fell to the ground bringing with him the line of hose. He was assisted to the automobile of Chief Hilbrecht and taken to his home where a physician was called.

BOND SALES GOING WELL

York could not be learned today, but it is variously estimated at from $250,000 to $500,000. While a large over subscription is hoped for, the campaign managers are taking no chances of a failure to place at least one-half of the $3,000,000 issue in this federal reserve bank district. Posters that both invite and demand subscriptions are being distributed and the net work of committees constituting a vast army of workers are organized to carry the meaning of the loan into each home in the district.

Today it was announced that still another army of workers was being organized among industrial workers to be known as the "Rainbow division," to thoroughly canvass each industry.

Subscriptions thus far reported to the liberty loan headquarters range in size from $50, for which there were thousands of subscriptions, to $10,000,000 by the New York Life Insurance company.

The largest individual purchase was for $250,000 by John B. Manning, Ohio, or large subscriptions include $5,000,000 each by the Southern Pacific and the Union-Pacific Railroad companies and $2,500,000 by the Manufacturers' Trust company, of Brooklyn.

SOLDIERS BUY BONDS.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Added impetus to the campaign for subscriptions to the new liberty loan was expected tonight when Wm. G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, will address a patriotic meeting.

While no figures were given out at the end of the first day's canvass by several hundred bond salesmen and committees from various organizations, the managers of the campaign said results were "eminently satisfactory."

The largest subscription was by Swift & Co., which took $1,500,000 of the bonds. At Fort Sheridan, where four thousand student officers are in training, much interest in the loan is evidenced. Col. James A. Ryan, commandant, set an example for his men.

"A colonel's salary is $4,000 a year," he said. "I'll buy bonds with one-fourth of it."

Each of three regiments at the camp has chosen representatives to act on a board which will solicit subscriptions among the men.

NEW POSTOFFICE CLERK.

Bluffton, Ind., Sept. 27.—A dispatch from Washington, D. C., announces the appointment of George T. Albright, former deputy sheriff, to a clerkship in the Bluffton postoffice. Mr. Albright has been serving as a substitute in the postoffice for a considerable length of time, for a time as substitute carrier and as a clerk since J. E. Swaim entered the officers' reserve training camp.

HAS BUSY DAY.

Van Wert, O., Sept. 27.—It probably wasn't to escape conviction, but Andrew Lybold, 89, a resident of Union township, fell a victim to Cuid yesterday and was married to Hattie Norris, 61, of Scott, by the Rev. E. K. Gamble. On the same day Mr. Lybold, while he was in the court house, filed a suit in the common pleas court against his son, William Lybold, for $144.

"IS MARRIAGE A FALEYURE?" EDDY TORIUL

Tother day whilst we was a settin in our eddytorial offis twiddling our thumbs & ponderin on the visisytoods of life & wonderin whot in Sam Hill we was a going to dash off our next eddytorial about who should drop in to see us exsept our well knowd townsman & respected citizen, Rasmus Snyder.

Poor Ras peard to be full of gloom & melancholly as he floped down in a chair and heaved a sigh which seemd to come clean from his boots. Then he up and pourd out his heart to us by saying that he had jest had the misforchoon to spill some ile on the kitchen floor at home whilst he was greasin his rifle perparatory to going huntin into the woods for whatever he could find, and when his wife, who is cleannern soap, seen the grease spots on the floor, she driv him outen the house with the broom, hitting poor Ras a couple of belts alongside the ear with same and told him not to dare stick his nose into the house again until he could lern to be more tidy. Matildy (thats Rasses wife name) told him that she calikulated the proper place for him would be out in the sty with the pigs and not in a house which she had slaved and scrubd and scourd to keep clean.

Ras was turrible blue and said unless Matildys temper cooled off afore night he diddnt know where hed lay his head unless in the hay-mow. After Ras had related his tail of woe he askd us why in thunderashion we diddnt write a eddytorial on the subjeckt of "The Gollin Yoke of Matrimony" or something like that.

While we be ready to admit that the yoke of matrimony sometimes golls, so to speak, we wont admit that it does in evry instants so instid of writing a eddytorial on the subjeckt as Ras put it we will spread ourself by endeavoring to anser the question, "Is Marriage a Faleyure?"

It don't allus foller that jest becuz Ras made a turrible mistake when he led Matildy to the altar that marriage is a faleyure for evry other husbind. Marriage pears to be a awful faleyure as fur as Ras is concernd becuz the poor feller ever sint his weddin day has been bossd around from piller to post and back agin & aint been able to call his sole his own when Ma-tildys around & for this reason he has the sympathy of the entire commoonity, but we can pint proudly to other marriages in Bingville which has been successses ever sint they happend.

As edditor of the Bugle we maintain that when a man gets married he allus takes more or less of a chanst. When a man takes a woman for better or for worse there is cases where the man gits the worst of it. Marriage is more or less of a lottery & unless a feller is willin to take a chanst on whot he draws outen the matrymonial bag he had better continue to live a life of single blessedness.

The great trouble with gittin married as we look at it is that most yung folks afore they git hitchd allus puts their best foot forrerd and no matter how long they have been keepin company they never quite know each other until after they become spliced. Then they become their own nacheral selfs & it generally happens that either the husbing or wife starts in to boss and keeps it up until deth dem do part.

However fur be it from us to discouridge the sakred instotooshion of marriage. Whot would become of Bingville we ask if marriages ceased in our midst? Why it would deteriorate into obnoctshus desoetood, we anser! 'Thats whot would become of it! It wouldnt be no time until our rival town of Hardscrabble would be ahead of us in populasation! Not only that but whot would become of Rev. Moore our beluvud pastor of the Bingville church? Sint the church is behind so fur on Rev. Moores salary he has to depend a good eal on whot he urns in marriage fees which is never less than $2 (becuz Rev. Moore wont take the responsibility of hitchin together two loving hearts for less than $2 as the contractting parties sees fit to give.

In conclousshion yung men dont hang off leadin your blushin bride to the altar jest becuz Ras Snyder has made a mess of his marriage, but let Rasses case be a sollum warnink to you to go slow and be keerkful when you pick out a fair partner for life.

Is Your Dog Licensd?

Seth Dewberry our lon harted town constabul desires us to inform several owners of dogs in Bingville who up to this time has failed to pay their dog licenses that unless they do so instanter he is justfide in shootin their dogs on sight the 1st time he gits his eyes on em.

Seth says there is as menny as a dozen dogs in Bingville runnin around loose without licenses and without eny further notis he is labul to let daylight into said dogs eny minnit and ask questions afterwards.

Constabul Dewberry also wishes us to inform all dog owners that the licenses which is issued to their respective dogs dont entil said dogs to bite folks neither. There aint a word in the dog licens which gives a dog or thorty to bite a innocent bystander or enybuddy else and if you dont believe it read your dog licens keerkful and you'll find out. If you have a bitin dog you'll haft to muzzle him (or her as the case may be) or take the consequences or havin a law suit on your hands if he (or she as the case may be) takes holt of enybuddy. Kindly guvren yourself according if you aint paid your dog licenses.

Sossiety

We notis that the soshial whirl season of Bingville has begin to start up agin with the arival of cooler wether and all signs indykate that we be a going to have a turrible gay season in our midst this cumming winter.

Miss Sally Hoskins give a gay and festive huskin bee in her Pas barn last Saturday evg which was attended by a whole passel of yung folks includin boys and girls from hereabouts. The barn was lit up with lanterns speshial for the occasion and after considerable corn was husked refreshments consistin of new cider, appels and doughnuts was served to them present who done justice to same. The only dissatisfackshion there was on the part of the gists was that Miss Sally who was the hostess of the gladsome occasion got kissed eight times by Rufe Packard (who she is keepin company with) becuz Rufe found eight red ears of corn and them is all the ears of red corn that was found during the evg. It is the general opinyun that Miss Sally found all the red ears there was before the huskin and hid em where Rufe could find em all. It looks suspishus enyhow.

Miss Amelia Tucker Bingvilles rainin sossiety queen give a very select party to her home last Thursday evg from 7 to 10 p m which was attended by the alect of Bingville. There was only 10 cuppels present consistin of the upper crust of our soshial fabric, as we mite say. The gists indulged in charades, orthurs, gessing contests and other middle-school games includin refreshments and departed for their respective homes consious of a evg very enjoyable spent.

These is about all the sossiety items we happen to think of at the present moment, exsept that Brad Hinsley sold a pig on the hoof to Heck Winslow last wk. Considerashion paid not knowd, but it is whisperd that Heck must of had to pay at least $15 for the pig.

LATER—On due reflekkshion it occurs to us that traps the above last item which we jest dashed-off dont exactly come under the head of "Sossiety News." Be that as it may however we will let it stand as wrote them go to the trouble to classify it proper.—Editor Bugle.

Personal Mentshion

If there aint very menny "Personal Mentshions" under the above heading it aint our falt—its your falt becuz you aint done nothing to speak of worthy of mentshion. You allus ort to pause in your tracks and reflekt before you blame us for lack of news.

It looks like rain as we go to press, but then clouds aint allus a sign of a shower—they may blow over.

Ole Dad Henderson said there was jest a tetch of frost on the ground and bidins last Tuesday mornin when he got awake and looked outen the window about the crack of day, but nobuddy else who was up as arly as Dad reports frost. Whot Dad probly seen on the ground was dust instid of frost—Dads eyes aint eny too good enyhow.

Please keep in mind you advertisers who advertises in the Boogole from time to time (we wish you would do so of fener) that this newspaper circulates at the very best families in and around Bingville and thats the class of folks who you want to read your ads. Them as dont take the Bugle in our midst is far apart, few in a hill and dont amount to much.

The deacons of the Bingville church is a going to hold a mtg next Tuesday evg in the basement of the church to consider the perpriety of purchasing a new bell for the church to replace the present one which has been cracked for lo these menny yrs and whenever it is rung gives forth a morntul, crackshured sound which sounds more like a ole dishpan than a churchbell. The sooner a new bell is instald in the church belfry the better the attendants at church will be. Then members cant give as an excoose that they didnt hear the bell.

Jed Peters our intelligent teacher of the Bingville school opened the winter term last Monday mornin at 9 a. m. sharp with 13 skollers on hand seven of which was boys and the rest girls. Jed made a breef speech in which he stated that he expected the skollers to behave theifselfs or take the consyguines and he hoped to learn them considerable during the term pervidin their skulls wasnt too thick. Before school let out at 4 p. M. Jed had licked four outen the 7 boys and made three of the girls stand on the floor with their faces to the wall. Jed says he considers this a purty good record for the 1st day.

Ezra Underwood complains that some fiend in huming form helpd theifself to his wheelbarrow last wk and forgot to return same and being as Ez dunno who done it hes in a good eal of a quandry. Ez says whoever took that wheelbarrow had better return same or theyre likely to find theifself in the hands of the law. Considering the way the deacon has skun so menny folks in hoss trades in our midst he ort to be heard that sermon and to conduck hisself according hereafter.

Doc Livermore our huming speshialist & horse veterinary is a good eal more cheerkful & optimistick the last cuppel of wks than he has been all summer. Doc says he never seen sitch a helthy place as Bingville has been ever sint spring being as he diddnt have skeerced eny pashents a tail and was so discourridged with practisism medisin that he had a noshion to give up his noble perfeshion, but sint the cooler wether has set in several has roomvitz and colds and one thing and another and now Doc is more hopeful and looks for a eppydenick of grip to hit Bingville soon.

Miss Ellen Hoskins says she has a ranged for a musickian to come from the co seat and tune her melodeum for her. We are glad to hear this and so will all her nabers being as the noise that melodeum makes at present is worsen the wail of a lost soul, or several lost souls for that matter.

Bill Hepburn our arttistick blacksmith was indispesed last Sabbath and remained in bed all day with a turrible splittin headache. Bills indisposishion was due to the fact that he made a trip to the co seat the day before and come home considerable under the wether as usual. Bill was to work in the shop Monday but he felt purty bilyus.

These is about all the "Lokal Brevities" we can skeer up at the present writing and this bein the case we will now bring these lines to a abrupt close as follers:

MORE CRIME AT MUNCIE

Nearly Twice as Many Criminal Cases in Delaware County Than Here.

MURPHY PRAISES POLICE FORCE

Neighboring County Prosecutor Comments on Conditions Here.

How Allen county maintains a state wide reputation for good order was the topic which lead Prosecutor Murphy, of Delaware county, to call upon Prosecutor Frank Emrick Thursday afternoon, when the Muncie man was passing through Fort Wayne on that date.

"Considering the size and population of the county there is no district in Indiana with fewer big 'criminal cases,'" was the compliment which Murphy paid Allen county.

The Delaware county official stated that there have been fifty-three jury cases in the circuit court of Delaware county this year. Allen county has had three jury trials for criminal cases.

The docket for Delaware county holds 700 criminal cases for the year. Allen county has registered 378 such cases.

"Besides having a population of industrious citizens we think that an effort to gain the confidence of the people in our work and the collaboration of Fort Wayne police are the big factors in what appears to be the success of the county in keeping down crime," said Prosecutor Emrick to the visitor.

"The Muncie police department is a poor organization to begin with," stated Prosecutor Murphy. "Certain things are allowed to go on in Muncie which tend to encourage the blind tiger operations. Other forms of lawlessness, which are apparently forbidden, are constantly brought to the county officers' attention."

"I give the Fort Wayne police force much of the credit for crime suppression in Allen county," said Prosecutor Emrick. "The local officers have worked hand in hand with me and with the force of the sheriff. The stand which Chief Lenz has taken in the matter of city vice has been a great factor."

"You spoke of the confidence of the people. How is that gained when most law breakers look upon the statutes as documents of persecution?" asked Prosecutor Murphy.

Incident at Woodburn. The Allen county officer cited the case of a meeting which he held in Woodburn two weeks ago. The prosecutor had heard of several cases of petty crime in that village. He had learned that young boys were drinking liquor and that Woodburn citizens were furnishing rum to the lads.

Prosecutor Emrick called a meeting of Woodburn citizens. He delivered a talk which was also an ultimatum. He explained the law on the matters which had come to his attention. He asked the people of the town to aid him in prosecuting any new cases of the kind which should come up.

There was a general cry of "Yes! Yes!" The meeting, which had been attended by 300 men and women, broke up with much handshaking. No reports of crime continuation have come from Woodburn since.

Prosecutor Emrick has used the same methods in other towns of the county where he halted gambling and ordered slot machines removed.

"And I understand that you fellows go after the big boys, regardless of their politics," said Prosecutor Murphy.

"You will have to get that from the records," answered Attorney Emrick.

STRAUSS SPEAKS TO BUSINESS MEN

Details of Working Reserve Organization Outlined by Federal Representative.

Isaac D. Strauss, of Ligonier, federal state chairman of the United States Boys' Working Reserve, spoke to an assemblage of business men at the Commercial club Saturday. His talk was largely a matter of explaining in detail the plan of the working reserve.

The greatest effort toward utilizing boys' service will come in 1918, Mr. Strauss said. A premium is to be placed upon farm labor and the period of service necessary to gain one of Uncle Sam's medals will be considerably less, according to Strauss, for the boys who work on the farm.

Mr. Strauss said that the reason for this was that the farm work as a rule paid much less than work in factories and that therefore it was a greater act of patriotism for the boys to take up farm work. The medals which will be given to the boys are struck off by the United States government and cannot be imitated, borrowed, sold or exchanged in any way. Mr. Strauss declared that the only way for a boy to get one of the medals with a service bar is to actually put in the time required in the factory or on the farm under the supervision of the reserve.

No boys will be placed in homes where the character of the farmer is in any way questionable and Mr. Strauss said that these homes would be thoroughly investigated before the boys were located. The meeting was attended by A. L. McDonald, who is in charge of the working reserve work in the city, and also by D. O. McComb, who has charge in the county outside of Fort Wayne.

Growing Royal Hybrid Walnuts in California

By R. E. SMITH

The name Royal was first given by Mr. Burbank to a supposed hybrid between the northern California black and Juglans nigra, the eastern black. From the first published description of this variety, however, it would appear that the staminate parent, supposedly a northern California black walnut, was in reality itself a Royal hybrid, a tree showing a very rough, small nut which must certainly contain more or less nigra blood. Such trees are quite common about the streets of Santa Rosa. The Burbank Royal is presumably, therefore, at least three-quarters nigra and one-quarter northern California black.

Following Mr. Burbank's naming of this hybrid, the term Royal has come to be applied in California to all hybrids resulting from crossing between different black walnut species. There are many of these trees in the State, particularly about the older towns like Santa Rosa, San Jose, Vacaville, Wilton, Chico, Red Bluff and other points in the Sacramento Valley, Stockton, Santa Barbara and other places. It is indeed difficult to find in the State a straight Juglans nigra, except those grown from nuts brought directly from the East. It is rather remarkable that the California species should hybridize so freely with nigra, inasmuch as their blooming periods are quite distinct, the true nigra coming several years earlier and holding their foliage later than true nigra, a different aspect of the tree and foliage which cannot be definitely described, and the fact that the nuts are somewhat smoother and vary in other ways from those of true nigra, although various trees of the latter species have nuts of very different form and size.

environment, causing a breaking up of the original species, but further study has brought us to believe that these are really hybrids. We are led to this opinion from the fact that the percentage of these unusual trees varies from year to year and that among the seedlings of these California nigra trees there are always some typical of the species, and some years a great many. Moreover, the progeny of certain trees are almost all straight nigra and the proportion of such normal seedlings is in inverse ratio to the opportunities for crossing with other walnut species.

Juglans nigra was planted quite commonly with eastern nuts in California in the very earliest years of the American occupation. Thus there are many large trees of the species now growing in the State. The trees are in almost every instance closely associated with specimens of both California species and also more or less with the English walnuts. Many nuts from these original trees have been planted, and again those from the next generation, down to three or four perhaps more generations. The result has been that about the older towns in the central and northern part of the State, trees may be found which present every degree of gradation between nigra and the California species and also many trees which have only slight resemblance to either, but might easily be classed as entirely new species if their origin was not known. It is hardly worth while to describe the individual trees of this sort, so numerous are they in the State. In some cases it is difficult or impossible to distinguish between hybrids and true nigra, as the nuts and foliage are very similar. Most of them, however, can be pretty certainly picked out on account of their unusual vigor of growth, the fact that they come out earlier and hold their foliage later than true nigra, a different aspect of the tree and foliage which cannot be definitely described, and the fact that the nuts are somewhat smoother and vary in other ways from those of true nigra, although various trees of the latter species have nuts of very different form and size.

The Royal hybrid is very different from the Paradox in regard to productivity, being in almost every instance very precocious and an unusually heavy bearer of nuts. The most productive nut trees which we have ever seen are some of these Royal hybrid walnuts. In favorable seasons the ground beneath them will be covered several inches deep with nuts, while there are still so many on the tree that it is difficult to see where there could have been room for those which are upon the ground.

The cross between nigra and the northern California species is commonly illustrated in all the towns above mentioned. The Burbank Royal is an unusually fine tree, being of tall, erect growth, with a clean, uniform trunk, and of exceptionally vigorous and rapid development. It is a heavy bearer of very large nuts of a type more closely resembling those of nigra than those of the California species. The nuts, in fact, would pass for a fine large type of nigra, but are smoother than those of the usual type. They are deeply and much grooved, but not ridged to any extent. There are other hybrid trees of spontaneous origin in the central and northern part of the State which are fully equal in every way to the Burbank type. These are too numerous for individual description.

Seedlings of Royal Hybrids.—The seedlings originating from first-generation Royal trees, of either the northern or southern California type, are in general much more vigorous and retain the qualities of their parents to a much greater extent than in the case with seedlings of Paradox trees. In the second generation, however, that is, trees twice removed from the original cross, the exceptional vigor is mostly lost and the seedlings become no better than or even inferior to those of the original species. In other words, the Royal hybrid seems on the average to retain its quality of exceptional vigor of growth one generation longer than does the Paradox. Various individual Royal trees, however, vary greatly in their ability to impart their characteristics to their progeny. Only a very few of them give seedlings which show uniformly a large percentage of trees as good as the parent. In the majority of cases the seedlings vary greatly and are not at all uniform. Almost always, however, the rule above stated is maintained that the seedlings of first-generation trees are more vigorous than those of the second generation, even though the parent trees may appear equally vigorous. This is an important fact in obtaining seed for nursery planting as a rootstock for the English walnut. In fact, it should be clearly understood that while Royal and Paradox hybrid walnut trees are quite common in the State, these trees represent all sorts of relationships and degrees, a few being first crosses, but many more being of the second, third or even later generations. Of the trees tested by ourselves and by a few of the most progressive nurserymen who have taken the trouble to plant the nuts from various trees separately, only an extremely small proportion have shown themselves worthy of being used for producing rootstocks for the English walnut. To test such a tree thoroughly requires several years, inasmuch as the nuts must first be planted and the seedlings raised to grafting age, the trees then grafted and kept in the nursery for at least another year, after which they must be planted out in various types of soil and their growth observed for some time in comparison with that of trees on other roots. The majority of hybrid trees which produce seedlings of exceptional vigor among their progeny do this in an extremely irregular manner, the seedlings being of all sorts of sizes and characteristics. English walnuts grafted on such seedlings will vary correspondingly. As we have previously said, no Paradox trees have been found whose seedlings are desirable as rootstocks, and of all the Royal trees which have been tested there are less than half a dozen in the State at present whose seedlings are known to be of sufficient uniformity in good qualities to be desirable for propagation. Seedlings of most Royal hybrids are really inferior to those of the straight California black walnut of other species for nursery purposes on account of their lack of uniformity. At least one nurseryman in the State is taking the trouble to hybridize certain black walnut trees by hand in order to obtain a walnut cross which he considers especially desirable for the nursery.

One fact is to be remembered in connection with the progeny of any California walnut tree, namely, that in almost every instance, walnut trees of some sort stand near to each other, and cross-pollination is therefore always possible and probably always goes on in every instance to a greater or less extent. The tree, therefore, which gives an unusually good lot of seedlings might not do the same at all if it stood elsewhere, removed from certain other trees which stand near it and which cross-pollinate its blossoms. It is, therefore, also true that it may or may not always be possible to perpetuate a desirable tree of this sort even by grafting, since when planted in some other place the combination of cross-pollination which resulted in the production of exceptionally good seedlings may be entirely lost.

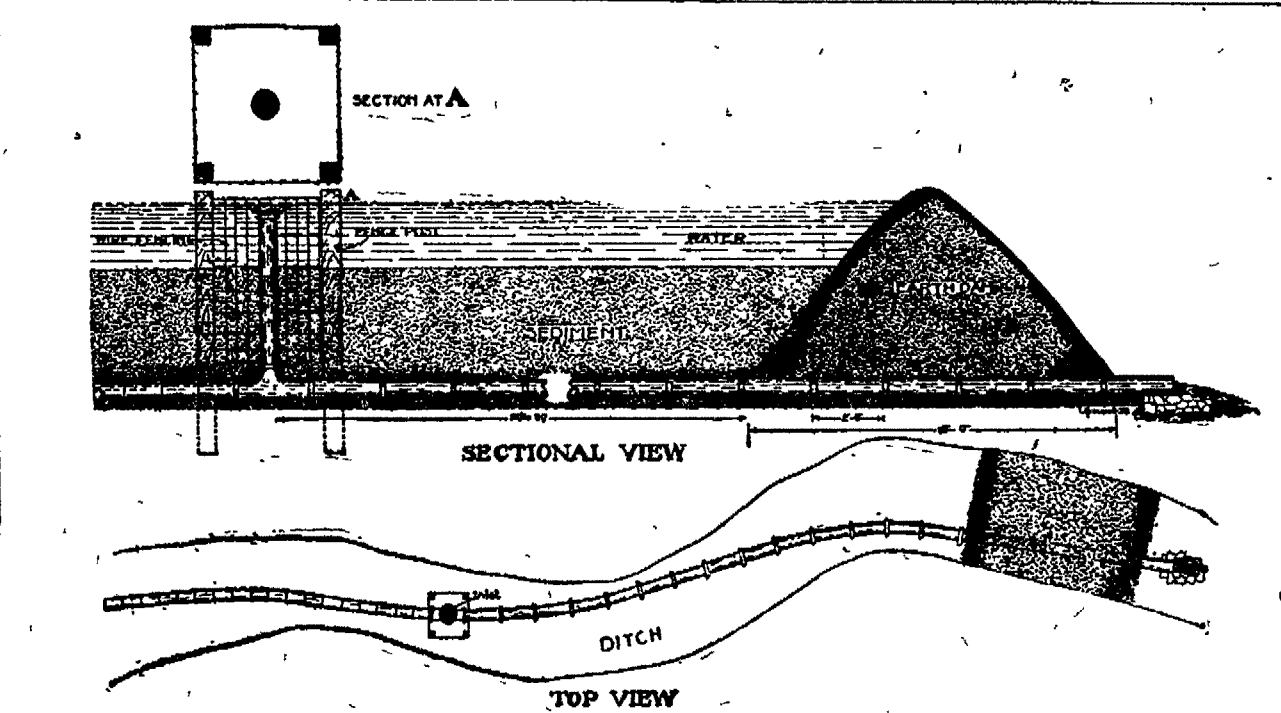

Diagram showing method of constructing a soil saving dam. The small square figure at the top shows the way in which the tile is protected by four posts supporting a woven wire fence. The middle figure gives a sectional view of the dam, tile, outlet, and sediment deposited in gulley. The outlet had better be entirely surrounded by stones so as to prevent the tile from being crushed from the top. The lower figure shows the way the tile is laid in the ditch to avoid sharp turns. Note that it does not follow the center; also that the tile below the inlet is joined vitrified tile, while above the inlet ordinary drain tile is used.

Soil Saving Dam Adds Fertile Acres

By W. H. BAKER

Large ditches having a moderate rate of fall may be economically filled by the use of a soil saving dam. When the ditch is long or the fall rapid, several dams may be required for one ditch.

Locating the dam.—The lowest part of the ditch on the field or farm is usually the best place to build the first dam. It may often be so located that the field fence or line fence may be built on the dam.

Kind and position of tile.—Use hard burned sewer tile under the dam. Lay the tile in a shallow trench, having a straight course and a uniform fall, in the ditch bottom. Run the tile from a good outlet below the dam to 20 or 30 feet above the dam. Use an elbow or a T joint for the inlet and set upon this one or more upright lengths of tile. Support these by three or more posts. Pack clay around the joints. The object of locating the inlet so far above the dam is to remove it from the trash which accumulates at the dam. Protect the inlet further by a circle of woven wire fencing five or six feet in diameter. Set on additional tile as the ditch fills, always keeping the inlet below the top of the dam. Tamp a covering of earth firmly around the line of tile to make it water tight and to protect it until the dam is built. Protect the outlet of the tile from washing out by encasing with stone or concrete. If this is too expensive, use a long wooden box or a long section of steel culvert pipe. Cover the outlet with a screen or trap to keep out rats and rabbits.

Constructing the dam.—Make the dam of earth or concrete. Use whichever is cheaper. Where gravel is abundant and concrete construction cheap, concrete dams are possible. In many sections earth is much cheaper and is quite satisfactory. When earth is used the dam need not be built to the full height at first but may be raised as the ditch fills and time is found for the work. Build the dam full width at the start to avoid the expense of hand shoveling to increase the width later. Keep the middle of the dam highest so that any overflow caused by heavy rains will pass around the ends rather than over the middle. Make earth dams about six feet wide on top when completed, with slope enough on the sides to stand up well. Oats or other small grain sown thickly at ends of dam, where overflows are likely to cut, will give a quick cover to hold the soil.

Tiling the fill.—It is frequently desirable to tile drain the fill. This may be done by using a T joint instead of an elbow at the inlet above the dam and continuing the tile as far up the ditch as desired. Ordinary drain tile may be used for this and usually a smaller size will suffice. Prepare the ditch bottom for this extension by digging a shallow trench, having a uniform fall and a straight course or long easy curves. Do not attempt to lay tile around short curves. Cover the tile deep enough to protect them from injury, preferably two feet or more if stock runs in the field. This extension may be continued up the ditch under as many dams as may be constructed. Use a T joint and upright inlet above each dam. Lateral drains may be laid from this line into branch ditches and the ditches plowed in and filled. The system may be extended to drain spouty places on the slopes and at the ditch head.

Size of tile.—The size of the tile required will vary with the amount of land drained, the steepness of the slopes, the porosity of the soil and the amount of storage room above the dam. With a run-off area of forty acres of cultivated land having gentle slopes, a dam affording an acre or more of storage room three or four feet deep should be reasonably well protected by a tile ten inches in diameter. Where the tile line is short and its cost relatively small, it is well to use tile of ample size. Where long lines of tile are laid, the lower parts of the system should be of ample size and the size gradually reduced up the ditch to lessen the expense. In small ditches and drainage laterals four-inch tiles are usually laid.

What it will cost.—The cost will vary. An estimate of the cost of the dam may be made by calculating the number of cubic yards of earth to be moved and allowing six to sixteen cents per cubic yard. Ten cents a cubic yard is a fair average. The cost of the tile will vary with the amount used, the size of the tile and the cost of hauling from factory or railroad. The labor and tile constitute the principal cost. A few dollars must be added for clearing the ditch and protecting the outlet and inlet. If the fill is tiled, add the cost of tile and labor for this. The cost of maintenance is very small if the dam is properly constructed.

Maintaining the fill.—If the fills are tiled drained they are usually easily held and may be farmed as part of the field. If difficult to hold for any reason they may be kept seeded to grass.

Fifteen turkey hens can safely be mated to a vigorous tom. If 25 or 30 hens are kept, two toms should not be allowed to run with them at the same time, but one should be confined one day and the other the next.

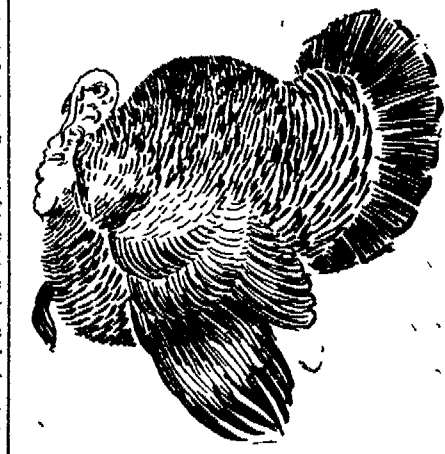

To make dairying a success we must make it of interest to the boys.

Turkeys Now a Very Profitable Side Line

By ANDREW WEINANT.

Because the number of turkeys in the United States has constantly decreased in the last few years while the demand has perhaps increased, a more profitable side line than turkey raising for those favorably situated for the work could hardly be found. Given plenty of range, turkeys will readily find grasshoppers and other insects, green vegetation, the seeds of weeds and grasses, waste grains, and acorns and nuts of various kinds. In this way the cost of raising them is small and the profits large. Grain and stock farms are particularly well adapted to turkey raising, and it is in such places that most of the turkeys are found. Little has ever been done in the way of raising turkeys in confinement, and when it has been tried the results have been discouraging.

One of the most important steps toward success in turkey raising is the proper selection of breeding stock.

Not as Big as He Looks.

Unhatchable eggs, weak poult, and small, scrubby turkeys are largely the result of carelessness in the selection of the parent stock. In selecting turkeys for breeding purposes, strength and vigor are the first points to be considered. To indicate this the body should be deep and wide, the back broad, and the breast round and full. The head should be of good size and of a clean, healthy appearance. A strong, well-made frame is shown by thick, sturdy shanks and straight, strong toes.

Inbreeding is harmful and if carried on very long will result in the loss of vigor and vitality. It is, therefore, advisable each year to obtain a new tom of unrelated blood, but of the same type. Nothing is to be gained by crossing varieties, as such practice soon reduces pure breeds to mongrels. The most satisfactory time of year to select breeding stock is November or December. By purchasing early in the season one not only has a larger number to choose from, but the birds are given ample time to become acquainted with their new surroundings before the mating season, which in the South ordinarily begins early in February and in the North about a month later.

Important amounts of perishable foods are made dangerous or inedible in households because they are exposed unnecessarily to heat, moisture, germs, dust, dirt, or to flies and other insects.

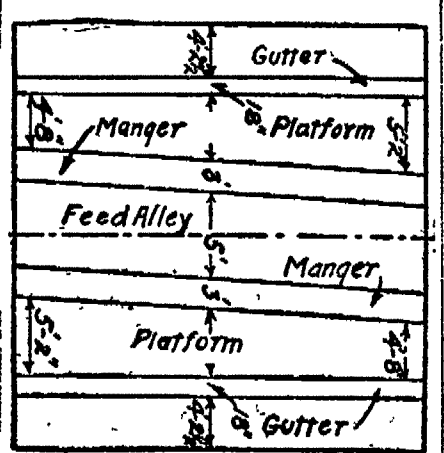

THE DAIRY-STABLE FLOOR

The floor of the stall as well as that of the entire stable are best constructed of concrete. Since this material absorbs very little moisture, is economical, durable, and easily cleaned, a concrete floor should be kept well bedded in winter, as it conducts heat from the body of the cow more rapidly than most other floor materials. At a small additional expense, an area 2 1/2 feet square in the floor of the stall near the gutter may be laid with cork bricks or creosoted wood blocks. These materials do not readily conduct heat from the body of the animal, and the stall is thus made more comfortable. If desired, the entire stall may be floored with cork brick or wood blocks, with the exception of a concrete curb 5 to 6 inches wide next to the gutter to hold the bricks or blocks in place. The concrete in the stall floors and in all walks over which the cows pass should be left somewhat rough to prevent the animals from slipping.

A depression in the floor of the stall next to the manger, one inch deep and extending back eighteen inches, assists in retaining bedding in the front part of the stall. The entire stall should have a slope of one inch toward the gutter.

The gutter is one of the important parts of the stable. Its size and shape determine to a large extent the ease with which cows are kept clean while stabled. A gutter 18 inches wide and 8 inches to 10 inches deep on its side next to the platform provides space for the accumulation of manure during a period of twelve hours without making it necessary for the cows to lie in the droppings.

The walk back of the gutter should not be more than 4 or 5 inches higher than the floor of the gutter. Where the walk and platform are both from 8 to 10 inches higher than the gutter, there is a greater likelihood that the cow will be injured in case she slips into the gutter.

Floor Plan, Illustrating the Method of Varying the Length of Platform to Suit Different Sized Cows.—The Feed Alley, Walks, Manger, and Gutter Remain Uniform in Width.

Bedding should be used in sufficient quantities as to absorb the liquid excrement, but if this is not possible a drain at one end of the gutter should conduct the liquid to a cistern outside. In such a case, the floor of the gutter should have a slope of one-half inch away from the platform and a slope of one inch in twenty feet toward the drain.

FACTS ABOUT LIME.

Lime should be applied after the ground is plowed and thoroughly mixed with the soil by harrowing or disking. The more thoroughly it is mixed with the soil, the better and quicker the results will be. It should never be plowed under, because its tendency is to work downward rather than upward in the soil.

"GOOD OLD TIMES."

No use worrying over the "good old times." All time with some day has acquired the same title. Accor progress intelligently and thank God for it.

GIVE THEM THE BEST.

You can't expect the farm boys and girls to build a very commendable educational structure if you send them to school with poor tools.

HOG FEEDING MISTAKES.

It is a mistake not to feed the liquid before the solid food. It is a mistake to feed constipating food and do nothing to correct it. It is a mistake to feed breeding-stuff as if you were fitting it for the market. It is a mistake to feed all sizes together whenever the smaller ones are at a disadvantage.

A GOOD REPUTATION.

Win the confidence and lasting friendship of all your neighbors. Your good standing among your fellow men is a far better asset than a bank-account.

It is the individual cow in the dairy that helps along with the profits, and not the name.

Feed the pig as a grass-eating animal, and give him his natural foods.

MILK AN IMPORTANT AND ECONOMICAL FOOD

By FLORA ROSE

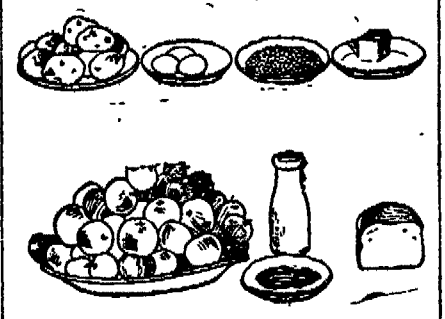

Milk is a cheap food. Furthermore, in any family dietary where the welfare of children as well as of adults is intelligently considered, it is almost a necessity.

The proof that milk is a cheap food is not in the price paid for the quart. Even at fifteen or twenty cents a quart milk is a cheap source of certain nutritive substances always needed by the body, and particularly needed during the growth period.

An amusing incident serves to show how great may be the failure to realize that milk is a food having a greater value than any ordinary beverage. The head of a well-known milk concern was shown some figures that compared the food values of a quart of milk and a pound of meat. The advantages were in favor of the milk. "That is all very well on paper," he said, "and I'm glad to have those figures to encourage the sale of milk and increase my business, but you and I know they are just nonsense. Why, a real food is something you have to chew."

There is an urgent need at this time for consumers, and particularly the housekeepers who plan the meals, to learn something of the nutritive value of foods. The increasing cost of many common foods leads to a temptation to reduce expenses by excluding those foods the prices of which seem prohibitive. This unconsidered method of banishing a food from the family board or of limiting the amount to be used may often prove harmless and conservative. It is, however, an altogether unsafe practice, because the food thus eliminated may be, in spite of its seemingly high cost, the cheap-est possible source of some nutritive substance necessary to the health and welfare of the body.

A study of the value of milk as a food and the particular part it should play in the dietary will serve as an illustration of the method that should be followed in determining the right of any food to a place in the daily meals.

With all the evidence in, no food bears the investigation of nutritive properties better than does milk. It is impossible to escape the conviction that not only is it a cheap food, but it is a food whose value can hardly be estimated in terms of dollars and cents. It has been pointed out that:

Although milk is not the cheapest source of energy that can be bought, it is nevertheless an important source of energy, and the energy-yielding substances, the protein, the milk-sugar, and the milk-fat, all have special value.

Milk is a cheap source of protein because the protein that it contains is of a kind particularly valuable for building tissue.

Ordinarily milk is the cheapest and most valuable source of lime, unless it is discovered that lime in water can take the place of lime in milk.

FRUIT DRYING POINTERS.

When drying fruits and vegetables, remember that—Only good, fresh products should be used.

You will have better results with apples if they are sliced thin. Apples will not turn brown after being pared if placed in a solution of salt and water—two tablespoons salt to a gallon of water.

If driers are made of iron, no flavor of the wood will be found in the fruit. Skins of peaches and apricots may be removed easily if the fruit is steamed one to three minutes (not too many at a time) and plunged into cold water.

A GOOD RATION

Corn-meal and skim-milk will make greater gain in feeding hogs than anything else, is the report that comes from the Ohio station, and it has been proven by thousands of farmers beside.

Save all the garden produce this year. You cannot afford to allow any to go to waste. Somebody can use what you can't.

PREVENT DISEASE IN STOCK.

Sanitation and Good Feeding Methods Help Reduce Losses.

Proper feeding and sanitation are two important preventatives of disease losses in farm animals. If carefully applied these measures may prevent many losses of meat animals. Keep the animals sturdy and disease-resistant by feeding a good, wholesome diet. Young animals need particular care and should be kept growing. A balanced ration should be fed—one that contains enough digestible protein to supply the needs of bone and muscle growth.

DISCOURAGE MITES AND LICE.

When the nests are put in order for the winter, sprinkle ashes into the material and put a couple of moth-balls in as well. These tend to discourage mites and lice.

The man who sells a good farm and buys new land in a distant country confesses his inability to keep pace with the farming progress of the times.

GET RID OF THE RATS.

Rats eat chickens, stored grain, corn, wheat and other small grain, and some of the food prepared for the table. The grain farmer does not notice the loss of grain readily since much of it is picked up in the fields by mice and rats. However, some idea of the loss can usually be gained by examining the crib in spring when the corn supply becomes low. On some farms several bushels of corn will have been shattered by rats and mice and the germs of the grain removed. This represents merely the grain which was partly eaten. It does not represent that which was entirely consumed by the rodents.

VACATIONS.

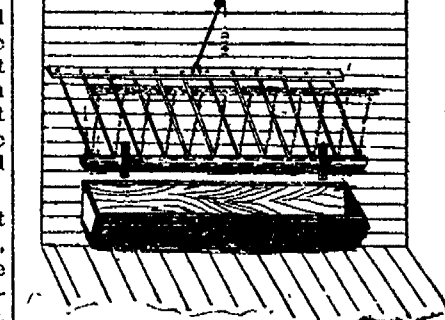

One way to keep young and attractive in mind and body, not to mention beauty and general attractiveness, is to take a vacation away from home and business once in a while.

No farmer should raise one kind of stock exclusively. Cattle, horses, hogs and sheep should be mixed in proper proportion, regardless of the size of the place.

PROTECT SHEEP FROM DOGS

A sheep corral is nothing less than an insurance against sheep-killing dogs, which have constituted one of the greatest obstacles to sheep raising in many sections. Sheep may be driven into the corral at night, since sheep losses usually occur at night.

On the farm of the Pennsylvania State College a corral surrounded by a dog-proof fence is provided. This fence is five feet high and is constructed of woven wire.

structured of woven wire. At the base, two inches from the ground, is a barbed wire. Two barbed wires are stapled at the top, the first four inches above the woven wire and the second eight inches above the first. In all the fence is about six and one-half feet high.

The corral should be large enough to maintain a good stand of grass at all times. An acre is sufficient to accommodate 100 head of mature sheep. Dividing the corral into equal parts and alternating the sheep on each portion every ten days is a good practice. Shade is desirable. Provided it is well-drained the apple orchard would make an ideal location for a corral.

An open shed with southern exposure and good drainage, built in the corral, protects sheep from cold rains and thus materially lengthens the pasturing season. The equipment, including fence and shed for 100 mature sheep, costs about $125. It affords dog protection, simplifies the breeding of ewes, the feeding of grain and the weaning of lambs and safeguards against exposure to severe weather and wet quarters.

A good feed rack for sheep may easily be constructed as follows: Use a pole for the bottom rail and a 2x6 inch scantling for the top rail. The cross bars (of any old piece of timber), are 4 feet long and 1 1/2 inches in diameter.

The bottom rail is held in place against the side of the barn by two strips of heavy sheet-iron which have been bent to fit around the pole.

The top rail is secured by a piece of half-inch rope which passes over a pulley located in a hole in the wall above the rack, a weight being attached to the outside end of rope, serving to always keep the rack against the wall.

When the hay is put in, the rack is drawn down, and when filled is pushed back against the wall, holding the hay in place closely and kept in place by the weight.

The grain-trough placed beneath and in front of the rack serves as a receptacle for the chaff and leaves of the hay—the best and most nourishing part of the feed which would otherwise be pulled under foot and lost as food.—J. W. G.

SELECTING SEED CORN.

All seed corn should be selected by hand, as a special task, and not incidentally to husking. The corn should be gathered as soon as thoroughly mature and before the first hard freeze. Enough should be gathered for two seasons' planting, to insure a supply of seed, if for example, the first planting is drowned out, or if the next crop should be hurt by early frost.

TIME TO MAKE PLANS.

The man who sits down every day to rest and think and plan, will come out ahead of the one who thinks he never has time for such things.

We not only need to develop a good working stomach on a calf, but a good acting heart. This cannot be done without pure air, sunlight and plenty of exercise.

FOR NEXT YEAR'S SEED.

To secure vigorous, healthy potato plants, seed should be obtained from a strain that is uniformly healthy and robust. Clean storage should then be provided. Before planting the seed should be treated with corrosive sublimate, four ounces to 30 gallons of water. Only clean land, land that has had a three-year, or better, a four- or five-year rotation, should be planted to potatoes.

PREVENT THIS LOSS.

Rats destroy grain when newly planted, while it is growing, in shocks, stalks, mow, crib, granary, elevator, car, or ship.

In giving any kind of livestock water in the winter that causes them to shiver, is a loss. A little shivering prevents a day's growth.

IS HEALTH OFFICE

Six New Contagion Cases

Reported Since Week

End.

Fort Wayne's seat of culture is now the health board office in the city hall. The top floor was literally filled with children who were seeking throat cultures Monday morning. More than 100 throat tests were made before noon.

The laboratory is decorated with row upon row of culture tubes which are test tubes holding a portion of the germ nourishing chemical. Throats of all children who visited the health office Monday were examined and swabbed with a cotton-clad wood splinter. The cotton was then placed in contact with the germ stimulating chemical. Presence of germ life can be ascertained after twenty-four hours.

Examinations have been going on in all city schools. Pupils who have sore throat are sent to the health office with orders to undergo an examination. They will not return to the classroom until a certificate is given by the health officers.

Six new cases of contagion have been reported since the week-end. Three of the reports are of diphtheria and three of smallpox. The diphtheria victims are: Mande Baughman, 1822 Gay street, aged 8, pupil in Hanna school; Hazel Geyer, 1712 Oakland drive, aged 26, and Paul Frieberger, pupil in St. Patrick's school. The smallpox cases are in the Pratt family, 1126 Summit street; the Haffner family, 404 Madison street, and Genevieve Curtis, 1422 Sherman street.

WANT MORE SWEATERS.

Mayor Hosey Gets Appeal from Head of Army Relief Committee.

Mayor W. J. Hosey received a letter from the relief committee of the Rainbow Division of the United States army, Monday morning, in which supplies for keeping warm volunteer soldiers were asked. More sweaters are needed the letter stated. There are 1,583 Indiana men in the Rainbow Division who must be fitted out with warmer garments, according to the appeal.

The mayor hastened the letter over to the local Red Cross chapter. An appeal for more all will come from that organization. Battery B and Company E, of Fort Wayne men, are in the Rainbow Division of the United States troops. The mayor has asked the Red Cross organization to aid the Fort Wayne volunteers first in the sending of supplies.

WILL RECEIVE BIDS.

Several Contractors to Give Figures on Heating Plant.

The board of works will receive bids for the construction of a heating plant and for installing of plumbing in the new Tenth ward engine house, Monday afternoon. Several local contractors have expressed their intention of putting in figures. The engine house is now under course of construction.

The works board will adopt resolutions for the building of the following concrete sidewalks: On the south side of Pierce street, from South Wayne to the first alley east; on the east side of St. Mary's avenue, from Burgess street to High street; on the west side of St. Mary's avenue, from High to Third street, and on both sides of High street, from Harmar to Francis streets.

CONCRETE BRIDGE FLOOR.

Work will start soon of placing a concrete floor in the Spy Run bridge by the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company. While the new bottom is being installed the ways of traffic will be by the Clinton street and Lawton park bridges.

The traction company will maintain two tracks across the Spy Run bridge and have guaranteed city officials that they will keep the new flooring in repair.

Finish Avenue.

Paving of Delaware avenue, from St. Joe boulevard to Forest Park boulevard, was completed Saturday.

Started Work.

The Brooks Construction company has started work of completing the subway at Coombs street. It is expected that the task will be finished in two weeks.

PASS SALARY BOOST OVER MAYOR'S VETO

Kendallville Mayor Vetoes Bill Raising Salaries of City Officials.

Kendallville, Ind., Oct. 1.—At a special meeting of the city council held Saturday evening Mayor C. M. Case vetoed the bill raising the salaries of three city officials. The council passed the bill at once over his veto. All the councilmen but W. C. Auman voted for the bill and he refused because he was a candidate for one of the offices affected.

The ordinance provided that the salary of the mayor be increased from $650 to $800, the clerk $550 to $840, and the treasurer from $550 to $720.

The mayor gave the following reasons for vetoing the bill: First, that it is not equitable, and discriminating; second, that he believed the salaries plenty high for a $1.20 tax levy; third, each candidate knew last March the salaries of the offices; fourth, the salaries are now from 25 to 50 per cent higher than in neighboring towns of the fifth class, and fifth, that it would burden the citizens too much with the contemplated city improvements.

SLOWLY KILLING GERMAN WAR POWER

Washington, Oct. 3.—Great Britain's new embargo on shipments of practically everything to Sweden, Norway, Denmark and The Netherlands is regarded here as a most important move in tightening the cordon which slowly but surely is killing the military power of Germany.

Coming close on the export embargo of the United States, which is being administered to keep from the European neutrals everything that might supply the central powers, Great Britain's action is regarded as one of the most important of the war.

As the British embargo excludes everything except printed matter, about the only thing that will be permitted to go to the German people by way of the neutrals will be expressions of world opinion that they should reorganize their system of government to do away with the military autocracy.

In a figurative sense Great Britain holds one end of the rope and the United States holds the other. Gradually, but surely, as it is being drawn taut, the military power of Germany is being strangled because the embargo cuts off the supplies she has been receiving through the adjacent neutrals.

THIRD INCREMENT, 200,000 STRONG, IS MOBILIZING TODAY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—About 200,000 men representing the third increment to the national army today are on their way to sixteen cantonments, where already half the 687,000 called to the colors by the president are mobilized. Although today's quota should be forty percent under regulations promulgated by Provost Marshal Crowder, local conditions in the various states have reduced the general average of the increment to 20 or 25 percent.

Coinciding with the start of the third division of the new national army for training camps today, the railroads' war board issued a statement in connection with the part which the railroads have played in handling the biggest troop movement ever attempted in this country.

"Including the national guard, the regular army and the new national army, the railroads to date have moved approximately 720,000 soldiers from their homes to training camps or embarkation points," says the statement.

Needed Special Train Service.
The great bulk of this army—all of it, in fact, except the 32,549 men included in the first 5 percent of the national army that moved by regular trains on September 5—required special train service, involving the use of 13,500 passenger cars including 1,500 Pullman and tourist sleepers, 2,600 baggage cars and 4,500 freight cars.

Some slight conception of what this problem is may be deduced from the fact that in the national army movement the railroads have had to prepare special schedules covering the 4,531 towns and cities designated by the provost marshal general as the points of local concentration from which the recruits to the new national army proceed to their cantonments.

"In addition the special train movements have had to be so directed as to prevent interruption to the regular passenger service.

Longest and Shortest Hauls.
The longest haul made in the new national army movement to date was that of the special train which moved the city soldiers from Yuma, Ariz., to Fort Riley, Kas., a distance of 1,514 miles. This trip occupied 45 hours.

The shortest distance traveled by any unit of the new national army was that of the District of Columbia unit to Camp Meade, Maryland, a trip of less than 25 miles.

Amsterdam, Oct. 3.—The celebration of the birthday of the Field Marshal von Hindenburg at the German main headquarters yesterday began with a visit from Emperor William, who presented the field marshal with a marble bust of the "all highest war lord." The route from Hindenburg's house to main headquarters was lined with children, who strewed flowers in his path while airmen dropped flowers and laurel wreaths.

At headquarters the field marshal was received by Gen. von Ludendorff and the other officers of the general staff. Gen. Ludendorff greeted his chief as "the personification of the greatest development of the Prussian-German fatherland." Hindenburg later reviewed veteran units and other soldiers in front of the headquarters and in speaking to them said: "It is a special pleasure to me to know myself as one with the German people in their will to victory and their confidence in victory."

The field marshal praised the army and those who remained at home. He called for cheer for the emperor, who invited to dinner all who had called to offer birthday congratulations. In a speech the emperor praised the field marshal as "the hero of the German people to whom it is granted to accomplish deeds of world and historical greatness."

American Training Camp in France, Oct. 3.—(By the Associated Press.)—American medical officers will devote the coming winter to a special study of the diseases peculiar to the war and war conditions in addition to their work at the forward casualty clearing stations on the French and British fronts.

At the casualty stations they will get all the experience they desire in the marvelous war surgery which has made such rapid strides in the past three years. They will be trained in all the medical phases of their work in the field at special schools. The first of these schools will be established this month at the hospital taken over by the Johns Hopkins hospital unit soon after the first contingent of American troops landed in France.

SEEK TO REACH SETTLEMENT OF CRISIS IN COAL

Washington, Oct. 3.—Representatives of coal operators and miners in the Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania district today were endeavoring to reach a compromise on the duration of the contract granting the workers wage advances. The agreement which provides for an increase of ten cents a ton for skilled labor and $1.50 a day for unskilled labor will expire sixty days after the termination of the war, provided the operators' demands are conceded. However, the labor delegates are holding out for a flat two year contract. The wage agreement is contingent on an increase in the government fixed prices of coal.

Intermittent showers, starting at noon Wednesday, failed to dampen the spirits of the speakers and promoters of Fort Wayne's first free food fair. Though the attendance was reduced by threats of the marshalling rain clouds, the speeches were even more ardent than if peace had smiled from a clear sky.

The display from more than a hundred Fort Wayne food gardens was moved under the shelter of the grandstand roof at the Central league ball park. The long line of big yellow potatoes, large pumpkins, mammoth sugar beets, turnips, celery, beans and corn ears spoke eloquently of the ability of Fort Wayne men and women as farmers.

"I am astonished at the showing myself," said Mike Costello, who has been in charge of the city food campaign.

The Elks band, which furnished music for the afternoon meeting and which will play again at night, was furnished by the city park board.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Secretary of the Treasury Wm. G. McAdoo today went to Madison, Wis., to continue his campaign in behalf of the liberty loan. In an address before a large audience here last night, he urged the purchase of the liberty bonds because they are the "safest investment in the world," the "safest investment in the world."

Mr. McAdoo digressed briefly in his talk on the liberty loan to speak of peace propaganda.

"There isn't a soldier in France," he said, "whose life is not more than ever imperiled by those idiotic peace talk."

"Let us not give aid and comfort to the enemy by letting him think we don't mean to fight."

Washington, Oct. 3.—Preliminary consideration of numerous petitions seeking expulsion from the senate of Senator La Follette and several other senators for their attitude toward the war was begun today by the senate privileges and elections committee, but no action was taken and another meeting will be held tomorrow.

Sentiment was said to have developed at today's meeting for action of some kind and against merely tabling the petitions. The question of proper procedure was discussed without agreement.

Senator La Follette is said to be considering an address before congress adjourns in answer to his critics.

House Breaks Out Again.

The protracted wrangle over charges by Representative Heflin of Alabama, that certain members of congress have acted "suspiciously" in the present war, flared up again in the house today when Representative Mason of Illinois, made a speech contending that Heflin had inferentially charged Mason with treason "and linked him with Emma Goldman."

Representative Heflin requested consent of the house for time to reply to Mason's remarks and to name the men he thought had "acted suspiciously," but objection was made by Representative Garner of Texas, and the row for the time being was brought to an end.

FRENCH HEROES DECORATED FOR BEATING U-BOAT

Paris, Oct. 3.—The minister of marine has commended in navy orders the French sailing vessel, Kleber, of 273 tons, which on September 7 stood up to a big German submarine off the coast south of Brittany and plied a single gun so well that her opponent retreated discomfited after three hours of stirring battle.

Pierre Monnier, the boatswain who fought the ship after the captain of the Kleber was killed, has been decorated with the Legion of Honor, while the twelve men of the crew, several of whom were wounded, have been given war crosses.

Seven members of the crew who particularly distinguished themselves, also received the military medal in addition to the war cross.

AMERICAN NAVY TO LEAD WHOLE WORLD IN YEAR AND HALF

Builders of U-Boat Hounds Making Progress Beyond All Expectations, Says Daniels.

SOME READY FOR SEA THIS WINTER

Washington, Oct. 3.—Such remarkable progress has been made in the quick building of the immense flotilla of destroyers to cope with the submarine that the navy department now is assured of much quicker delivery of the ships than was contemplated at the last estimate, which in itself was far ahead of the original time.

Progress on the ships now building and arrangements for others to follow it was said today at the navy department, are such that the American navy will lead the world with its destroyers within eighteen months.

It is now certain that all destroyers now building will be delivered, ready for duty in European waters early next year. Many of them had not been expected until the winter of 1918. Approximately ten months, has been saved.

The full success of the project however depends on the extraordinary powers granted to the president in the bill now pending. The administration measure was altered in the house. The senate committee restored the provisions naval officers consider vital to success and the navy hopes the bill which is now in conference will become a law in substantially its original form.

Summary of the Day's War News

"We shall bomb Germany with compound interest," Premier Lloyd George is quoted in the London press as declaring to a London crowd in promising that Great Britain would soon launch reprisals for the many German air raids on England. The French reprisals under way were continued last night. French airmen dropped bombs on the town of Baden, some fifty-five miles beyond the French frontier. More than seven tons of bombs also were dropped on various military objectives in German held territory.

Along the French front the artillery duels were vigorous at many points. The activity was especially marked north of Verdun, where the French are apparently preparing an attack to recover a few trench elements which the crown prince's troops retained when their main attacking force was thrown back north of hill 344 yesterday. A German attempt to attack east of Rheims was broken up by the French artillery.

Similar precautions against air raids are being taken at other places in western Germany.

UNIQUE OPENING OF BOWSER CLUB SEASON

Members Put Through Series of Antics Which Recalled School Days.

Last evening, October 2, the first meeting for the year of the Bowser Efficiency club took place. The place of meeting was kept secret from the members of the club, none of them knowing just where it was to be held. They gathered in front of the executive building and at 5:30 were led along a route marked by arrows, through the immense Bowser plant, until they arrived in a specially decorated room in one of the new buildings which are being erected.

This room was decorated in true school room style. Regulation school benches had been obtained and blackboards covered the walls. On these blackboards were the regular country school decorations in the way of fancy colored birds, picture of the teacher, and the quotation, "Backward, turn backward, Oh! time in thy flight, and make me a boy again, just for to-night." Two large wood burning stoves were in the front of the room, properly lighted, so that they had the appearance of being red hot. When the students arrived in the room it was very prettily staged. The outside light had been shut off by the windows being covered, the room was in semi-darkness, the American flag fluttered above the teacher's desk with spotlight shining upon it, the red glowing stove and the prettily decorated hall made a very pleasing sight.

A program was laid out along strictly school lines. After a short introduction by R. L. Heaton, president of the Efficiency club, the program was handed over to the school teacher. The first class was the primary class, made up of the new members who had just joined the club. They were each required to stand, give their name, department in which they worked and their address.

Next was the history class, in which the history of the Bowser company, from its beginning, was very interestingly placed before the club.

The arithmetic class was taken up, which dealt with various lines of equipment making up the Bowser products.

Geography class was then in session, which dealt with the location of the various buildings of the plant by number, location and manager of the seventeen district offices, and the location of the many distributing points where stock is carried, located in various sections of this country and Canada.

Spelling class then held sway and was followed by the big hit of the evening, the physiology class. Members of that class first traced the course of blood in the human system and then traced the course of gasoline as it entered, was filtered, hauled and discharged from the Bowser "Red Sentry" pump, cut 241. These two features were visualized by diagrams which aided in the students following the instructions. This was further illustrated by the instructor putting together, piece by piece, a complete pump, explaining each part and its function in the operation of the complete pump. The cut 241 was then shown lighted, as it appears on the curb in almost every town in the country.

Specially prepared Bowser songs were interspersed during the various classes.

Dinner was arranged for at the Country club and the entire student body was transported there in automobiles. A fine meal had been prepared by Manager Keller, who was greatly enjoyed. An orchestra furnished music during the meal and when it struck up popular airs the words of that song were sung by the 150 club members.

This first meeting is a forecast of what can be expected at the regular semi-monthly meetings of the Efficiency club during the year.

PUSHING EXCAVATION WORK.

Big Steam Shovel Inaugurated at the G. E. Works Today.

Harry McAfee, who has the contract of excavating for the foundation of the big addition to the General Electric works, to be known as building No. 4, installed a big steam shovel this morning and earth is being removed as rapidly as a number of teams can haul it away. The scene of operations in early days was a gravel pit and when the foundations for the buildings which have been razed to make room for the one soon to be erected brick piers twenty feet high were erected to support the timbers and later the hole was filled with dirt taken from Broadway, where the first pavement was laid on that street. The big shovel is now bringing the brick to the surface. The contracts for the erection of the new building have not yet been awarded, but bids have been received, it is said.

Punch Presses at G. E. Works Now Equipped With Them.

With the double purpose of increasing the efficiency of the department and protecting the operators from injury, all the punch presses in the punch department of the General Electric works, over which Joseph Schwartzkopf is foreman, are being equipped with automatic feeders. Some of the machines are now fully equipped and the remaining ones will be thus supplied in a few days.

NEW AIRBRAKE INSTRUCTOR.

H. A. Burson, who has charge of the work of instructing Pennsylvania employees in the care and operation of airbrakes, has returned from the Eastern division, where he was engaged in instructing and installing a new airbrake instructor, William Matthews, of Alliance, Mo. Mr. Matthews succeeds S. A. Walton, who several months ago was promoted to assistant road foreman of engines of the Western division and transferred to Fort Wayne. The latter change was the result of transferring John H. Hanna, road foreman of engines, to the Eastern division and the promotion of O. E. Maxwell from assistant to road foreman of engines of the Western division.

NEW TRAINMASTER DISTRICT.

To relieve Trainmaster Clarence E. Wells of a part of his arduous duties during the unprecedented traffic on the line, the Washab management has established a new trainmaster's district and placed Al F. King in charge of it. The territory lies between Lafayette and Elton and includes the Lafayette yards. This was a separate trainmaster's district thirty-five years ago, but was abolished in 1882 and since that time the trainmaster of the Peru division had charge of the territory. Mr. King is an engineer and was for a time road foreman of engines of the Peru division and later assistant to Trainmaster C. E. Wells. He is well known in Fort Wayne.

SURPRISED MRS. HAUSBACH.

Last night Mrs. C. N. Hausbach, the wife of Machinist Hausbach, of the Washab shop, was the unexpected hostess of a surprise party given by her neighbors and other friends. The occasion was the celebration of the thirty-fourth birthday anniversary of Mrs. Hausbach, which she failed to note until reminded of it by the guests, who marched into her home in a body. They gave her a magnificent picture, cards and a magnificent luncheon were a part of the entertaining features.

PRICES DO NOT WORRY

FATHER OF TWELVE

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 3.—War-time prices with twelve children at home have no terrors for Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wescoe. The Wescoes have been making a living on forty acres of land, with the aid of a few rented fields, and have accumulated enough extra money to buy thirty-five more acres adjoining.

Mr. Wescoe is an expert taxidermist, and he has a small museum on his farm. Generally on Sundays there are visitors to view the stuffed deer, lynx, fish, and other animals he has on exhibition. Each person who sees the collection drops a dime in the family coffee, and this helps.

Of the twelve children at home nine carry dinners to school every morning. The oldest is a teacher, and the other eight attend the school she teaches. The girls help their mother get breakfast for fourteen, and then help pack the nine dinners.

"We are all happy here," said Mr. Wescoe, "everybody does a little, and we get it all done. It doesn't take as much as you would think to feed us. We kill from twenty to thirty hogs, weighing from 250 to 300 pounds, every fall, and a ton of flour will do us for a year."

Three-hundred-pound hogs are now worth about $50 each, and flour is worth $6 a hundred.

TAKEN TO DAYTON.

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 3.—The body of Simon H. Lipinsky, who died suddenly Sunday of heart disease, was taken to Dayton, O., Monday. Services were held in the synagogue there Tuesday. Maurice Lipinsky, of Indianapolis, a brother, accompanied the funeral party.

You will never have such a splendid opportunity to secure "close-in" home property at such prices and on such terms as in West Brook View RIGHT NOW. The general sale opens Saturday, October 13. Reserve your lot today.

ALBION POSTOFFICE FORCE IS ENTERTAINED

At the Home of Fred Talbert in Honor of His Birthday.

Albion, Ind., Oct. 3.—Headed by Postmaster G. W. Smith, City Carrier V. E. Ray and the rural route carriers out of the city responded to an invitation from Mrs. Fred Talbert to attend the 6 o'clock dinner at the Talbert suburban home, Friday evening, the occasion being the birthday of her husband, also a carrier, who was unaware of the intrusion of his comrades until they arrived en masse and made known the object of coming unannounced. A sumptuous dinner was also a feature worthy of special mention, because of an exhibition of culinary art and because of the fact that there was no aching void when the visitors took leave from the tables. No better place could be visited for wholesome viands than the Talbert home on occasions of this kind.

Albion, Ind., Oct. 3.—Headed by Mrs. Keller, of Los Angeles, Cal., mother of Mrs. Dr. Hawley Hostetter, of Albion, died Saturday, September 23, and will be brought to Albion for interment. The body will be taken to the home of a son-in-law, Frank Reber, near that place for interment. She was a former resident of Albion and a highly respected lady.

Mr. McGee, northeast of town, and Will Matthews motored to White county, Tuesday, where the latter will do some ditch work on the farm of the former. They will be absent several days.
Paul Cramer, of Akron, O., spent Sunday in Albion, a guest of Mrs. S. Cramer and niece, Miss Mary Yost. Fred Huff, of Ligonier, was in the city Monday, a guest of his mother, Mrs. Philip Huff, and greeting friends. Ed Ray visited his family at South Bend Sunday and Monday, returning on the "shake."
Will Beard is again breaking bread at the family table, having been absent for several months grooming horses for northern Indiana fairs.
Miss Dorothy Eagles visited at Fort Wayne Sunday, a guest of Miss Beth Rimmell.
W. L. Bowen transacted business at Indianapolis Monday and Tuesday.
Mrs. Jennie McDowell is visiting at Kalamazoo, Mich., this week.
The Ladies' Aid society of the Lutheran church will hold the next regular meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Evans, Thursday afternoon, Oct. 4.
J. O. Black, of Toledo, O., spent Sunday with his better-half in Albion. Mrs. Cora Netz is a guest of relatives at Toledo, O.

Mrs. John Gill, of Chicago, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Beck and other Albion friends.

Perry Stebling and wife, of Auburn, and Miss Gertrude Welmer, east of town, spent Sunday in Albion, guests of H. H. Pincheon and wife.

Miss Joy Whitman and niece, Florence Johnston, were recent visitors with relatives at Naphtanee.

Rev. J. C. Graham, of the M. E. church, will spend this week on a lecturing tour through northern Indiana. Mr. and Mrs. Harley East will remove from the Singery property to the David Clouse property on South Orange street in the near future.

Dr. Woodward Hays and wife returned Monday from a sojourn of several days in Chicago.

Mrs. J. T. Walton was at Cronwell and Ligonier, Monday, on a shopping tour.

Mrs. E. A. Ish, of Waterloo, was an Albion visitor, Sunday, a guest of Mrs. W. A. Beane and Mrs. Georgia Irwin. Mr. and Mrs. Landon, of Fort Wayne, and Albert Smith, wife and children were Sunday visitors with E. O. Himes and wife and Mrs. Mary Rosenberger, of Albion.

The fourth hundredth anniversary of the founding of the Lutheran church will be observed by the Albion Lutheran church on Sunday, Oct. 28, when the three churches, viz: Albion, Rehrth and Mt. Pleasant, will unite in commemorating this event. A suitable program for the occasion will be arranged along spiritual lines and a big basket dinner will feature the event. Special speakers will also be present to assist in fittingly observe the day.

Clarence Pollock was a Sunday visitor at Winchester, Ind.

The regular business meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the U. E. church will be held in the church parlors Thursday afternoon and a good attendance is urged.

Dr. Harry Hostetter received word Monday evening of the death of his mother, Mrs. Keller, at Los Angeles, Cal. Mrs. Keller had been in ill health for several years, but no particulars concerning her immediate death were given. At this time it is not known whether the body will be brought to Albion, her former home, for interment.

Mr. McGee, northeast of town, and Will Matthews motored to White county Tuesday, where the latter will do some ditch work on the farm of the former. They will be absent several days.

POLITICAL BEE IS BUZZING AT GARRETT

Garrett, Ind., Oct. 3.—The political bee has been buzzing about Garrett for the past few weeks, and it has stung not a few of the most enthusiastic democrats so that a democratic city ticket has practically been completed. According to the state of things at this time, although no definite announcements have come, George Schultess will announce himself a candidate for mayor on the democratic ticket. His probable opponent will be Mayor J. A. Cleveland.

Other men in the city mentioned in said buzzing of said bee are C. U. Bowers for city clerk (now in office), Harry Wert, city treasurer (now in office), Leslie Stoner, councilman-at-large (also in office), G. N. Drenp, T. L. Hollister and Will Franks (if last two also being runmen.) It will mean the retirement of J. M. Merican and F. Lindorfer, whose places will be taken by one of the other new men.

BIG STREET FAIR OPENS AT AUBURN
Many Exhibits of Interest to Be Shown—Immense Crowds Expected.
(Special to The Sentinel.)
Auburn, Ind., Oct. 3.—Auburn's free fall fair opened here today and promises to surpass all previous efforts. The management has arranged for an unusually large number of exhibits, including sixteen rural school exhibits of farm products. The erection of booths for exhibition purposes and concessions are rapidly being completed.
Thirty boys have already entered the stock judging contest, showing great interest and considerable knowledge of the subject. The stock exhibits will be held on East Seventh street and additional farm products on Cedar and Ninth streets.
Purdue university has exhibits in the county agricultural agent's office in the court house.
"What is the attraction of a fair anyhow," one farmer was overheard to remark. "The principal attraction for me is the people. I meet friends from all over the country, compare productions, take in the sights and have a general good time; go home tired as a tramp, get rested and go back next day and so on till the end." That's it—go every day to the Auburn free fall fair.

You have admired the newspaper pictures of West Brook View. Why not take a little time and see the real landscapes? They're as close to the court house as Swinney park.

FIRE PREVENTION DAY.
Fire prevention day will be observed in the schools of Fort Wayne and Allen county on October 3. Various methods of preventing fires will be discussed in the schools of the city and county.

Wife to Blame if Husband Drinks, Says Druggist Brown, of Cleveland, Who Tells Wife What To Do
A New Treatment Given Without the Consent or Knowledge of the Drinker.
Cleveland, O., Oct. 3.—A wife has a right to blame her husband because he drinks, says Druggist Brown, of Cleveland. It is her fault if she lets him drink and bring unhappiness and poverty to her home, and she has no right to complain. A woman can stop a drinking husband in a few weeks for half what he would spend on liquor, so why waste sympathy on a wife who refuses to do it. Druggist Brown also says the right time to stop the drink habit is at its beginning unless you want to drink to death the fine sensibilities of the husband you love. Begin with the first whiff of liquor on his breath, but do not depend on his going home to bed to stop him. He is run-ran through and through. Druggist Brown knows the cause of strong drink because he himself has been a victim. He was rescued from the brink of a drunkard's grave by a loving sister who, after ten years' time revealed the secret to him. She saved him from drink—rescued him from his own depraved self, by giving him a secret remedy, the formula of an old German chemist. To discharge his debt to her and to help other victims out of the mire and mire he has made the formula public. Any druggist can put it in the hands of any suffering wife, mother, sister or daughter. Just ask the druggist for the formula. It is a powder, and drop a powder twice a day in tea, coffee, milk or any other drink. Soon liquor does not taste the same, the craving for it disappears, and in one more drinker is saved and knows not when or why he lost his taste for drink.
One woman who used this prescription said her husband says: "It is going on the fourth week since he has touched a drop of anything in the form of liquor or used tobacco any kind. He seems already like a different man. Tecum has gained a wonderful enthusiasm in me. I regard it as a Godsend. Just think, I have never seen my husband sober for more than 48 hours in years and now it is going on one month since he had his last drink."
Another one gratefully writes: "I have used Tecum powder on my husband and find it one of the greatest cures in this world. He hasn't taken a drink for almost five weeks, and says he never will. My home does not seem like the same place and life seems worth living. I hope thousands gain what I have. This has been a good year for me without drink in my home."
NOTE—Tecum, referred to above, should be used only when it is desirable to him from his own depraved self, by giving him a secret remedy, the formula of an old German chemist. To discharge his debt to her and to help other victims out of the mire and mire he has made the formula public. Any druggist can put it in the hands of any suffering wife, mother, sister or daughter. Just ask the druggist for the formula. It is a powder, and drop a powder twice a day in tea, coffee, milk or any other drink. Soon liquor does not taste the same, the craving for it disappears, and in one more drinker is saved and knows not when or why he lost his taste for drink.

Vol. LXXXV No. 18

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1917.

A FINE EXAMPLE.

Mrs. Henry O. Havemeyer, a member of the advisory committee of the national woman's party, counsels the women of America to have nothing whatever to do with the campaign for the second Liberty Loan. Addressing a meeting of suffragists in Baltimore, yesterday, she appealed to them "not to lift a finger in aid of the loan." Says Mrs. Havemeyer further: "I have not the nerve to ask money for a battle for democracy when we women, who demand true democracy, are thrown into jails for doing so." This, of course, is a reference to the incarceration of the Silly Sallies in Washington for their lawless conduct in the streets.

Mrs. Havemeyer is wholly disingenuous. The White House picketers in Washington were not "thrown into jails" for demanding democracy. They were arrested for violating the laws by creating disturbances in the streets. For months there was no molestation of picketers. It was only when they became a nuisance that the law was invoked against them. Even the Washington public regarded them with an amused tolerance until their banners began to appear with legends that insulted the dignity of the president of the United States with legends that most persons deemed to be of disloyal tenor. That the country was engaged in a great war which placed the nation itself in grave peril counted for nothing against the narrow and bitter obstinacy of purpose that incited the picketers to extremes of conduct.

It should be borne in mind that the element which has been aping the insolence of the once violent school of British suffragists does not act or speak for or in any wise represent the great body of suffragists in the United States. The representative body of the women who are advocating the federal amendment have condemned the picketers and their practices, not only because they deem it unseemly in themselves and of harm to the cause, but because they believe that it sets a bad example and lends encouragement to the elements among us that are disloyally opposing the government in the war.

Mrs. Havemeyer is attempting to put her own faction of the suffragists in a class with the I. W. W. and in some sort upon the same ground that unholty organization has assumed to itself. The I. W. W. is hostile to the government and disloyal to the nation because it cannot have its own way. That organization wants a new kind of democracy, a reconstruction or rather a destruction of the existing social order and to promote its cause sets itself in hostile attitude toward the government, while some of its leaders to further these ends make negotiations with and lend their aid to the nation's enemies in war. Mrs. Havemeyer and those who train with her are choosing the pathway to a fine comradeship and association. It will tickle Bill Heywood to his marrow as he sits in his cell and contemplates the new-found fellowship of Mrs. Havemeyer and her following.

"It's not in the power of mortals to command success,
But we'll do more, Sempronius; we'll deserve it."

That has been the course of even the violent school of the British suffragists since the outbreak of the war and by deserving the ballot they have put their cause in most promising ease. British suffragists have been aiding, not obstructing their government and lending aid and encouragement to its enemies. So, too, with the great body of American suffragists. The real party of the women in America will not follow Mrs. Havemeyer and her small coterie of irreconcilables into the I. W. W. camp in their sulking attempt to contribute to so stupendous a national calamity as the failure of the Liberty Loan, without which the government will be helpless in the war and foredoomed to defeat. American women, like the British women, will in the great mass be loyal and helpful and like the British women will obtain in good time an ungrudging recognition of their fitness for and their right to full citizenship.

HAVE SOMETHING IN THE RECORD.

The men who serve in the army or navy during this war, the women and the men who do duty with the Red Cross—all who are formally enlisted in the service of the nation one way or another—will go into the record as having "done their bit." There are thousands—millions, even—who will not go into the records in any way who yet will have served. The war gardener who, impressed by his sense of patriotic duty, sets about it with no ado to add to the vital increase of food-stuffs, is rendering service. He proves himself loyal and true, through his "bit" may never be noticed and never heard from. So, too, with multitudes here and there and all over—women and girls who sew and knit, men and boys who do quietly whatever may come to their hands—that will be in the service. Nor will these services be any the less honorable, any the less patriotic because unrecorded.

There is one service possible to most of the people that can go into the record. That is in the purchase of Liberty Loan bonds. Every holder of a bond has the proof of his service. And it is, next to the devotion of the men who go to the front, the greatest service that can be rendered the nation and government. War cannot be carried on without men, but men cannot be put in battle without money. The greatest resources are going to win this war and if the United States can be depended upon to make the most of what she has there will be no reason to doubt the outcome of the struggle for democracy. Next to men the big thing is money. Keep that in mind.

To help the government to get what money it needs is the privilege of every American who has any sort of an income. About 15 cents a day for each working day during one year will pay for a $50 bond. That is not much, even if one were giving his money to the government. But giving it is not the case at all. The government is simply borrowing the money and will pay it back. During the time that the government uses the money of the people it will pay interest upon what it has borrowed. So there is not any loss, but on the contrary a saving. There is more than a mere saving, for there is an earning. Patriotic duty and self-interest here go hand in hand.

It will be something of a satisfaction to patriotic men and women in the years to come to dig up the Liberty Bond occasionally from its place of security and look upon it with the reflection that when the nation called for their services they answered. You will have the proof of your "bit." The verity is indeed in the record. You may likewise find some satisfaction in reflecting that your Liberty Bond is the token and evidence of so much money saved and well invested.

SEEMS TO HAVE 'EM.

According to brief and somewhat disconnected portions of I. W. W. letters given out by the federal authorities it looks as though Uncle Sam had the leaders of that organization in a serious position. Some of them have been fairly "caught with the goods."

Such extracts of these letters as have been given out do not appear to leave any doubt that there was a tremendous conspiracy to obstruct the government's operations in the war and to interfere with military affairs. So also are there indications that relations were sustained with enemy agents, though the proof of this may perhaps be less conclusive, notwithstanding no one has any doubt of it.

At all events it will be a source of satisfaction to the country at large to know that this big and dangerous conspiracy has been uncovered and frustrated and that the chief conspirators at least are likely to go where their capacity for mischief will not be great during the remainder of the war.

It is tolerably easy to fight the foe in the open. That is a mere matter of skill, strength and resources. To fight the secret enemies at home is another affair. It is well that some of the worst of these have been snared.

Congress is about to adjourn. Altogether, it has been a historic session and a season of duty well-performed, but there is no disguising that the country will be glad to see it in history rather than in further progress.

The senate is not going to attempt to expel La Follette. On the contrary, he is to have an opportunity to speak at length—which, it may readily be surmised, will not add to his tenure, either in the senate of the United States or in the patience and tolerance of the people of America.

VESTAL LIGHT.

Doth a yellow star tonight
Burn low in the West
Ere the crimson shadows' flight
To the hills of rest?

'Tis the vestal light of me—
Ah! Before it dies
Go not from the sight of me;
Kiss me, on mine eyes!

When the bright star disappears,
Go, before I die!
Soldiers, love, should shed no tears
O'er their last good-bye.

Kiss me on the lips, and go—
Think not on my death;
Life's vestal lamp is flick'ring low;

GERMANY FROM THE INSIDE ENGLISH GIRL'S LETTERS A MOST SEARCHING ANALYSIS

BY MILTON BRONNER.

Was there a real flesh and blood English girl named Christine Cholemondeley?

Lid she really write letters from Germany wonderfully revealing the state of mind of the German people just before their master made war, or are her letters only pieces of clever fiction?

These questions have all the literary sharks arguing in a circle. Some say the letters bear the inimitable stamp of reality. Others say they reveal so complete a romance that they must be fiction. And still others think the book is fiction built up on real letters.

The publishers, the Macmillan company, reply all they know is: Months ago one of the firm met socially a Mrs. Alice Cholemondeley and there was some casual comment about a proposed book. There the thing dropped and no one has ever seen or heard personally from Mrs. Cholemondeley since. However, a lawyer called and presented a manuscript by her and it was accepted and printed.

The book purports to be made up of letters written by Mrs. Cholemondeley's daughter Christine, who went to Berlin the latter part of May, 1914, to study under a great master of the violin. There she met an army officer, became engaged to him, and was torn from his arms in August when England entered the war. High officials told Christine her lover could not marry an enemy woman. She died friendless and alone in a German hospital, as her mother was not allowed to come to her.

Besides telling this story the letters are full of the spirit she encountered. She found all the Germans talking constantly of war long before the murder of the Austrian crown prince. They were filled with a lust for loot and blood. They groveled before their superiors.

She described the scenes in Berlin when it was known war was to be declared, when she saw grave old German professors and stout old German housewives shrieking, sweating, cheering, throwing hats and bonnets up in the air every time some royal princeling put in his appearance.

Some of the keenest criticisms and analyses of Germans found anywhere are in these letters. For instance, the great violinist is one of his truth-telling moods says to her:

"We are still so near, as a nation, to the child and to the savage. To the clever child and the powerful savage. We like simple and gross emotions and plenty of them; obvious tastes in our food and our pleasures, and a great deal of it; fat in our food and fat in our women. And, like the child, when we mourn we mourn to excess, and enjoy ourselves in that excess; and, like the savage, we are afraid, and therefore hedge ourselves about with observances, celebrations, cannon, kings.

"In no other country is there more than one king. In ours we find three and an emperor necessary.

"The savage who fears all things does not fear more than we Germans. We fear other nations, we fear other people, we fear public opinion to an extent incredible; we fear our own manners."

He adds the only person they do not fear of God.

"Wir Deutschen are the easiest people in the world to govern because we are obedient and inflammable. We are inflammable because we are greedy. Dangle some one else's sausage before our eyes and we will go anywhere after it."

Christine quotes this biting saying about the German attitude toward womanhood and maybe it explains what German soldiers have done to Belgian and other women:

"Germans divide women into two classes; those they want to kiss, and those they want to kick, who are all those they don't want to kiss."

"The public is that shouting, perspiring mob out there watching the soldiers, and Frau Berg and her boarders are the public, and so are the soldiers themselves. The public here are all the people who obey, and pay, and don't know; an immense multitude of slaves—abject, greedy and pitiful. . . . I don't think I ever could have imagined a thing so pitiful to see as these respectable middle-aged Berlin citizens, fathers of families, careful livens on small incomes, clerks, pastors, teachers, professors, drunk and mad out there publicly on the pavement, dancing with joy because they think the great moment they've been taught to wait for has come and they're going to get suddenly rich."

And here is a hint of what the allies are going to have to do to the Prussians:

"It is queer to think of the fear of God having to be kicked into anybody, but I believe with Prussians it's the only way. They understand kicks. They respect brute strength exercised brutally. I can hear their roar of derision if Christ were to come among them today with His gentle 'Little children, love one another.'"

NO CHANCE FOR AN INDEMNITY.

(Indianapolis Star.)

Germany not only is facing a military defeat, but is confronted by financial disaster. Its responsible leaders realize that it must have victory or defeat. A peace based on anything less than German terms will mean woe. Von Tirpitz expressed the sentiment now actuating his country's war lords when he said, as quoted, "Peace without heavy indemnity means Germany's defeat and the victory of Anglo-American capitalism."

Lord Northcliffe, in addressing the American Bankers' association meeting in Atlantic City, said, "Financially Germany lives in a circle and can go on a long time spending her own money among her own people." That is true, but does not help the German situation in any respect. Germany has been going on a long time spending its money among its own people. It can continue to issue war loans to be subscribed and paid for by money the government printing presses are turning out. It can force its manufacturers and merchants to take that money first as Villa forced the use of his money in territory he dominated.

There is nothing back of the vast pyramid of debt and evidences of debt except the credit of the German empire. Conservative financiers estimated last spring that the debt owed in Germany at that time had reached a point where the entire income of the nation would not suffice to meet the interest charge. Interest is being paid now by issuance of more money. That process may be continued indefinitely, while Germany is at war and the people can be made to stand for it, but it is merely staving off the day of reckoning.

Germany, according to a prominent statistician, was bankrupt six months ago. Its condition is worse each day the war is continued and the only hope is, as von Tirpitz says, to force the United States, Great Britain or some other nations to pay a huge indemnity that will rehabilitate the empire's finances. Germany imposed a billion-dollar indemnity on France in 1871, and that was a much more important sum than today. It still has visions of looting the treasuries of its opponents.

It may go on, as Lord Northcliffe says, piling up debt and spending its own money among its own people, but Germans should realize that they are already defeated, if "peace without a heavy war indemnity means German defeat." They never will get a cent of indemnity from the United States. It is equally certain that Great Britain, France, Italy and our other allies have no intention of paying tribute to Hohenzollernism. Germany may go on for a while, but it is only to worse defeat.

MUST GET RIGHT VIEWPOINT.

(Philadelphia Record.)

A Berlin dispatch says that "the majority of the Germans are sincerely and bitterly disappointed. Another peace dream has been shattered," because the rest of the world views with such complete indifference the responses made by Kaiser William and Emperor Charles to the pope's proposals looking to a cessation of hostilities. If there is such intense disappointment it is only another proof of the inability of the Teutonic mind to grasp the point of view and sentiments of the people of other nations. The Kaiser's note did not ring true. While there were many fine words in it there was an ignoring of certain all-important details, such as the restoration of Belgium, which put a stamp of insincerity upon the whole message. The world sized it up correctly, even though the well-trained and disciplined German masses did not.

The law prohibiting the importation into France of foreign postage stamps has now been extended to apply to the stamps of France itself. The reason for this is that some 3,000,000 unused French stamps have been stolen by the Germans from postoffices in the invaded part of France, and it is desired to destroy their value to their present holders.

"And I had no idea it was SO beautiful!"

These are some of the things that we hear every day.

Others say: "It is remarkable that such a wonderfully attractive place as Brook View and West Brook View can be sold at such reasonable prices and on such easy terms."

The fact is that we are mighty proud of Brook View and West Brook View, and we shall always be thankful that it was our privilege to develop this beautiful place. We took a plenty of time to do it. The streets are laid out right. The sewerage and drainage plans are right. The streets are paved right. The ornamental boulevard lighting is properly installed—in fact, all of these modern conveniences, together with gas, electricity, water and all, are just what were needed to make a place of natural beauty into a most desirable residence neighborhood. We feel that Spy Run brook received the best of attention. Have you stopped to think how it has been so well preserved that the city has gladly accepted it, with its surroundings, as a city park?

Now, all this is yours. See West Brook View NOW. The sale opens in earnest on Saturday, October 13. BUT YOU MAY MAKE YOUR RESERVATIONS NOW, IF YOU WISH.

PIONEER TO CELEBRATE NINETIETH BIRTHDAY

More Than Hundred Relatives to Spend Day With Mrs. Margaret Craig.

(Special to The Sentinel.) Ossian, Ind., Oct. 3.—Mrs. Margaret Craig, one of the pioneer residents of Ossian, will celebrate her ninetieth birthday anniversary on Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Allen, where she now boards. More than a hundred of Mrs. Craig's relatives and friends have been asked to spend the day with her. A basket dinner will be enjoyed at the noon hour. Mrs. Craig was a daughter of Robert and Mary A. McConnell and was born in New Jersey in 1827. She came to Wells county, Indiana, with her parents and later became the wife of William Craig, now deceased. Practically all of Mrs. Craig's life has been spent in and near Ossian.

What Causes Wrinkles? What's the Remedy?

Stop to consider what produces wrinkles and sagging of skin. Premature aging, mal-nutrition, etc., cause the flesh to shrink, lose its youthful plumpness and firmness. The skin then is too large for the flesh underneath; doesn't fit tightly and snugly as it used to—it wrinkles or sags. It must be plain that to tighten the skin, make it fit the face perfectly in every place, will effectually remove the hateful wrinkles and bagginess. This is easily and harmoniously accomplished by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxonite in a half pint of witch hazel and using the solution as a face wash. The ingredients you can get at any drug store. The results are surprising. The skin immediately tightens up, becoming firm and fresh as in youth. Every wrinkle and sag is affected at once. ### WEAVES TANGLED WEB ABOUT HIS BUSINESS

Benjamin Ascher is Charged With Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses.

Benjamin Ascher, 26, has woven a tangled web about his business life that may not be unraveled for several days. He is being held until Tuesday under $300 bond on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Ascher was first arrested on Tuesday morning by Detective Sergeant William Pappert, who found that the young man had an automobile which was stolen from Cleveland, O. The owner of the car had traced Ascher here and claimed his property. When the damages had been paid by Ascher the Ohio man refused to prosecute and Ascher went his way.

Later he was taken in charge by Detective Sergeant Junk and Rundle, who had a complaint from W. V. Reiling, 1415 Harrison street, to the effect that Ascher had passed a worthless draft for $25 on the Detroit Suspender company.

The police say they have word that Ascher has been active in fraudulent money cases in Ohio and Michigan. An investigation is being made. Ascher had been in Fort Wayne two days when arrested. His wife is staying at a local hotel. She declares that she is innocent of any misdealings on the part of her husband.

Appeals Case.

It is nothing uncommon for Mrs. James Webber, who lives in the 1500 block on Boone street, to rush from her home screaming "help" and "murder."

Neighbors testified in police court Wednesday morning. The cause is always a brutal assault by the husband, it was told.

Tuesday afternoon Webber kicked his wife in the side while in a drunken rage, it was told. The woman fell to the ground after calling for aid. Several persons ran to the Webber home. The police were called. Webber was arrested after Stationmaster Joseph War Declared on Rats by U. S. Gov't.

The government at Washington is preparing a campaign that should be effective in killing the rats that are so destructive both to lives and property. A conservative estimate places the loss of foodstuffs from rats at over two hundred million dollars annually, and in the present scarcity of food, this loss must be prevented. The most efficient way to "kill the rat" is by the use of Stearns' Paste, and thousands of dollars worth have been bought by the government. Every housekeeper troubled with rats, mice, roaches or waterbugs should buy a small box of this reliable exterminator and stop further loss of food in her home.—Advertisement.

Digitz had chased him for a half mile down the Nickel Plate tracks.

Webber was fined $25 and sentenced to five days in jail by Judge Kerr. The convicted man put up $150 as an appeal bond.

Other Police Court Cases.

Cases of public intoxication were: William Foster, fined $5 and costs; Vere Brown, fined $5; Claud Williams, $5; Tom Pine, $5. Henry Bair, Grace Blanty and Bob Johnson were released.

Honey Cain, held on a warrant, and Charles Casey, charged with disorderly conduct, will be tried on Thursday.

Yon Thurn-Lewis.
The wedding of Miss Angela Lewis and Rev. Robert von Thurn was quietly solemnized Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lewis, 2810 Indiana avenue. A few intimate friends and relatives were present, including a sister of the groom, Miss Ruth von Thurn, of Alma, Mich., and relatives of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Favorite, of Huntington. The officiating minister was M. C. Tunison, pastor of the South Side Baptist church. Mr. Favorite played the Mendelssohn wedding march as the bride and groom took their places for the marriage service. The bride wore a becoming and pretty gown of white tulle with a low satin and net and held a bouquet of white roses and swansonia. Miss Elvah McGuire was bridesmaid and her costume of pink georgette crepe and tulle was well set off by her flowers, a combination of pink roses and forget-me-nots. Many pink and white asters, cosmos, gladioli and dahlias formed an attractive setting for the wedding party and the dining room table, from which a buffet breakfast was served, was pretty with a decoration of flowers and dainty appointments. Early in the afternoon the bride and groom left for Lake James, where they will remain a week, but before going north to St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, Minn., they will visit at the bride's home. The bride is wearing a blue tailored suit with black hat and tan boots and gloves for traveling. After the first of November Rev. and Mrs. von Thurn will be at home in Morgan Park, a suburb of Duluth, Minn., where Mr. von Thurn is pastor of the Community church. Garden City is a steel town that has sprung up within the past three years which accounts for the community congregation. Rev. Mr. von Thurn is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob von Thurn, of Alma, Mich., and received his education in that city, graduating from Alma college and then going to Auburn, N. Y., where he took up his ministerial studies and was graduated at Auburn seminary. The bride is a refined and cultured young woman of extremely pleasing address. She specialized in domestic science at Michigan Agricultural college, Lansing, and has since taught that branch, first in Holland, Mich., and later in Coleraine, Minn.

Schneider-Nichter.
The pretty wedding of Miss Clara Margaret Nichter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Nichter, and Mr. Clement Schneider, Jr., took place on Wednesday morning in St. Paul's Catholic church. Rev. Father Kroll officiated at the marriage ceremony and at the nuptial mass. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Bertha, and a little flower girl, Lorraine Schneider, while Mr. Herbert Fargis was groomsmen. The bride looked very sweet in her handsome gown of white tulle, trimmed with pearls and neck flappings of white georgette crepe. The bride carried her wedding gown and also fashioned her veil in a Red Cross effect that was held on each side with tiny clusters of swansonia. The bridal bouquet was a colorful one of white roses and swansonia, with a shower of ribbon and flowers. The bridesmaid wore a pretty combination of silver lace with tulle of white green crepe over it and a yellow bertha and sleeves of crepe. The little flower child was in white and she wore a wreath of tiny yellow daisies in her hair to match one worn by the bridesmaid. The bridesmaid's flowers were yellow 'buns. After the marriage the wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride, 732 Walnut street, and his program was a delightful one. In the afternoon the bride and groom left for Chicago for a few days. The bride wore a robin's egg blue velvet cloth suit with white satin hat, boots and gloves of white and a brown marten scarf. When Mr. and Mrs. Schneider return home they will live for the present with the bride's parents. The groom is a bookkeeper at the General Electric works and is a son of Mr. C. A. Schneiders. He is a fine young man and his bride is an equally bright and capable young woman. They have hosts of friends.

Malott-Graeter.
The wedding of Miss Myrtle Graeter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Graeter, of Washington boulevard west, and Mr. Harold Grant Malott, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Malott, of New York city, took place on Tuesday evening at the home of the bride at 8:30 o'clock. Rev. C. Claude Travis officiated in the presence of the immediate relatives. The young couple had been engaged for some time but decided quite recently to have the nuptial knot tied, and kept their intentions within the family circle as much as possible, though an inkling of the wedding got abroad yesterday. The bride wore a traveling suit of brown cloth with hat of black velvet and trimming of gold, as she and the groom left later in the evening on a motor trip without revealing their intended destination. Miss Hope Graeter, sister to the bride, came home from the University of Chicago, and a brother, Russell Graeter, came home from Purdue university to be present at the marriage. The bride is a graduate of DePaul university, and belongs to the Delta Zeta sorority. The Monroeville high school loses a valuable teacher in the marriage of this young woman as she had begun her work there a month ago. Mr. Malott is an electrical engineer who obtained his university schooling at Purdue and during the time was employed at the Fort Wayne Electric works in the summer months. From Fort Wayne after graduating from the university, Mr. Malott went to Denver, Colo., with the Denver Gas and Electric Light company, and is now with the Henry L. Doherty company's accounting department, New Orleans, where with his bride they will be at home after the first of November. Mrs. Malott expects to make a visit of several weeks with her parents later in the fall as Mr. Malott is to make a business trip to Mexico City, and her many sincere and admiring friends will then have an opportunity to offer their congratulations.

Cramer-Lechty.
The Y. W. C. A. library was the scene of a beautiful wedding on Tuesday evening, when Miss Minnie Lechty and Mr. Samuel Cramer were united in marriage. Rev. C. Claude Travis performed the ceremony at 9 o'clock with the associate friends of the association present. The decorations were elaborate and beautiful and were the work of the bride's personal friends. Ferns in hampers and singly, white asters, bit jets of marigolds lent a cheery look as well as made a charming background for the pretty bride, who looked especially well in a gown of dark blue silk with white satin flappings. The bride's flowers were a corsage of Ophelia roses and swansonia. Miss Alma Lechty, a sister to the bride, was the bridesmaid, and Mr. Harry Ploeger was groomsmen. Miss Leah Gardner played the wedding music and Miss Maude Gwin sang. Refreshments were served after the young couple had received the congratulations and many wishes for happiness from the company. The bride has been unusually admired and popular with the many patrons and members of the Y. W. C. A. and there were many testimonies in proof of it on her wedding. Mr. Cramer is connected with the Northwest Ready Roofing company, and his home is in Indianapolis. Mr. and Mrs. Cramer have gone to Chicago on their wedding trip and will go to housekeeping in East Lewis street on their return.

Miller-Dunton.
Miss Vesta Dunton and Mr. Roy Miller and Miss Carrie Knop and Mr. Ralph Mengis, of near Hometown, motored through this city Wednesday morning to Spiceland, where both couples will be united in marriage by Rev. E. A. Bunner, their former pastor. Shortly after the ceremony the brides and grooms will leave for Kentucky and Tennessee, visiting Mammoth Cave, the famous battle grounds, and other points of interest. They will return home about October 15. Mr. and Mrs. Mengis will go immediately to housekeeping at 1219 Huffman street, Fort Wayne, while Mr. and Mrs. Miller will remain with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anson Dunton, until their new home is completed.

Eversole-Loring.
Friends of Arthur H. Eversole and Mrs. Belle Loring Howard will be interested to know of their marriage on Monday, September 24, at the home of the groom's parents at Warsaw, Ind. Mr. Eversole, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Eversole, formerly of this city, was until recently employed as assistant timekeeper of the General Electric works, resigning to enlist in the service of his country. Mrs. Eversole has for several years been in the employ of the S. F. Boxer company. She is a daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. T. Loring, who also formerly resided here, but who are now residents of Woodstock, Ill.

Lint-Meyer.
Mrs. Alice A. Meyer, of 1091 Broadway, and Dr. Edward L. Lint, of Elkhart, were married Tuesday evening at 5 o'clock at the parsonage of Christ Lutheran church

AT THE MAJESTIC

"The Girl Who Smiles" Saturday Matinee and Night.
"The Girl Who Smiles" direct from its successful run of 200 nights at the Longacre theater, will open at the Majestic, matinee and night Saturday. Of all the productions made this season, "The Girl Who Smiles" enjoys the distinction of having the longest run to date on Broadway of any of them. Although commonly described as a musical comedy, it is more than that. It is a light opera in a class with "The Chocolate Soldier," "Havanna" and a fit successor to "Alma," "Adele" and "The Midnight Girl," which was written by the same author, Paul Hervey, Jean Briquet, the English version having been made by Adolf Phillips and Edward A. Faulstich. It will be presented by the same wonderfully balanced company in its entirety that so impressed itself in its long run in New York. The remarkable thing about "The Girl Who Smiles" is that, independent of its beautiful music, it has a story that in itself without music would be an exceedingly interesting play. But it is, of course, enhanced by its gorgeous music which runs to waltzes. There are no less than one half dozen in the score, any one of which would carry a musical production to success. "Very Good Eddie" Monday Evening.

"Very Good Eddie" will appear at the Majestic theater Monday evening. Seat sale tomorrow. The show comes here fresh from a year's engagement at the Princess theater, New York, followed by five months at the Garrick theater, Chicago, and brings a cast in which there have been scarcely any changes since the opening in New York a year and a half ago. Among the singers, dancers and comedians who participate in the performance are Donnam Maley, George Mack, Harry Meyers, Helen Raymond, Florence Earle, Theodora Warfield, Lavinia Winn, Harry Linkey, Jean O'Brien, Elaine Ford, Ralph O'Brien and the original swaggar fashion chorus, which was the talk of Broadway. "Very Good Eddie" is the third of a new type of musical shows which have made the Princess theater the most fashionable playhouse in New York, and it is the first of the Marbury-Comstock productions to be seen in this city. Apart from its wealth of smart comedy and unique stage devices, the show boasts of a score by Jerome Kern which contains over a dozen of the most tuneful melodies heard in a long time—many of them already popular here.

LONG TACK SAM.

Wonder Working Celestial on Bill at the Palace.

Long Tack Sam, the wonder working celestial with the Chinese sense of humor with his hand of acrobatic tricksters will be the feature of the bill opening Thursday afternoon for the last three days of the week at the New Palace. Long Tack Sam is the chink who became famous through his needle trick in which he takes several scores of needles into his mouth and brings them out with a thread running through their eyes. His acrobatics are startling too for he performs some feats that the average ground tumbler would run out on.

In addition to Long Tack Sam and company the New Palace will offer Hilton and Lazar, the two million dollar dolls, in a smart little fantasy; John Boyle and Edna Maze with their dancing darlings in a ray revue, "Echoes from Broadway"; Ray and Emma Dean, in their novelty skit, "Leave Me Alone, Darn You"; Edna and Lynn in their descriptive delving into dance doings, and the Curtis Canines, in a wonderful dog act.

Tonight will be the final performance for the double bill which includes the Pepple and Greenwald All Girl revue, and the famous Alexander Kids in song and dances.

Very Beautiful Is "Purity" at Colonial

The great photoplay, "Purity," about which much has been written, is shown at the Colonial theater all of this week. The picture is wonderful artistically and in no way is objectionable, particularly to such as are "pure in mind," for like the character, Purity, so beautifully presented in every way by Miss Audrey Munson, there will be only shrinking from the portrayal of the evil intent of one character, Blacky, by name, and nothing but beauty seen in the presentation of painting and sculptor and lovely womanhood by Miss Munson. The opening part of the picture is the allegory of Pandora and her box, which her curiosity leads her to open and thus releases the spirit of evil, who proceeds to spread harm everywhere. The real drama contains nothing new as a story, but presents much that is really educational as well as artistic and beautiful.

There's Still Time—Make More Relishes

BY BIDDY BYE.

This is the open season for making pickles and below are some of the best pickle recipes to be had for the use of Madame Housewife.

Pepper Relish.
Twelve red peppers, 13 green peppers, 12 onions, 1 pint vinegar, 2 cups sugar, 3 tablespoons salt.

Chop peppers and onions. Cover with boiling water and let stand for five minutes, then drain, add vinegar, sugar and salt and boil mixture five minutes. Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

Chutney.
Two dozen ripe tomatoes, medium size, chopped, 4 onions, medium size, chopped, 2 red peppers, chopped, 2 green peppers, chopped; 1 dozen tart apples, chopped; 1 pound seedless raisins, 1 cup celery, cut fine; 2 quarts vinegar, 3 cups sugar, salt.

Combine the ingredients and cook the chutney until it is thick and clear. Pour into hot, sterile jars and seal.

Tomato Relish.
Scald and skin 15 ripe tomatoes. Pare, core and cut in small pieces 5 sour apples. Peel five medium sized onions. Chop very fine or use food chopper. Put in large saucepan with 2 level tablespoons salt, 2 green peppers, 1 level teaspoonful black pepper, 1/4 teaspoonful cayenne pepper, 1/2 pint vinegar. Bring to boil and cook slowly one and one-half hours. Seal while hot in sterilized jars. Mild and delicious to serve with meats and fish.

Sour Cucumber Pickles.
Soak the cucumbers in brine strong enough to float an egg. The best way to prepare the brine is to measure its strength by a quart of water, placing an egg in the vessel and adding salt until the egg floats, keeping watch of the amount of salt required. The remainder of the brine can then be prepared using the same proportions. This method insures against too much salt.

If the kettle in which the pickles are to be cooked is lined with grape leaves, and after the pickling mixture is added the top is covered with grape leaves, it is said that the pickles will retain their natural green color. The sour pickle mixture is as follows:
One quart vinegar, 1 1/2 teaspoons whole black pepper, 1 1/2 teaspoons celery seed, 1 1/2 teaspoons allspice, 1 tablespoonful sugar, 1/4 teaspoonful mustard seed, 1 1/2 tablespoons cinnamon bark, 1/4 teaspoonful grated horseradish.

Mustard Pickle.
Two quarts cucumbers, 3 quarts green tomatoes, 3 quarts cauliflower, 2 quarts small onions, 1/2 pound mustard, 1/2 cupful flour, 5 cups brown sugar, 1 green pepper, cut fine, 2 quarts vinegar.
Cut up vegetables and scald in salt water and drain well. Mix mustard, flour, sugar and pepper, add vinegar and boil ten minutes. Pour mixture over chopped pickle while boiling hot and seal in scalded jars.

PRETTY, NOVEL DESIGN FOR ORNAMENTAL TOWEL

Quaint and pretty was a bath towel noted recently. It had yellow sunflowers worked in satin across the bottom, which was scalloped in big square scallops of white. These scallops were outlined on the inside with blue. Blue tassels were hung between the scallops, and the effect achieved was exceedingly quaint.

SALMON LOAF.

One can of salmon, four tablespoons of milk, two eggs, two tablespoons of melted butter, or other fat, one-half cupful of bread crumbs, speck of pepper, one-fourth teaspoonful salt, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley. Rub butter into salmon, put crumbs into the beaten eggs, mix all together, season and bake twenty minutes. Serve with the following sauce or baked tomatoes. Sauce: One cupful of milk, two tablespoons of cornstarch, one tablespoonful of butter, juice from the salmon, speck of salt. Cook until it thickens and serve with

RICH AND DIGNIFIED.

By BETTY BROWN.

Here is a wonderful gown which will warm the heart of the stately woman who prefers richness and dignity to the frothy frills suited only to the ingenue. This handsome frock is built of a new material called water-scarf consists of three strands of the finest scintilla, a lovely textile which lends itself to heavy drapings and graceful folds. The beauty of the lines is enhanced by the material, which is hand decorated with a panel of conventionalized flowers in colors and in metallic paints. The neck and sleeves are outlined with a row of bright colored, dull surfaced beads, and the single shoulders are draped with three strands of the same beads, an odd touch to this rare costume. One arm is dropped and the other bare, a startling but most becoming feature of elegant evening dresses.

From Milk Wagon to a Million Is Goal of Hitter Hornsby

BY J. B. SHERIDAN.

TWO years ago Rogers Hornsby, a red-necked Texas tyke, aged 20, was driving a milk wagon in Fort Worth for $60 a month. This season Hornsby is hitting himself into $750 a month with his baseball bat. If Hornsby learns to field a little bit this year, that is, becomes an average major league shortstop, he will draw about $2,000 a month for hitting baseballs next season.

A $1,000,000 ranch in Texas is the goal of Hornsby's ambition. Some dash to riches!

Two years ago Hornsby's annual income was $720, if he worked full time. Now his income is $750 a month for six months. Next year it may be $2000 a month.

Going some with that old baseball bat!

When he drove that milk wagon in Fort Worth, Hornsby had to get up at 1:30 a. m. and start on his route. He was through by 10:30, or thereabouts. Then he had to act as chambermaid to his horse and as manicure to his wagon. All of which made his day twelve hours long.

Now Hornsby, for his $750 a month, sleeps in the softest down, has the finest sheets, monogrammed pajamas, a private bath, a valet if he wants one, a game, hits a couple of pitched balls hard, and is done for the day.

After dining like a prince, he gets into his motor car, takes a ride to cool off, retires at 10:30 and sleeps until 8.

When he drove that milk wagon in Fort Worth Hornsby wore overalls. Now he has his clothes made by the best tailors in St. Louis and New York. His underwear costs more than his suits cost three years ago, and he spends more for a tie or a pair of shoes than he was wont to spend on a pair of trousers.

Hornsby's Property.

Every month Hornsby puts money in the bank. He is a money-getting young batter of baseballs. He is only 23 years old and has been off the hurricane deck of the old milk machine only two years, but here is a list of his property as given by a pal:

One handsome bungalow, beautifully furnished; valued, $8,500.

One lot in business district of Fort Worth; value, $1,000.

One lot in residence district of Fort Worth; value, $250.

Seven hundred and forty acres of land in West Texas; value, $15,000.

Total, $24,750.

How did he do it off three years' salaries which aggregated $2,500?

I don't know. I only know that the above list of Hornsby's properties were published in a St. Louis paper some time ago. Hornsby drew his first baseball salary, $125 a month, with Denison in 1915. The season endured but five months. Hornsby drew a salary of $1,500 in St. Louis in 1916 and was given a bonus of $500 for extra good work. Thus in two years we find Hornsby's aggregate salary reaching $2,500. How he managed to support himself, his family—his mother is a widow—and accumulate $24,750 worth of property in two years off a salary of $21,150 a year is more than I can understand.

No matter what Hornsby has done in the past, he has a rare future. He drew less than $500 salary for his baseball season of 1915. He will draw almost $5,000 for the season of 1917. What he will draw for 1918 depends upon himself. He can hit well enough to draw any salary you may care to name. If he can add to his hitting capacity ability to field up to the major

So you see things come pretty easily for a whipcordy Texas kid who came North with his baseball bat under his arm.

Hornsby was a typical Texas "red-neck" when he came out of the Red River Valley. He was tall and thin and slim, and the sun had already etched wrinkles in his neck. He was knock-kneed and hollow-chested. It did not seem that he could either field or hit. He "sat down" at the bat, that is, choked the implement, held it short, crouched over the plate and did not seem to have strength enough to hit a ball out of the infield. Hornsby seemed underfed and overgrown. The experts booed at him. He did not look like much in the field. He spent a few weeks of the 1915 season with the Cardinals and went back to Texas without having attracted the attention of anyone.

It was by some sort of a fluke that Hornsby turned up in the Cardinal training camp the following spring. No one gave him a thought. As a matter of fact, the original Hornsby never did turn up again. Instead, there was a big, broad-shouldered, up-standing, bold young fellow, who weighed 40 pounds more and looked forty ways better than the Hornsby of the previous autumn.

"Where did you pick it up, Pep?" said Manager Huggins, gazing admiringly at Hornsby's new magnificence. "Must have quit giving other people the milk and drunk it yourself?"

"That's about right, Cap," drawled

Hornsby. "I done slept a pow'ful lot and I shoah drank a lot of milk. Between the good old sleep and the good old cow, I weigh 40 pounds more than I did last fall. I can hit them forty miles farther, too, and throw them forty times as hard."

"You can stand a lot of weight," said Huggins, "for you were all skin and bones last fall. Come on, let us see you hit."

Hornsby began hitting then. He has been hitting ever since. In 1915 it seemed that a good major league pitcher would knock the bat out of his hands with a fast ball. Now the major league pitcher who gets out of a game against Hornsby alive has reason to congratulate himself.

There can be no sort of doubt that Hornsby is one of the great hitters of baseball. Not since the days of Edward Deleahanty has such a free-swinging slugger been seen at the plate. Sometimes they ask if Hornsby is as good a hitter as was Deleahanty.

No, I should say, not so good now as was Deleahanty when in his prime. But Hornsby has three years to go before he reaches his prime as a hitter. If I do not mistake, Deleahanty was some four years in the National League before he obtained recognition as a great hitter. Del did not make a good record as a hitter in his first two seasons in the National League. He was at his best when he had served seven years and was about 30 years old.

Hornsby has a good many years to travel before he is 30.

Is Nearest to Deleahanty.

Hornsby is not so good a hitter now as Deleahanty was when I first saw him in 1895, his sixth season on the major leagues. I did not see the great Del when he first came up, so I cannot say how he compared with Hornsby when that boy first graduated into the big show. All I do know is that Hornsby is the nearest thing to Del in fair, free swinging that I have seen since the big Cleveland fell through the fatal draw bridge at Niagara Falls some fourteen years ago.

No, thinking it all over, Hornsby, green, is not yet so good a hitter as Del was in his prime. Remember that Hornsby is years off his prime yet. Del was a "player's player," a "hitter's hitter." That is, good judges of what constituted good hitters liked Deleahanty's style and execution better than they liked the style and execution of Lajoie, Burkett, Keeler, McGraw, Jennings and other good hitters of the day.

Del had two great points as a hitter. He stood into the ball, stepped into the plate as he hit, and he always picked good balls to hit.

Lajoie was famous for hitting bad balls. Burkett liked to hit the curve ball. Jennings liked a fast one. They all had their favorite balls to hit, but Del had no favorite and no weakness. He had a splendid eye, he always liked to hit the good one, and he had a perfect parry for every thrust of the pitcher.

Hornsby reminds me more of Del than any player I have ever seen bat. Hornsby does not take the full swing the old fellow took, but he comes as close to taking it as the next best man. Hornsby does not get quite so good a "hold" of the ball as Del did, does not time it as well.

Hornsby hits the ball with a swift, sweet smack; Del reached up and "took hold of it" after the peculiar fashion in which professional hitters differ from amateurs. Taking a fuller and easier swing, being a larger man, Del hit the ball heavier, put more weight behind his blow; in all, hit the ball harder than Hornsby hits it. Del was a "player's player," a "hitter's

HERE'S KEY THAT UNLOCKS THE ENTIRE RUSSIAN CRISIS

Charles Russell Tells Readers How They May Understand the New Democracy—He Watched Faces and Behavior of Marching Thousands and Saw They Were Inspired by Brotherhood.

BY CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL.

There was one thing about that huge demonstration of Sunday, July 1, in Petrograd; that was so significant and instructive we were all mighty glad to have seen it.

It was, in fact, the key to the whole situation. Anybody that got hold of that key would know absolutely whether there was any danger in remaining in the city that day. He would not need to resort to guess work or listen to the timid souls that see disaster lurking in every shadow.

Also, he would know a great deal more about the Russian people as they really are than he could learn in a thousand years by hanging around the ballroom of the Hotel Astoria, circulating in our best society or listening to the reactionary pipe dreams of the gentlemen in evening clothes that want the czar to come back.

Five hundred thousand people marched that day in that parade. Those that ought to know said so. To have no reason to doubt them. I know only that it was a monster demonstration, the largest I have ever seen.

Men, women and children marched together and showed what the real people of Russia really are. They represented about 80 per cent of the population of Petrograd. They were workmen and workingwomen and their children.

The women and children wore their simple best. Often they made a stirring and rather handsome picture, with their white dresses and red sashes.

Everything was in perfect order; they marched very well. But that was not what taught us things. We got our instruction from watching their faces and their behavior.

It was perfectly evident to any observer that here were people under an unusual exaltation of feeling, and that the feeling was fine and good.

There was nobody in that crowd that I saw that looked sullen, or angry, or grouchy, but every face seemed lighted up with a fine enthusiasm.

They marched with a springing step as if they were glad to be there. When they sang it made one think of some kind of religious ceremony. The songs had no note of defiance or ill will; they were all songs of brotherhood and love, and sung with extraordinary feeling.

To suppose that these people were about to turn loose the red tides of slaughter or rip things up the back was just idiotic. Anybody with any symptom of the observing faculty could see they were not of that kind. There were detachments in that parade representing every shade of political opinion—except of course the foreign colony that takes tea at 5 o'clock and wishes the Romanoffs were back. Every political party had its marchers in line and these were continually marching past one another, Bolsheviks running across Mensheviks.

and Syndicalists of the I. W. W. type running across conservative Tradeunions. But there was no clashing among them.

If a parade of Tammany Hallites should bump into a parade of fusionists it is a safe bet there would be a riot call in three minutes. But these inferior and lowly people that have so much to learn from us were quite able to respect one another's opinions and not beat one another's heads in.

When they got up to the Field of Mars all alike did reverence to the memory of the heroes of the revolution that are buried there. Bolsheviks or Mensheviks, Syndicalists or Conservatives, they all seemed to feel exactly the same emotions in the presence of these dead. Orators of every shade of opinion paid tribute to the men and women that fought in the revolution, and from the uniform response it was evident that the revolution touched one profound spring of faith. Men might differ violently as to the next thing to do, but they had only one opinion about what had been done. They were all democrats.

The burial place in the Field of Mars, by the way, is rather a remarkable sight. In the old days the field was a perfectly level sandy plain, used as the parade and drill ground for the garrison. The dead of the revolution are buried in its center. When I first saw them the graves were marked only with wooden crosses and red banners. Almost over night, you might say, the place was transformed. The sandy waste became a beautiful garden, set with shrubs and a profusion of flowers. Men and women toiled voluntarily for many days to set the sods in place and plant and water the flowers. On this Sunday a water was set apart for the banners and each detachment as it finished its march laid its banner upon the pile until the accumulation was about eight feet high.

It is on this spot that the great monument to the revolution, already designed, will be erected. But—to come back to this matter of the character and behavior of the people—isn't it plain that this little story of Demonstration Sunday illustrates the whole situation?

Persons that have no faith in the people are shocked at the idea of farmers, teamsters and blacksmiths in charge of a government can see nothing but trouble. If such people are to parade of course there will be disorder, and every man with a starched shirt on his back had better run away. If the farmers, teamsters and blacksmiths sit in control of the national council of course there will be nothing but anarchy until the better elements get hold of things and show us what's what, as they were designed by God to do.

So you can see now plainly enough why we have all these widely differing estimates and predictions concerning Russia. They depend upon the faith of the man that makes them. Snobs, of course, can see no prospect but ruin. You take a gentleman that circulates in the exalted atmosphere of Petrograd's best society and makes there his observations of Russian people through the bottom of a tea glass and you will find in every instance that he is convinced terrible things are at hand. But others will understand that time is always needed for the solution of these problems, but democracy always finds a way.

"It is the patriotic duty of the American people to see to it that twice as many boys and girls attend commercial schools this year as before. I consider it the patriotic duty of a million young women to come from good homes of this country and immediately equip themselves with commercial training that will enable them to go into the business offices and do the work that otherwise would be left undone."

"It is almost impossible at the present time for business concerns to get competent bookkeepers, stenographers, and stenotypists. What will the situation be six months from now, when hundreds of thousands more of our young men will be taken out of commercial life? Much business in this country is going to be strangled because of the inability to get competent office help, to say nothing about salespeople. Right now one concern needs 500 salesmen, but they are not even considering getting these men because it is impossible."

These two paragraphs are part of a letter just received from a business man of national reputation—a former sales manager for the National Cash Register Company—who has just completed a fourteen weeks' tour, taking him into 95 different cities of the United States and Canada—more proof that the scarcity of office help is not alone local, but NATIONAL. It is your DUTY, your PRIVILEGE, and your OPPORTUNITY to fill some of these vacancies.

Wayne. For sixty-one years she had lived in the same house in which she died.

Mrs. Straughan was born February 27, 1819, at McConnellsville, Ohio. She was married Oct. 12, 1843, to Jesse R. Straughan, who died in 1907. Of their seven children, five daughters are still living, the oldest daughter and only son having preceded her in death. There are five grandchildren.

Mrs. Straughan's early married life was spent along the canal and railroad; that her husband was building. When he became the constructing engineer and first superintendent of the F. & W. & C. railroad, he brought his family to the present home on East Berry street.

The deceased became a member of the Presbyterian church in childhood. Her education at Marietta college fitted her vigorous intellect for a keen appreciation of the best in literature and life.

With almost a century of years behind her, the buoyancy of her spirit was evidenced in her apt replies. Mrs. Straughan was a woman of striking personality, modesty, fidelity to high principles, wide information and habitual courtesy and respect for others.

The surviving children are Mrs. Elsie S. Kelly and Misses Caroline and Jessie Straughan, all of Fort Wayne; Mrs. Alice S. Wyeth, of Mansfield, O., and Mrs. Rose Wilkins, of Davenport, Iowa.

MEMBER OF UTILITIES COMMISSION IS DEAD

William J. Wood, Eminent Railroad Authority, Dies in Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 3.—William J. Wood, a member of the Indiana public utilities commission, died at his home here today of heart trouble. The body will be taken to Nashville, Tenn., for burial.

William J. Wood was regarded probably as the best posted man on railway regulation in the state. For eight years he was a member of the old railroad commission having first been appointed by Governor Hanly in 1905 and reappointed by Governor Marshall. He became attorney examiner for the interstate commerce commission, with headquarters in Washington, in 1914, and served until appointed by Governor Goodrich a member of the public utilities commission on May 1 of this year. Commissioner Wood had been engaged in some sort of traffic work practically since he became a resident of Evansville, Ind., in 1880, first as stock claim agent for the Louisville & Nashville railroad, and later as third vice president of the road in charge of the legal department. While a member of the former Indiana railroad commission Mr. Wood was made chairman of the executive committee of the National Association of Railroad Commissioners. The late commissioner was born in Florence, Ala., March 30, 1850, the son of Gen. S. A. M. Wood, of the confederate army. Before coming to Indiana Mr. Wood practiced law, edited a newspaper and served his native state in the legislature. Mr. Wood is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. John H. McNeely, of Evansville, and one son, W. B. Wood, of Detroit, Mich., all of whom were present at the time of the commissioner's death.

RECOMMEND DR. LEACH FOR DAIRY INSPECTOR

City Health Officers Ask Safety Board to Act at Once.

Dr. Ed P. Leach, practicing veterinarian in Fort Wayne for the past eleven years, has been recommended by the health board for the position of city meat and dairy inspector. There is no doubt but that the recommendation will be ratified by the board of public safety, in whose hands the appointing power lies.

Dr. Leach will succeed Dr. Paul Kuecher, who is now a lieutenant in the United States army. It is understood by Dr. Leach that he is not to give his full time to the office, although he will make the round of inspections demanded by the department. He is now serving as an assistant state veterinarian and his work has been highly commended by state officials.

Dr. Leach has practiced as a veterinarian in Fort Wayne for eleven years. He was born in this city and is a graduate of the Fort Wayne high school. His medical work was in the Chicago Veterinary college. The health board has asked that the board of safety act upon the request of health officers at once as there are administrative steps to be taken by the dairy inspection department which cannot be delayed.

LIKE THE ROSE

Waste Places in Lakeside Park Will Be Made to Bloom.

The waste places in Lakeside park, which unsightly heaps and caverns were once the neighborhood dumping grounds, are to blossom like the rose. Two thousand rose plants are to be placed in the Lakeside park by order of the park board, Tuesday.

The ground is to be graded and laid off for planting of the many species of roses in the near future. Park Superintendent Adolph Jaenicke is preparing plans for designing the lines of rose bushes. The plants will be in the ground before winter sets in.

Four hundred varieties, representing nearly every known shade and form of dwarf rose bushes, will be placed in the region where the unsightly pools and piles of earth have greeted the eye. The large rose bed will be one of the most beautiful in this section of the state in two summers, Jaenicke plans.

The plants are being purchased at a modest sum by the park board. The park superintendent will keep a close guard over the plants and has stated that he will be able to assure their hearty growth. He made a specialty of the care of roses when employed in the east.

In his plan to transform all waste places of the city the new superintendent is very enthusiastic about the prospects of enhancing beauty above the ashes of the Lakeside park.

NO SALARY ACTION.

Council Awaits Report of Committee on Wage Scale.

The council is preparing to avert many measures by one action, when that body meets, next Tuesday evening. A report from a council committee will give the salaries of all city employees who are now receiving less than $100 a month for their labor. The council will vote a raise for all men in every department that is thought to be needing an increase at this time.

The committee, which was appointed at the committee of the whole meeting, Tuesday night, is made up of Keller, Arne, Welch, Rogge and Kinder. These men will investigate the wage scale in all city departments. They will bring a report before the councilmen, who will meet as a committee at 7:30 Tuesday night, just before the regular council session.

Action of the council in deferring the salary raise, which was asked by employees of the waterworks department, is largely prompted by the report of the board of works, which urged that all departments of the city be considered when a raise was given.

MANY VACCINATIONS.

Line of Boys and Girls Pass Through Health Office.

A continuous line of boys and girls, nearly all from the St. Mary's school, passed through the health board office, Wednesday morning. It was an army of wry faces and bared arms. More than 100 vaccinations had been inflicted by the health officers before noon.

Every effort is being made to prevent a smallpox epidemic, which apparently has a fair start in the St. Mary's school from sweeping the city. Health officers claim that they have been handicapped in their work because they were not notified of the illness in many cases.

The state health department was requested, on Wednesday, to report to the Fort Wayne board the results of all positive smallpox cultures made in Indianapolis. Local health officers state that they have learned of smallpox cases, which were announced from the state laboratories and not reported to the Fort Wayne board. This gave local officers no chance to establish proper quarantine.

New cases reported Wednesday were Harold Desheimer, 12, 214 Madison street, and Edward Welling, 15, 610 Madison street.

COUNTRY CLUB GIVES RED CROSS PROCEEDS

Money Cleared at Golf and Tennis Tournament Donated.

The Fort Wayne Country club has donated $137.63 to the Red Cross fund. This money is the proceeds of the golf and tennis tourney, recently held under their direction. This money will be used in the refugee movement, on which the Red Cross is now working. There is a great need now by the people in the devastated war countries for warm winter clothing and the women are undertaking to give all the clothing that they can to these refugees. Men, women and children in the devastated parts of Europe are facing the rigors of winter with no means of obtaining clothing. The need is desperate and the United States could help to meet this need if every woman in the country would send at least one outfit. This clothing must be absolutely clean, serviceable and warm. Therefore it is the policy of the committee, having the work in charge, not to accept what are known as second hand garments, but materials can be thoroughly washed and re-made into what is practically new clothing.

Mrs. Mary Edison, the domestic science teacher of the high school, has been made chairman of the Junior Auxiliary society, recently established at the high school. Children in all the schools of the city are eligible to membership. The pupils in school become junior members of the Red Cross and are entitled to wear the Red Cross membership button. Membership is granted for the period of the school year, and renewals of membership should be made, therefore, at the beginning of each school year. The children will have a chance to work on anything that they can do, in the way of knitting, sewing and the like. One of the first things undertaken will be the manufacture of trench-coats.

President Wilson says that this work would teach the children to prepare supplies which wounded soldiers and homeless families lack. He says further that it will learn them to be the future good citizens of this country which we all love.

Named Warehouse Inspector. Postmaster E. C. Miller, of Fort Wayne, has been appointed as the Red Cross warehouse inspector of Indiana. All of the work completed by the various chapters is sent to one of the three Indiana warehouses and is shipped on to its destination from those places. Fort Wayne has the northern Indiana warehouse, which is located on North Calhoun street.

NEW PARTY IS FORMING

Radical and Progressive Elements Are Gathered in Chicago.

SOCIALISTS AND PROHIBITIONISTS

Expect to Take Possession of the Government in 1920.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—The organization of a new national political party is the announced purpose of a conference here today of a number of prohibitionists, progressives, social democrats and single tax adherents. The party is yet unnamed, but it proposes to elect "half a dozen United States senators and between twenty and forty members of the house of representatives in 1918," according to an announcement of the leaders. In 1920, the prospectus of the party says, a march upon Washington will be made to "take possession of the government."

A tentative draft of the platform which is to be submitted to the conference, said to have been written for the most part by John Spargo, formerly a socialist, approves universal suffrage, the initiative and referendum, the recall, the short ballot, the executive budget and proportional representation. National prohibition is demanded and the declaration made that all traffic in liquor must be outlawed. Extinction of land monopoly, public ownership of coal mines, oil wells, telegraph and telephone systems and other public utilities and the use of union labor in all governmental activities are among the demands made in the Spargo draft.

The voting strength in today's conference was fixed at twenty votes each for the prohibition, progressive, single tax and social democratic groups.

BEARISH WEATHER HITS CORN PRICES

Reported Shortage of Crop Causes Reaction from Drooping Offers.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Warmer weather and a prospect that no unseasonable cold would be experienced for several days had a moderate bearish influence today on corn. Estimates, however, that the yield was 50,000,000 bushels less than was expected a month ago led to a rally from early weakness. Opening quotations, which ranged from 1/2¢ to 1 1/2¢ like advance and 11.19¢ @ 1.18¢ for May, was followed by a general downturn and then a reaction to slightly above yesterday's finish.

Oats held comparatively firm. Realizing in which yesterday's chief purchasers indulged led to a downturn in provisions.

(BY W. LUCAS, M. D.)

The general conclusions of the latest Medical Scientists prove that drinking plenty of pure water both between meals and with one's meals is beneficial to health. For a great many years it was the erroneous opinion of many medical men and the public generally that the habit of drinking water with the food was harmful to digestion. It has now been proven by means of the X-rays and actual tests upon many healthy young men that the drinking of large amounts of water with meals is often beneficial. Therefore if you want to keep healthy drink plenty of pure water (not ice water). Both with your meals and between meals. If you suffer from backache, lumbago, rheumatism, or any of the symptoms of kidney trouble—such as deep colored urine, sediment in urine, getting out of bed at night frequently and other troublesome effects, take Anuric (double strength), before meals. These Anuric Tablets can be obtained at drug stores.

DELICATE YOUNG GIRLS; MOTHERS!

Goehen, Ind.—"When I was a young girl just coming into womanhood I suffered greatly. This caused me to become all run-down, weak and nervous. My mother gave me Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I have never been troubled since. I am now the mother of four strong healthy children and I have always taken this medicine during expectancy and afterward to give me strength which it always did. I consider it very fortunate in knowing of 'Favorite Prescription.'" —Mrs. MARVET GOSS, 315 S. Main St.

A new postoffice arrangement has been put into effect here. Columbia City becomes the central office and supplies everything and is responsible for the quarterly balance reports from each of the following so-called district offices: Larwill, Chubbuck, Peabody, Collamer and Coesse. South Whitley remains a second-class office, but is no centralization point, and gets its supplies from and mails reports directly to the department at Washington, same as the local office.

GARRETT GRAYS HAVE SUCCESSFUL SEASON

They Have Won Twenty-Two Games and Have Lost But Four.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

Garrett, Oct. 3.—The Garrett Grays have just completed the most successful year of their existence. According to the records they have won 22 games and lost but four. This includes the schedule of the Baltimore & Ohio league, which was practically the same as the city team. The Lincoln Life team defeated the Grays one of the two games with them, one was dropped to Kendallville, and another to Hicksville, Ohio, when all of the team could not be there for an exhibition game. The Cumberland game at Philadelphia, was the other defeat.

During the season they have established themselves as one of the fastest teams in this section of the state and Garrett produced a team that played for the championship of the Baltimore & Ohio division. They won the Vorhees cup offered to the best team on the northwestern branch of the lines. During the year Jack has pitched three three-hit games and one two-hit game and has batted as good as any man on the team. Much of the credit for his development goes to Fred Streiff, of Fort Wayne, who has caught for Garrett all season.

Have will be wrought with the team for next year for Meis, Garrett's first sacker and pitcher and Fred Streiff, of Fort Wayne, both leave Friday for Camp Taylor to enter the national army. Several other members of the team are subject to draft.

Manager Mike Sweeney has the honor of developing one of the best teams in the state and they have met many Fort Wayne teams, defeating all of them except the one game with the fast Lincoln Life men.

The conversation between the salesman and the "prospects" was entirely enlightening, and filled the salesmen with clinching sales points, while proving highly amusing from an entertainment viewpoint. EXTREME CAMOUFLAGE IN THIS RUINED WINDMILL WHICH IS A CONCRETE GERMAN OBSERVATION POST

THEY ALL TOTE 'EM ON CANNON BALL BRANCH

Delicate Hand of a Delilah Causes Westerner Loss of Trusty Gun.

All the boys working on the Cannon Ball branch of the Great Northern railroad, out in the Dakotas and across the plains of Montana, carry firearms. James Phillips, 40, son browned and storm hardened, was one of the boys, until two weeks ago.

He read in one of those "heart-and-hand" journals of a comely lass of about forty summers, out east in Indiana, who was willing to marry a fellow of the sterling qualities possessed by Phillips. Life is lonely between ships on the Cannon Ball branch so Phillips wrote a letter. His effort was rewarded by a missive, penned in a delicate hand which of itself spoke of a cheery hearthstone and hot mince pies. Phillips wrote some more.

Culmination of the correspondence between the two lonesome souls was an appointed meeting between Phillips and Miss Someday, who lives in or near Kendallville. Phillips gained leave of absence from his foreman two weeks ago and prepared to come east. He purchased a new layout of "duds" at Moberge and began a 1,100 mile trip to Kendallville. As he was not going to a political convention and would indeed be among strangers, who might be worse than the wounded steers on a cattle train, he slipped his trusty revolver into his pocket. The big weapon is marked by several rough notches which Phillips says were made by dropping the gun and not the signs of the weapon's sureness. After Phillips met "the woman," whose name he guards with the unfaltering fidelity of the plains, he decided to make Fort Wayne his headquarters and from the Summit City to call upon his friend. He had made several trips to Kendallville before Monday evening. He believes his quest of the east has been successful. He frankly told Judge H. W. Kerr in police court, Wednesday morning, that he expects to take Mrs. Phillips back to the northwest.

Maybe it was his elation at the outcome of his last call upon the fair Hoosier maid which caused Phillips to grow mellow in the convivial atmosphere of a Calhoun street saloon Monday night. He bought several rounds. He was finally unable to properly control his emotions.

Patrolman Gottfrich chanced that way and gathered Phillips in the protective arm of the law. He removed the Colt revolver from Phillips' hip. The stranger who admits that he does not know a man within a hundred miles of Fort Wayne, was charged with carrying concealed weapons. He put up the defense, Wednesday morning, that he was a traveler.

Judge Kerr held that the little man has lingered too long in Fort Wayne to be considered as "on his way." He fined Phillips $10 and costs and ordered the revolver destroyed. Phillips said that he would have appealed the case only he wants to get up to Kendallville and then "if all is right," to take a wife to Moberge. He paid his fine.

Name Executive Committee to Manage Campaign in Fort Wayne.

An important meeting was held Tuesday at the Commercial club to further the cause of the boys' working reserve of this city. The following committee was named to direct the work of the movement:

Arthur Hall, A. O. Newell, S. W. Greenleaf, C. A. Phelps, Prof. F. S. Lockridge, G. W. Boers, C. A. Wilding, A. L. Randall, W. N. Ballou, Stephen Callahan, Harry G. Hogan, Prof. Louis Dorn, L. C. Ward, J. J. Ritter, W. E. Gordan, Dr. C. O. Rothschild, Dr. Eric A. Crull, E. G. Hoffman and D. O. McComb.

Charles R. Lane was chosen as the temporary chairman but owing to his many other duties was unable to accept. L. H. Dauten was named the permanent secretary.

The plan outlined at this meeting was to divide the city into units, in the same manner that political workers arrange their work, and appoint a boy as lieutenant who will have supervision over his district. Mention was also made of the fact that many people do not understand this movement. Boys are not required to join this reserve unless they choose. It is merely a means of placing the boys between certain ages where they may do the most good for themselves and their country.

Broth Which Made Family Ill is Being Tested by State.

The family of Emil Koerber, 2139 John street, became violently sick Tuesday night, after supper. Three physicians were called to attend the members of the household, which includes the family of a daughter. The eight persons who were treated are improving.

Members of the family told the physicians that they suspected that their illness was caused by soup, which was a part of the supper. It was feared that Emil Koerber, who was intoxicated Tuesday evening, had placed some chemical in the broth.

A quantity of the soup was sent by the city health board to the state chemist at Indianapolis Wednesday. The liquid will be analyzed and a report returned at once.

Koerber denies putting anything in the soup. He was ordered held until Oct. 6 under $300 bond by Judge H. W. Kerr in the city court Wednesday morning.

lon, Fred Reppert, of Decatur, one of the leading sale criers of northern Indiana, will cry the sale. Arrangements were made to seat nine hundred people and if the advance crowds that have been coming in is a good criterion their expectations will be realized.

BACKSTOPS WHO WILL FIGURE IN CHAMP WAR

Schalk Almost Sole Catcher for Sox, While Giants Have Three.

New York, Oct. 3.—Analysis of the work of the various players by positions in past world series emphasizes the fact that with the possible exception of pitchers no member of the team is under greater physical or mental strain than the catcher during the battles for the championship of the major leagues. In the handling of delivery and signals, close plays at the plate, throws to cut down base stealers and in backing up first and third in throws from the outfield, the catcher is both a busy and important factor in the contest.

A sharp eye, steady judgment, a powerful throwing arm and cool courage are necessary requisites for the player who dons the mask and wind pad in the most important of all baseball games. It is fortunate that both the Chicago Americans and the New York Nationals are equipped with catchers of this calibre for the series of 1917 which begins in Chicago next Saturday. While the Giants have a slight advantage in quantity in this department of the game, the White Sox are generally conceded to have an edge in the quality of the receiving staff.

The Chicago catchers include Ray Schalk, Byrd Lynn and Joseph Jenkins, while the New York quartet consists of George McCarthy, William Rariden, George Gibson and John Onslow. As both Jenkins and Onslow are comparative newcomers, they are not likely to figure in the series to any extent and their chance of seeing service is extremely remote. Schalk is expected to bear the catching burden of the White Sox in every game of the series unless he should be incapacitated by accident or illness. He has caught in more than seventy-five per cent of the season's games while Lynn has acted as receiver in the others. Rariden has done the greater amount of the backstopping for the Giants this year, due in part to the fact that McCarthy broke his leg early in the season and was out of the game for several months. Gibson, the former Pittsburgh receiver, is the third string catcher for New York.

If McCarthy can stand the strain of the game, and it is the impression among the New York players that he will be physically fit for the fray, he will undoubtedly have first call upon the position. This will bring him into action against Schalk. The latter is unquestionably one of the best catchers of the day. He knows the weaknesses of the various batters and, as he can handle the delivery of any and all the Chicago twirlers, he will be able to signal for any form of curve or break that he may think puzzling to the man at the plate.

The outstanding feature of his play, however, is his fast and accurate throwing, to other bases. He must be a speedy sprinter and perfect slider who would pit his skill against Schalk with any degree of success. McCarthy is not so brilliant in this feature of the catcher's art but he is an excellent director of the work of the hurlers and is a far stronger batter than Schalk. According to the season averages there is little choice in the fielding work of the two catchers but the White Sox backstop is much faster on the base lines likely to prevent him from taking chances at base stealing in an emergency.

An injury to Schalk in the early stages of the coming series would work havoc with the Chicago club, for while Lynn is an ambitious player, he lacks the experience and all around ability of his principal. In this respect the New York team is in a better position to face such a disaster for either Rariden or Gibson, owing to their greater experience can step into

MANAGER M'GRAW'S HUSKY STAFF OF CATCHERS

McCarthy, a great backstop and fine hitter, will bear the brunt of the Giants' catching. He should outbat Schalk by a wide margin, but hardly will rival the White Sox star in the other departments of the game. Rariden is little behind him in power on offense and defense, while Gibson is a seasoned veteran of the champion Pirates.

McCarthy's place with less disconcerting effect upon the team play than would be the case were it necessary to substitute Lynn for Schalk. This can be seen from a comparison of the following records, which include the batting and fielding averages, stolen bases and double plays of the five catchers who may participate in the series:

Will play with famous Dayton team on Oct. 14.

The management of the Friar football team has completed arrangements for a game here October 14 with the famous Dayton Engineering and Laboratories team. The Dayton aggregation last year was one of the best in Ohio and is said to be equally as strong, if not stronger, than last season.

Manager Rosseter made a scouting expedition Tuesday and practically closed the contract for two players who, because of their college connections, will have to play here under assumed names.

Seats for Sunday's game will go on sale Friday. Hereafter seats will be put on sale every Friday, instead of Thursday, as last year, at Shuman's and Dennis' cigar store, on Calhoun street.

DORIS WILL PLAY WITH FRIARS SUNDAY

Popular Quarterback Has Promised to Play in Opening Game.

Charles E. Dorais, quarterback, will play with the Friars in the opening game next Sunday against Camp Custer. While the announcement has caused some surprise in view of last season's experience with him, there is no denying that he is one of the best quarterbacks in the business.

Dorais is said to be in splendid condition and is really anxious to again play in Fort Wayne. His participation in future games this season will depend upon the sort of an agreement that will be reached, if any, when he comes Sunday.

The Lure of Chance for Fortune Grubstaking Prospectors

THE scope and intent of the "law of grubstakes" among miners on the Pacific Coast have probably never been so thoroughly discussed among lawyers and miners in California as in the last few months. Several knotty cases have been in the California state courts to determine how far a grubstake goes, and just what a grubstake is, where there is no contract or stipulation, verbal or otherwise, between the mining prospector and his grubstaker.

One of the cases is that of George Abrams of Los Angeles against the Berigo Mining Company of San Bernardino county, California. Abrams claims that he boarded and fed a prospector, Henry M. Biggs, who found and located the Berigo mine, and that the board was considered a grubstake. The mining company and Biggs claim that the board was paid for by stable work by the prospector several months after it was provided.

Abrams claims a one-third interest in the Berigo mine, and he has won his case in the Superior Court. One-third of the Berigo mine is said to be worth about $15,000. The mining company is defending the suit vigorously and has employed lawyers who ridicule the plaintiff's claims under the grubstake law.

In all the mining regions of the West there are men constantly investing in grubstakes for poor and trusty prospectors. Hundreds of bankers, professional men and merchants all over the West have for years laid aside at periods certain sums of money from their earnings to provide for the grubstakes of men who have given assurances that pay ore may be found in a certain canon or mountain range. It is not uncommon to see in the local newspapers of California and the West a paid item to the effect that "so and so grubstakes reliable and competent mining prospectors."

A grubstake nowadays commonly means food, a few mining tools and a lot of dynamite sticks or candles for blasting in rocks where precious metal is suspected.

Always Hope Deferred.

The average mining prospector is a hard-up, visionary, good-natured, philosophic soul, who has endured much and pursued long in following the beckonings of fortune over burning desert wastes, among lonely and barren mountains, across desolate crags and peaks and along desolate canons and gulches. He has been dead sure scores of times that he has found rock that was going to be his fortune stroke and has been disappointed almost as many times. He is just as certain as error that he is at last looking in the right field for the right sort of rock.

A little more grubstaking and he will soon find a ledge of gold ore that will make him and his friend rich beyond the dreams of avarice. His food consists of a bushel or so of beans, a chunk of salt pork, jerked beef, crackers, sugar and coffee. He can shoot game almost anywhere in the mining region and he therefore requires gunpowder and shot.

The expenses of a grubstake is from $10 to $13 a month. If the grubstaker makes his partner believe that the chances of finding a golden ore ledge are uncommonly bright, and that the dangers of finding and locating the mining are considerable, there may be an extra grubstake, including a pack donkey or two, and the promise of several hundred or thousand dollars down as a bonus when the mine is found and assayed. Sometimes two prospectors may work over a range of mountains together a season, both being grubstaked by a man at home. In case a mine is located, the grubstaker and the prospectors have each a third of the property.

Not one grubstake agreement in a hundred is written. The common law of the Western mining regions is so strong, and there is a certain sense of honor among professional prospectors and mining men regarding the contract for grubstakes, that it is a discourteous suspicion to suggest that the terms be put on paper. The late Gen. Fuller of Los Angeles, who was in mining and grubstaking for forty years, said that he never knew of more than half a dozen written grubstake agreements.

The principal men who grubstake prospectors have themselves been mining prospectors and know at a glance "live" rock from "dead," and have ideas of their own as to where prospectors may have some chance of finding hidden wealth.

Richard Gird, who made a fortune of $2,000,000 in the Tombstone mines in Southern Arizona, the soul of the great beet sugar industry at China, Cal., once told the writer that he spent from $2,000 to $4,000 a year for a long time in grubstaking men in the Sierras and Rockies and in Lower California. He considered it the best kind of investment. He got a third interest in a silver mine in Chihuahua, Mexico, from a $200 grubstake in 1896, and sold it for $38,000.

The late United States Senator George Hearst of California made the search for new mines more of a wholesale business than anyone. He made all his fortune of $20,000,000 in gold and silver mines. In the last ten years of his life he kept as many as fifty men prospecting in the Sierras and Rockies all the way from Vancouver, B. C., to Sonora, Mexico. He had an accountant in San Francisco, who was required to keep a record of the grubstake moneys and outfits sent to the prospectors here and there on the coast. He required statements to be made to him by each prospector at stated periods concerning the work that was being done, and what might be found in his particular field.

Hearst employed men to go and look into the prospects and assay the rock when a report came to the San Francisco office that favorable ledges had been discovered. When a particularly good report came, he occasionally went in person to see what the prospector had uncovered. Some of his more trustworthy and industrious prospectors worked on salary and grubstake, too, but most of them were merely grubstaked.

In this way the senator came to have interests in a half dozen first-class gold mines in Oregon and Arizona, and a share in twenty other less successful mines.

Small Chance to Mislead.

It is easy to see how a mining prospector may deceive his grubstaker. While the latter may be at his business or home in the city, the prospector may be enjoying the summer camping along some stream where there are good fishing and plenty of good game to hunt. But such prospectors do not deceive a sagacious grubstaker long, for the grubstaker usually has been a prospector himself at some time, and he knows from the specimens of rock that the prospector brings to him at the close of the grubstaking period how much ground he has searched over, and has some idea how thoroughly the prospector has employed his time.

This year there has been in the Arizona courts a suit involving some $250,000 in the Gleason mine, because of a misunderstanding, it seems, between the prospector, Harry Edwards, and Edmund E. Randolph, a railroad man. The case shows how near a man can come to share in a fortune and then lose it. Edwards last summer told Randolph that he knew where there were good prospects near Tacna Station, across the blistering desert that surrounds Yuma, in Arizona. Randolph grubstaked Edwards for three months at $14 a month.

When Edwards came back empty-handed, Randolph declined to pay another dollar on mere opinions. Then a locomotive engineer, H. B. Gleason, put faith in Edwards' stories and sent him out with another grubstake. In December Edwards found the pay rock, and it has proved the richest find in Arizona since the Harqua Hala mines were discovered in 1890. The mine is known as the Gleason, and one can hardly pick up an Arizona or Southern California newspaper today without reading something about it.

H. B. Gleason is no longer a locomotive engineer. He and Edwards say they will not sell for less than $1,000,000. They have sold ore from their mine in one week for more than $21,000. E. E. Randolph has a suit in the courts for a third interest in the mine, claiming that in as much as he grubstaked Edwards in that same locality in search of the ledge that afterwards was found, he is entitled to a third of the property.

A Long Fought Case.

A few years ago there was a long and costly litigation in the United States courts in California concerning the Sunset mine. A blacksmith in San Bernardino, Cal., Warren Udell, had grubstaked a prospector, George E. Filmore, from June to September, 1885. Udell claimed that Filmore found the vein of silver ore in the Santa Anita Mountains in the month of July of that year, and he brought prospectors to prove that they saw Filmore working at that time in the very locality where the Sunset mine was located.

Udell asserted that Filmore had covered up his find and came back to San Bernardino and pretended to be discouraged at his failure to find ore. Then, he alleged, when the period of grubstake was passed, Filmore went back to the Santa Anita Mountains and pretended to have stumbled on the ore, so that he would not have to divide with his grubstaker. The case was bitterly fought, but Udell won at every point to the Supreme Court of the United States. Filmore died in the midst of the litigation. The mine was sold for $145,000. Udell got some $60,000 for his grubstake of $35.

The wide latitude given to the interpretation of the law of grubstakes is well shown in the case against the estate of William Hillegas of Oakland, Cal. William Hillegas was a Dutchman from Pennsylvania. He came to California in the 50s. He was poor in health and pocket, and his cousins made up a purse of a few hundred dollars to help him to California, where he was to try his luck in the gold diggings and live out of doors in sunshine.

Hillegas went to what is now Oakland, squatted on land, and became a small merchant among the settlers in Oakland. He grew to be a rich landowner and died wealthy about 1904. The Pennsylvania cousins came on to California, and, under the grubstake law, claimed from the Hillegas widow and children a share of the estate. They alleged that they in reality grubstaked William Hillegas when a young man, and that while he did not actually go into the mines on the capital they had provided for him, they were entitled to grubstakers' shares in all that he made with their money as a start. They won their case.

The Nicholas Mine Contest.

Some singular decisions of the law of grubstakes have been made in California and the Southwest territories. The most famous is that of the big Nicholas mine in Amador county in this state. George W. Field and Henry Potter were working in the Goler placer mines over across the Mojave desert some ten years ago. They used to spend their holidays in amateur prospecting among the foothills of that region. They became acquainted with a placer miner, Ben Wilson. One month when Field and Potter had gone on a long prospecting tour they went to see Wilson at his shake-roof, redwood shanty in Nogger Canyon in Amador county. Wilson urged the men to stay with him, for he had not seen a white man in the locality for weeks. Together the three miners went searching over the hills every day, looking for signs of precious mineral. After a two weeks' stay at Wilson's cabin Field and Potter packed their donkeys.

"We've had a good time," Wilson afterward swore that Potter said as he was cinching his jackass that morning, "and I guess we'll have to find a gold mine for you."

That agreeable brotherly remark cost Field and Potter several hundred thousand dollars. The following month the two prospectors went forty miles beyond Wilson's cabin and located the Nicholas gold mine. When a year later they had interested capital in their find and were taking out ore worth $200 a day from the tunnels, Wilson came over to see them.

"Well, now, what I want to know," said he to the happy and enthusiastic Field and Potter the second day after he had arrived upon the scene of mining operations, "is where my interest comes in this here Nicholas mine?"

"Your interest?" said Potter, quizzically.

"Yes, my interest," returned Wilson. "Didn't I grubstake you before you found this mine?"

"When and how?" asked Field and Potter, not sure but that Wilson was joking.

"Why, when you two fellows came and lived on my grub at my cabin and took my mule to go over the country and prospect. You never paid me a dime for that board and lodging and the use of my mule, that I know of. That's what I call a grubstake. Moreover, Potter promised to pay me with a mine."

Advised to Compromise.

Wilson was very much in earnest. Field and Potter offered to pay several hundred dollars each for the hospitality of Wilson's home, but he declined the offer and brought suit through one of the most famous lawyers for a third interest in the Nicholas mine. Field and Potter began a defense in the case, but a little later, on the advice of several men eminent in mining law, compromised with Wilson by giving him a fourth interest in the mine, instead of the third to which he made claim under the law of grubstakes. The mine has paid, first to last, some $230,000, and several years ago its value was estimated at $325,000. Wilson died in New Orleans last summer a very rich man.

A world of romance surrounds the history of grubstakes in the West. One hears some most enticing stories in every gold and silver mining region of how this or that person became a millionaire from merely grubstaking a discouraged, poverty-stricken prospector at the very moment when his fortunes seemed at lowest ebb.

That some very large fortunes in the West have come from small investments in grubstakes is founded on fact. The Bonner estate of Arizona and St. Louis came from grubstaking a prospector, James Deuchler, a young German, in 1873. Adam Bonner kept a small merchandise store at Yuma, Ariz. He had grubstaked a dozen prospectors for some years and had never had even a fair prospect found for him. He resolved never to be teased into parting with another dollar for grubstakes.

One day a German named Deuchler, came along, and showed him a peck of sample rocks found in the Brea Mountains, between Prescott and Phoenix. The allurements of grubstaking a man is as potent as a taste for gambling. Bonner agreed to take one more flyer in grubstakes, but Deuchler, was so sure of his find that he made Bonner pay well for the grubstake. The investment cost some $400. The ledge where the mining town of Congress is now booming was found, and the Chance mine was located. Bonner and Deuchler made some $700,000 from the property, and sold it to an English syndicate about 1890 for over half a million dollars.

Lucky Ho Hung On.

A dentist, Dr. Raymond E. Fulton of San Diego, grubstaked Hiram Westcott, among the desolate mountains on the edge of the Colorado desert in San Bernardino county, now known as Calico, from the peculiarly colored formation of rocks there, for four years at $10 a month. He was about to abandon his grubstake and tell Westcott that he had no more money for him. But the possibility of stumbling on a fortune was so enticing that he decided on grubstaking for the prospector another three months.

In that time Westcott found the Yellow Ben and Raymond mines, from which ore to the value of $15,000 a month has several times been taken. Dr. Fulton is a magnate in San Francisco now, and Westcott died and left his family rich in Los Angeles two years ago.

SHELL SHOCK BIG PROBLEM

tion will be devoted will be that of "shell shock" which has proved very troublesome to both the British and French medical officers. Neurologists attached to the various units will study the problem at French and British hospitals and afterwards will give lectures to their fellow medical officers in the hospitals attached to the troops in training.

There is no more pitiful object in the world than a man acutely suffering from shell shock. Hypnotism has been used frequently as a cure for shell shock. It stops the trembling and twitching in most cases, but of late it has come to be regarded as not a real cure.

The British have found that soldiers suffering from shell shock who do not have hypnotic treatment invariably get back to duty quicker than those who do.

Several Senses Affected. Shell shock often causes deafness, dumbness and blindness—the effect of the concussion from an exploding missile nearby. A man may be tossed about by three or four shells without getting hit by a fragment or a splinter, but the effect of this tossing always tells on his nervous system.

Some of the worst shell shock cases have been those where soldiers were buried under the earth thrown up by huge projectiles. Such burial does not always affect the men that way. It is related that recently when an old British sergeant was dug out from under a ton or more of shell debris and asked if he was hurt, replied: "No sir, I guess not, but I am certainly strong for a separate peace."

A remarkable thing about shell shock cases is that none occur during a big battle.

Battle Gives Immunity. The reason for this is perfectly plain. In battle the men are buoyed up by the great excitement, are pressing forward and often are engaged in hand to hand fighting, while all about them is the continual roar of battle. They often become absolutely oblivious to exploding shells under these circumstances until actually hit. Shell shock comes when the men are compelled to sit in trenches for long periods or when they are out on nerve testing patrol duty between the fighting lines at night and a big German missile bursts unexpectedly over them. The treatment of shell shock cases is often closely akin to that for temporary insanity. The doctors and other attendants always strive to get the confidence of their patients and try to start them talking, when the trembling and other manifestations frequently disappear.

Insanity Cases. Various phases of insanity will be a very important branch of medical study this winter, while the doctors are waiting for the Americans to go into the trenches.

Already a number of cases of mental breakdown have been treated in the hospitals. With one or two exceptions, however, these cases have been those usually met with in civilian life, the patient having little to do with the army or the war. One rather pitiful case is that of a man who never gave the slightest trouble, but imagines every night that he is to be shot at dawn.

SHOWERS FAIL TO HALT FAIR

help the cause of democracy. They can give service or money. There are only two classes today, those who "do" and those who "don't" give.

"Indiana made 600,000 new food million next season. The must furnish her part to the world.

"The women must help win this war. Their conservation motto must be 'a clean plate and an empty garbage can'.

"Retail food dealers must get their heads apart. They must quit scheming on food product prices. They must give up a part of their profits for the good of their fellows.

"Farmers must be loyal to the extent that they will be content with small profits. To overcharge by them is for the producers to stand in their own light. It is for every class to help crush tyranny."

Carl Vrooman, assistant secretary of agriculture, who spoke at 3:30, brings a message of encouragement and admonition.

"America will win the war, but every man, woman and child must help to do it," said Vrooman.

"This is not a war of soldiers. It is one in which food will be the deciding factor. It is one in which everybody is to have a part and a voice in the song of victory."

Vrooman urged that the people "get behind Hoover" in the food producing and conservation plan. He spoke especially to the ladies of the Boys' Reserve corps, at the close of his address.

Too Much Salt. Dr. Christian Siller, of Cleveland, was one of the interesting speakers of the afternoon. He talked from 3 o'clock until 4 o'clock on the subject of "The Old Germany and the New."

"There is too much salt in the soup of German civilization," Dr. Siller told his audience. "There was little or no salt in the old regime of Germanic nations. The people felt the need for a little of the chemical of military preparation. They over did themselves. They put in too much salt. They ruined their soup and their lives."

"The German people across the water are to be pitied. For years they have been taught from children up that the Kaiser is the great and deciding factor of this earth. They have been taught to believe that to sin against the government which rules them is the same as a sin against the Holy Ghost. No matter what the rulers may decide upon it must not be questioned. Unconditional obedience is demanded under the doctrine that the King can do no wrong. The moral degradation of Germany today is the most awful part of the whole business. It is not necessary to accept English or French testimony, or even that of stricken Belgium. The Bernstorff incident, the shameful betrayal of the trust and confidence of the American government by the accredited representatives of the Kaiser, the plotting, destruction of lives and property under the guise of friendship even before the war began, should convince us that there can be no peace, no safety, for established principles of democracy until the Hohenzollerns and all they stand for are put where they can no longer constitute a world menace."

Was a Pro-German. Dr. Siller, whose prominence in the Missouri synod of the German Lutheran church, gives him added weight with his hearers, was formerly a pro-German. He made careful study of the situation after America entered the war. He has been converted from his original views and is telling the people why he speaks especially to people who are German born.

"Germany," declared Dr. Siller, "is morally bankrupt. Its people do not know, are not allowed to know the real situation, and their war leaders, steeped in blood and crimes so terrible that neutrals and even enemies on this side can not bring themselves to realize their awfulness, have staked their all in the determination to win this war or destroy the world in doing it. It can end in but one way. Human freedom and the rights of peoples to live their own lives will never die. Autocracy must perish, yet when the divine right of kings is thrown into the doctrinal scrapheap and the Hohenzollerns and junkers are forced to make way for the subjects they so miserably represent, I hope to be able to rally a few friends to the aid of a stricken people. Against the scorn and derision of the entire world they will need a helping hand to live down the disgrace."

Asks Correction. Dr. Siller asked a correction to the story which stated that he had recently been to Germany and that his home is in New York. He has not seen the Vaterland since 1903, he states, and Cleveland, Ohio, has always been his home.

"I am no representative of the Kaiser and bring no message from him," Dr. Siller stated.

New stands were necessary to hold all the exhibits brought to the Central League ball park Wednesday morning for the first free garden fair. More than 200 displays of every kind of garden product are heaped on the counters and platforms in the park. A part of the fruits are of size that is making the farmers take notice.

The three principal speakers of the day are in the city ready to deliver their messages of warning and cheer to the patriots. Carl Vrooman, assistant secretary of agriculture, arrived at 10:15 o'clock. Dr. W. E. Stone, president of Purdue university, came into the city at 10:20 o'clock Wednesday morning. Dr. Christian Siller, of New York, is staying at the home of a brother in the city.

The Elks' band will appear at the grounds at noon. Prof. William Miles has prepared a number of simple yet ringing patriotic songs for the community singing.

"The government charges cannot possibly stand up," he declared.

"The I. W. W. has at no time taken a positive position in regard to the war. Some of the strikes we are charged with starting 'to embarrass the government,' were started before war began. As to our alleged attempt to fight conscription I refer federal agents to the large amount of I. W. W. members who are now in the various cantonments."

"The charge that German money has been backing the organization is ridiculous."

Mr. Christensen admitted that efforts are being made to obtain bonds for some of the leaders. He declared it would be impossible to obtain a total of $1,625,000, which would secure the release of all under indictment, but he intimated some of the members now in jail would be released on bail.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The big drive for the three billion dollar second liberty loan is in its third day, with reports continuing to reach the treasury department in large volume telling of the public's enthusiastic response to the national appeal for subscriptions.

Although no figures were at hand today, treasury officials predicted the success of the bond issue. They based their prediction on the over-subscription of a $400,000,000 issue of federal certificates of indebtedness. This is the biggest issue of short time certificates of indebtedness ever put out by the government.

"On the night of October 1-2 and during the day of Oct. 2, our aviators bombed the railway station at Friebourg, factories at Volkelen and Hottentbach and railway stations at Brienles, Longuyon, Metz-Woippy, Arnaville, Mezieres-les-Metz, Thionville and Sarrebourg. In the course of these various expeditions, projectiles to the amount of 7,000 kilograms (15,400 pounds) were dropped."

The town of Baden, in the Grand Duchy of the same name, is one of the most famous and beautiful watering places of Europe, best known for its medicinal baths. It is a town of some 15,000 about 55 miles from the French border.

DANIEL VINCENT SHEA.
Daniel Vincent Shea, who is now located in San Antonio, Tex., in the signal service of the regular army, writes his friends that he is well pleased with army life. D. V. Shea enlisted last April and left a good position with the traction company, for whom he worked as an electrician. He also had been with the Pennsy.

fighting continues on the Verdun front, says today's official announcement. No important infantry operations occurred during the night. The statement follows:

"East of Rheims our artillery effectively shelled the German batteries and broke up preparations in the enemy trenches for an attack."

"West of Navarin trench detachments penetrated the enemy lines and blew up several shelters, bringing back prisoners."

"On the Verdun front the night was marked by violent artillery fighting on both banks of the Meuse, particularly in the region north of hill 344, where spirited patrol engagements also occurred."

"An incursion into the enemy lines in the region of the Casque gave us good results."

"Everywhere else the night was quiet."

BRITISH OFFICIAL REPORT.

HAS MADE NO PEACE OFFER

The German foreign secretary, makes this announcement, according to an official statement received here from Berlin, in answering the speech made by General Verkovsky, the Russian minister of war, before the democratic congress in Petrograd.

The statement reads: "The Russian war minister, Gen. Verkovsky, asserted at the Petrograd democratic congress that the imperial chancellor (Dr. Michaelis) had stated among other things at Stuttgart, that Germany was ready to return Alsace Lorraine to France. The imperial chancellor's utterances at Stuttgart are generally known and the assertion of the Russian war minister is an invention."

"Gen. Verkovsky further stated that it was Germany's intention to make a separate peace with Great Britain and France at the cost of Russia and that Great Britain and France had informed the Russian government that they would not be parties to any such proposal."

"I herewith state that Germany has made no proposals whatever for a separate peace, either to France or Great Britain."

Last month reports were circulated in Russia that France and Great Britain had received offers from Germany to make peace at the expense of Russia. "They became so insistent that the Russian government obtained formal demands that they would make peace with Germany to the detriment of Russia."

General Verkovsky made this announcement before the democratic congress in Petrograd on September 28.

The reported statement of General Verkovsky as regards Alsace-Lorraine has not been received previously in this country.

TAKES RAP AT LA FOLLETTE

Indiana Council of Defense

SENATE OUGHT TO KICK OUT DISLOYAL

Harm Done by Anti-War Utterances is Cited to the Council.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 3.—Resolutions directed at Senator Robert M. LaFollette denouncing "all acts and utterances of a disloyal nature," were adopted by the Indiana state council of defense at its regular meeting today. "If this had happened in Indiana (LaFollette's alleged treasonable speech,) I want to say that the chairman of the state council of defense would have proceeded to find some way whereby he could have been removed from the state by the neck," said Chairman Will H. Hays, after leaving the chair and speaking in favor of the adoption of the resolution.

The matter was presented to the council by Frank Wampler, after it had been reported by George Ade that much of the work of preparing for war such as knitting, canning, etc., had been interrupted by such false reports as one that the officers were selling the knit articles to the soldiers at Fort Harrison, instead of giving them away.

The motion to adopt the resolution and send copies to Vice President Thomas R. Marshall and the Indiana senators and representatives in congress was made by Charles Fox, president of the Indiana Federation of Labor, and seconded by A. E. Reynolds, of Crawfordsville, after amendments had been made making the text of the original draft "stronger."

Go After Higher Ups.

Mr. Fox said that secret investigators representing the federal government had been circulating among laboring men in the state, a practice which the organization favored and encouraged, "for we want to stamp out all disloyalty," he added, and that he felt that the same exposure and the same punishment should be meted to "higher ups" in the government.

"The text of the resolution follows: 'Be it resolved, that the Indiana State Council of Defense hereby puts itself on record as denouncing all acts and utterances of a disloyal nature.'"

"To condemn and resent an act of treason is the plain duty of every American citizen. The attention of our people has been called to the malicious, false and treasonable-like statements accredited to United States Senator Robert M. LaFollette."

"Such words and acts not only hinder our efforts but misrepresent the heart of our country in this war. They give aid and comfort to the enemy, which has been guilty of crimes against humanity unprecedented and almost beyond belief. Be it veiled or uncovered, treason is treason wherever found, and should be dealt with accordingly."

Would Remove Him. "It is the sentiment of this council that United States senators should immediately give serious consideration to the question of removing from the United States senate any and all members of that body whose acts or words are detrimental to a successful prosecution of the war."

The council directed that another effort be made to interest residents of the state in the importance of conserving the fuel available from fallen timber, in view of the "impending serious shortage of coal."

WAR TAX NEEDS BUT SIGNATURE OF PRESIDENT

Washington, Oct. 3.—Final enactment of the war tax bill, the greatest single revenue raising measure in American history, awaited today only approval of President Wilson. Congress' work on the bill ended late yesterday, when the senate, after adopting the conference report on the measure, rushed it over to the public printer. The conference report already had been adopted by the house. The engrossed bill was ready today for the signatures of Vice President Marshall and Speaker Clark, after which it goes to the president for signature. Presidential approval is expected to follow immediately. The measure, which had been in the making for more than four months, is designed to raise $2,544,870,000 of revenue, chiefly by increased levies upon incomes and war excess profits.

MRS. M'REYNOLDS' BODY CUT IN TWO

Husband Dies Few Hours Later—Another Badly Hurt.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 3.—Mrs. P. W. McReynolds, 35 years old, was instantly killed and a man believed to be her husband, Prof. P. W. McReynolds, 42 president of Defiance college, Defiance, O., died at 12:30 o'clock as a result of the automobile in which they were riding being hit by west-bound passenger train No. 3 on the Clover Leaf railroad at the Curryville crossing, eight miles northeast of here at 11 o'clock this morning. Prof. McReynolds and another man whose name cannot be learned were known to have been in the car. At a late hour it was not known to a certainty whether it was Dr. McReynolds who is dead or the other man.

McReynolds was driving his Haynes Six Sedan, and evidently did not hear the approaching train or if he did hear it misjudged the distance. The engine went "dead" directly upon the track and before the occupants could open the doors and get out the passenger train, running at a speed of sixty miles an hour, struck it.

Body Cut in Two. Mrs. McReynolds's body was cut in two and badly mutilated. The automobile was carried a distance of about two hundred and fifty feet and badly demolished. Prof. McReynolds was bruised and cut.

The party had left Defiance, Ohio, early this morning for Kokomo. It is thought to visit with Prof. McReynolds's brother, Thomas McReynolds, traction magnate and politician. About a mile from the crossing where the fatal accident occurred, Prof. McReynolds had asked the way to Bluffton. The ill-fated car had been purchased but a few days ago.

Successful Teacher.

Mrs. McReynolds was a successful teacher in the schools of Los Angeles, Cal., before her marriage to the college president. She was a talented woman and added much to the life of the Christian school after she had taken up her home in Defiance, three years ago.

Prof. McReynolds had been the head of the Defiance college, the strongest institution of learning of the Christian church, for ten years. He is a brother of Thomas McReynolds, of Kokomo, head of the Marion-Kokomo traction line and a democratic politician of state prominence. Thomas McReynolds was a member of the committee which had charge of the Indiana exhibit at the San Francisco exposition.

THE MARKETS

RAILROAD STOCKS

Wall Street Still Feels Heaviness of Raids, But Speculations Hold.

New York, Oct. 3.—Railway stocks were again a drag on the general list at the opening of today's market. St. Paul fell 1 1/2 to the new low record of 49 1/2 and large fractional recessions were made by Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Reading and New York Central. Further bullish activity was noted in various specialties.

The further heaviness of rails was in part ascribed to the ruling of the commerce commission in suspending trans-continental rate increases which were to become effective October 15. Steels rally 3/8 from their irregularity and Shippings and Motors also recovered.

Liberty bonds ruled between 99.95 to 99.98.

Lemon Juice is Skin Beautifier, Also a Whitener

Many women use just the juice of lemons to bleach or whiten the skin, but pure lemon juice is acid, therefore irritating, and should be mixed with or made white.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quart of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orphard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoothen and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orphard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to bring back to any skin the whiteness, the sweet freshness and flexibility of which it has been robbed by carelessness or trying skin conditions.

CANADIANS FIND NEW GERMAN GASES

Frequency of Gas Shells May Indicate Shortage of Explosives.

Canadian Headquarters in France, Oct. 3.—The enemy early this morning attempted to raid our lines in the Avion sector, but was discovered before he got to close quarters and driven off after sustaining a number of casualties. The infantry activity is generally less than normal but the sound of guns never ceases.

The Germans are attempting more by way of destructive shots on our battery position than they did earlier in the season, but even in this respect they are still behind the British and Canadian gunners. There has been marked increase in the use of long-range high-velocity guns by the Germans. The results certainly do not justify the free use of these guns. The enemy also has increased the proportion of gas shells and has sent us many varieties of gas.

This may indicate that the chemicals from which poison gas is made are available in greater quantities than those required for high explosives.

All the prisoners of good education now speak of the growing scarcity of war materials and particularly of articles such as rubber, cotton and copper, which have neither been produced at home nor obtained from Germany's European neighbors. One of the prisoners taken in yesterday's outpost affair said that while Germany could not be conquered in the field, she would be forced to make peace because of her failure to obtain supplies.

The weather is excellent and the men in the trenches are in good health and spirits. The casualties continue extremely light.

BROTHER FLORIAN MAY ESCAPE WAR SERVICE

Indianapolis Teacher Said to Be Classed as a Minister.

Washington, Oct. 3.—Brother Florian, a teacher in the St. John's Catholic school in Indianapolis, probably will escape military service under the conscription law by being classed as a member of the ministry. The close question involved in determining whether Brother Florian is entitled to exemption was presented by Senator New to the judge advocate general of the army on the request of Brother Maurice, a leader in the St. John's school, who has been anxious that the school not lose the services of the teacher.

Brother Maurice, who is here, showed letters from both Cardinal Gibbons and Bishop Chartand to the effect that they consider Brother Florian as having the same position and standing as a priest.

The question is a close one, but the judge advocate expressed the opinion that the case comes within the exemption provision of the conscription law, and he will request the governor of Indiana to reopen the case for further consideration. It was by a divided opinion, it was said here, by which the exemption board held Brother Florian for military service, but in view of the judge advocate's action the granting of the exemption is expected to follow shortly.

SOCIETY

Miss Lillian Wilding, who is to be an October bride, was the honor guest this afternoon at a lovely party for which Miss Marian Puckett was hostess at her home in Forest Park boulevard. Many pink roses and pink and white candles were used in decorating and pink rose favors were given to the guests, while they contributed jars of preserved fruits to the honor guests. It was a most satisfactory surprise to Miss Wilding and the company had their pleasure in seeing her untie the white papered and pink ribboned packages. Miss Puckett's gift to the bride-elect was of linen, which nowadays is more valuable than money. Knitting was forgotten as the delicious things to eat were served and everyone visited. All appointments of the table and menu expressed the chosen colors for the afternoon.

Again the Country club was the scene of an entirely charming luncheon-bridge, today's event being to honor Miss Martha Vail and her sister, Miss Lucile Vail, being the hostess. The table was beautifully decorated, the rich colors of the season contributing to the florist's skill in producing most happy results. In the center was an odd basket of green and white colors that might well be called a Grecian urn in shape and it was filled with a medley of blossoms, yellow and bronze pompoms, chrysanthemums, purple asters of the wild variety, huddles, pink roses and the squaw flower being the principal ones. It was marked in beauty. Each guest received a corsage of artistic combination with yellow jonquill chrysanthemums, pink roses, bachelor buttons and sweet alyssum mingled, while Miss Vail received a larger cluster of flowers tied with handsome ribbon. The bouquets came from the "Plink Floral company," while at the clubhouse Caterer Keller served in fine style a luncheon entirely satisfactory in every way. There were over twenty guests and the honor guest received more than one pretty remembrance of the affair.

There were a dozen young women present at Miss Ethel Doud's home last evening to pay special honor to Miss Agnes Coppock, also a bride-elect of October. There were many flowers in the rooms and when the shower of kitchen articles fell on the honor guest she had need of her lovely corsage bouquet to hide her happy confusion. Miss Doud used many pink roses, pink place cards, and candles, while at Miss Coppock's place there stood a happy bride and groom on pink ribbons, the latter extending to the center basket of yellow pompoms, pink roses and swansons. The general effect was altogether lovely and the supper was quite tempting and followed the sewing, so this pre-nuptial party was as beautiful as one could wish. Intimate friends of Miss Coppock were present.

Mrs. W. M. Ruth, of Pittsburg, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. E. N. Dillon, of 122 E. DeWald street. Mrs. John Wort has come to Safford, N. Y., to visit Miss Carrie Wort and other relatives.

Miss Florence Henderson, who spent several days with the Messrs. Hayes, of Woodland avenue, has returned home.

Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Samsen, who came the early part of the week from their wedding trip, are stopping for the present in the Syphers apartment house.

Sergt. Frederick C. Phinney, who has been transferred recently to Indianapolis, will be joined on Saturday by Mrs. Phinney and her mother, Mrs. Cora A. Hunter.

Mrs. Lida Vernon has as guests several relatives, Mrs. Earl Palmer, of Memphis, Tenn., Mr. and Mrs. John John Ferguson and Mrs. Robertson, of Paducah, Ky.

Mrs. James E. White is entertaining her sister, Mrs. W. K. Vandergift, of California, and expects another sister, Mrs. Van Eiten, of Sidney, O., in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Patterson, who have been living in Marmaduke, Ark., are coming to Fort Wayne to reside. Mrs. Patterson is a niece of Mrs. A. T. Vail. Mr. Marmaduke will be connected with the Bowerman place.

Mrs. Ross Wilkins and daughter, of Davenport, Ia.; Ralph Weyth, of Norwalk, O., and John Strangham, of Indianapolis, are in the city for a few days, called here by the demise of Mrs. Caroline Strangham.

Mrs. E. G. Trunkley, of Fairfield avenue, has as guests Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Trunkley, of Minneapolis, Minn.

Mrs. Clyde Driesbach and two children left today for Hattiesburg, Miss., to join Major Driesbach, who is stationed there.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dermody and daughter, Dorothy, of Hagerstown, Md., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dermody, of South Hanna street. The visitors came to see their brother, Robert L. Dermody, who had been here about three months, leave for Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky., with the other men enlisted in the army Friday morning.

The "Whose Your Girl?" club was entertained by Miss Cecelia Zurbuch last evening on Baker street. Prizes were won by Theresa Wilhelm, Julia Deck, Lillian Grosh and Loretta Christian. Other members of the club are Misses Bernadette Cranston, Sophia Gruber, Marie Lehl and Edith Rupp. Miss Julia Deck will entertain the club next time.

A marshmallow bake and wienie-wurst roast were enjoyed in Weisser park by members of the T. J. C. club on Tuesday evening. Enjoying the merry time were Thelma Dohler, Norma Gerding, Helen Hattendorf, Velma Hoffman, Catherine Myers and Messrs. John Elk, Carl Sturmal, Gerome Gerig, Arthur Myers and William Dell.

AT THE MAJESTIC

Geraldine Malone With "The Girl Who Smiles," Tomorrow, Matinee and Night.

There are few patrons of musical comedy who have not a fond recollection of Geraldine Malone. She, of the golden-mezzo voice, and who is appearing in the character of "Charisse" with "The Girl Who Smiles," the musical comedy with a brilliant record of Leo performances at the Longacre theater, New York, and which will be presented here at the Majestic tomorrow.

For it is said that no musical artist has had a wider and more congenial experience than Miss Malone. While her associations with James T. Powers, Louise Gunning and Blanche Ring, in "Havana," "The Balkan Princess" and "The Wall Street Girl," respectively, endeared her to all lovers of versatile talent. It is said, however, that in the character of "Charisse" and in the singing of the "Temptation Waltz," introduced in the realistic Bohemian studio scene, which constitutes the second act of "The Girl Who Smiles," that Miss Malone excels as both actress and singer.

Miss Malone is of the pronounced brunette type of beauty and the costumes she wears in "The Girl Who Smiles" display her physical charms to a very decided advantage without offending the keenest sensibilities of the most refined audience, and some of her apparel is startling to say the least. "Charisse" is one of the most exacting roles in "The Girl Who Smiles," and in the keeping of a lesser artist than Miss Malone, the purpose of this creation would suffer unless given the most kind of consideration.

"Very Good Eddie," Monday Night.

"Very Good Eddie" is the ultra fashionable of musical comedies. It is a theatrical production what Fifth avenue is to New York or Michigan boulevard to Chicago. It ran for an entire year at the swaggar Princess theater, New York, and a full season in Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago, and everywhere it attracted the largest, most fashionable and most enthusiastic audiences in years. And now the welcome announcement is forthcoming that "Very Good Eddie," with its complete cast and production, is coming to the Majestic Monday, Oct. 8th.

"Very Good Eddie," has the brightest book of any musical comedy yet presented, being the work of Philip Bartholomae and Guy Bolton; it has brilliant lyrics by Schuyler Greene, while its tuneful melodies, of which there are a score, are the work of that popular composer, Jerome Kern. And it brings its famous rosebud chorus, which will prove a treat for the eye. Those who go to see "Very Good Eddie" with the expectation of enjoying a musical comedy that is different, distinctive and "classy," will not be disappointed.

Patterson-Fletcher's are selling heavy white back overalls at $1.25, that will cost you $1.75 in other stores.

AT THE PALACE

PUZZLE BILL.

Palace Audience Keeps Busy Wondering How it All Happens.

The bill at the Palace for the last half of the week is a puzzle. The audience is puzzled to pick from the array of unusually good acts just which one is the headliner, and when the program shows it to be Long Tack Sam and his Oriental wonder workers, the audience is puzzled again to find out how the Chinaman works his miracles. The act is a whole show in itself, with the singing, acrobatic work, comedy and the wonderful Chinese music. Long Tack Sam has a bag full of tricks, each more wonderful than the one before.

John Boyle and Edna Maze, with their big Girl Review, are next. They have some extraordinary dancing and some stunts that is more than good. Will Burns and Ed Lynn are two funny men who dance and of whom the audience demands three encores. Just as funny are Ray and Emma Dean, with their "Leave Me Alone, Darn You." Hilton and Lazar have some comedy that is a winner and Billy Curtis' dogs come in for their share of the applause.

Beginning Saturday there will be a double show during the big world's series. The electric scoreboard, which has been such a success for the past several seasons will be repeated. The show during the series will begin promptly at 2 o'clock.

Visitors at Steele-Myers.

The evening demonstration at the Steele-Myers store Thursday evening was attended by several hundred people who admired the many beautiful things in the way of fine underwear, lingerie and the demonstration of corsets on living models. Between the appearances of the models the audience was entertained by the beautiful work of Gertrude Gordon, a child dancer from Detroit, who displayed skill and talent in interpretative dancing. Roses were given as favors.

MAKE YOUR OWN WARTIME FURS

BY BETTY BROWN.

"Where are you going my pretty maid?" almost anyone would inquire of a lovely lady attired in this charming costume, whose fine points are the mink and stole of Kerama mole. This set is especially designed to add zest to mid-afternoon stroll, and it ought to succeed for two reasons: It is becoming; it is inexpensive. The mink and stole in the picture are real wartime furs, for they can be

A Picture Puzzle; Find the Dancer

Take another look at the picture. Turn it upside down. Now can you tell which is girl and which is her double?

This is one of the most remarkable reflection photographs ever made. It shows Miss Solweig Hornbeck rehearsing at the edge of a clear lake for the Red Cross pageant stage artists hold October 5, at Rosemary farm, near New York. Miss Hornbeck is a classic dancer so well known that there should be little difficulty in telling which is she and which is her reflection. Now try it again.

P. S.—With considerable premeditation and malice aforethought this picture was printed upside down. That picture above, the one with arms lifted heavenward is not the dancer but her reflection.

CIRCULAR CAPES COME BACK INTO HIGH FAVOR

Smart women have adopted the circular cape with straps across the front of the body as a substitute for the sweater. These wraps resemble the golf capes of twenty years ago. One of the smart French designs is modeled exactly after the Scotch garment.

The dominant idea in the new capes is to have the fullest swing away from the shoulder at the same time that the garment is held tightly in place by two broad straps that are placed beneath the shoulders, cross

We invite your patronage tomorrow without the inconvenience caused in the past two weeks while the improvement to our store front was in progress.

These capes have brilliant linings in figured designs. The printed futurist crepes are better here than elsewhere. Broad, colored stripes in crepe, silk or cotton are also used. Even the jackets of summer suits are now lined with gay colored lining.

Seventeen dollars will buy a fine heavy weight worsted suit that will cost you five to eight dollars more in any other store in the state.

VELVET SUITS IN VOGUE.

BUT REQUIRE LONG PURSE

Velvet suits are back again, but these are only for the money fingers. A taupe velvet shows a wad of white panne velvet embroidered with taupe colored chenille. A lovely wrapping, but not the one that will smile through bad weather and hard wear. Nearly all the velvet suits are grandified by the addition of fur collars and cuffs and so soar up among the high-priced luxuries of the wardrobe.

A callot suit is of santigo satin trimmed with black lynx.

Be careful to avoid a figured lining when giving your order for suit or long coat; plain fabrics, in beautiful changeable effects, are the rule and the law this season.

VARIED AND DELICIOUS DISHES FROM ROMINY.

One cupful hominy, one quart boiling water, one-half teaspoonful salt. (One-half cupful milk, if convenient.) Mix slowly, boil two hours, stir frequently to prevent lumps. (Double boiler if preferred, but requires one-half hour longer boiling.)

Serve hot as cereal with milk or cream; or as cereal with lump of butter in each serving; or as vegetable with dish gravy or brown gravy as sauce. Good for lunch or dinner.

Cold Hominy—Cut in squares, fry brown, serve with syrup or else use to garnish dishes of meat or fish, or croquettes. One cupful of hominy (mashed), egg and flour to mold. Add salt, fry brown, serve with meat.

Patterson-Fletcher show more new fall suits and overcoats than any other four stores in Fort Wayne.

GOOD EFFECT OF WAR-TIME MENUS ON HEALTH NOTICED.

We live today on what we ate yesterday. Nature demands that we supply the body with protein, carbohydrates, fats, mineral matter and water, but she cares little whether we balance our rations by the meal or by the day.

The average American diet formerly supplied all of the food elements in abundance. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, due to over-eating was the national disease.

Following war-time menus will actually reduce disease. Some housekeepers will cut a course from their bills of fare, others will follow the popular fad for "wheatless" and "meatless" days.

It must be remembered, however, that whatever the bills of fare for adults may be, growing children require milk, eggs, custards, baked potatoes and their own special dishes, and cannot be put upon a diet which includes cheese or bean dishes, as substitutes even in the great cause of national economy.

WHEATLESS GRIDDLE CAKES.

Following is Herbert Hoover's recipe for wheatless griddle cakes. Put two cupfuls of corn meal in to a mixing bowl, add a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt; pour over the corn meal two cupfuls of boiling water, stir thoroughly till the mixture becomes smooth, let it stand until cold (about thirty minutes), then add two tablespoonfuls of molasses, six level teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a quarter of a cupful of cold water; mix well, spread with a spoon on a well-greased griddle, or on iron frying pan, in thick cakes; when done on one side turn and cook the other side. Eat hot with honey or syrup they require no butter.

CORN BREAD.

One cupful yellow cornmeal and one cupful wheat flour sifted together. One-fourth teaspoonful salt. One tablespoonful sugar. One cupful milk, added to one lightly beaten egg. One tablespoonful melted butter. Stir milk, egg and butter into the dry ingredients, add three teaspoonfuls baking powder, beat well, turn into buttered shallow tin and bake twenty minutes.

TO FRY RAW POTATOES.

When you wish to fry raw potatoes peel them, of course, and slice as thinly as possible. Then, before frying, soak them for a while in cold water, separating the slices. This will draw out the starch and the potatoes, when fried, will be crisp and brittle, instead of soft and mealy.

CABBAGE RECIPES BY UNCLE SAM.

How to vary the preparation of cabbage from "plain boiled," is suggested by the United States department of agriculture in the following recipes:

Cabbage With Sour Sauce.

After taking off the outside leaves, remove tough stalk from a small head of cabbage, cut in quarters; soak in cold water and cook in boiling salted water in an uncovered dish, adding 4 teaspoonful of soda. Cook slowly from thirty minutes to one hour, drain and serve with the following sour sauce:

Melt one tablespoonful each of butter or other fat, then add one tablespoon of flour and 1/2 cup of milk. Stir over the fire until hot and add one teaspoonful of made English mustard and two tablespoonfuls warm vinegar. Pour over hot cabbage. If preferred, a plain cream sauce can be used.

Smothered Cabbage.

Cut fine one-half head of cabbage. Melt two level tablespoonfuls of butter or other fat in a pan and stir in two level tablespoonfuls of flour. Add the cabbage, one cup of sweet milk, one teaspoonful salt and one-eighth teaspoonful pepper. Cover closely and simmer slowly thirty minutes.

Cabbage Pudding.

Shred the head of cabbage closely and cook in salted water until tender. Drain and place in buttered dish in layers with sprinkling of grated cheese between. To two level tablespoonfuls of melted butter or other fat add 2 tablespoonfuls flour, add a cup of milk, yolks of 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt and 1/2 teaspoonful of mustard. Stir over fire until it boils, then add beaten whites of eggs. Pour over cabbage, mix well and bake one hour.

Stuffed Cabbage.

Remove coarse outer leaves and core. Parboil for 3 minutes. Fill core and inside of each leaf with finely chopped left-over meat (raw meat is best), or sausage. Tie securely in cheese cloth. Place in kettle with 2 or 3 carrots and onions. Cover with stock and let simmer slowly two hours or until tender.

Cold Slaw.

Slice a small cabbage very finely. Soak in cold water until crisp. Drain and dry between towels and mix with cream salad dressing. It will improve the dressing to add to it a very little curry powder.

TO REJUVENATE BROOM.

When a broom has been worn until the straws are too short, rip out all but the upper row of stitching, soak in hot soapsuds, trim the bottom even, and, after pressing the straws into shape, dry thoroughly. The broom will last quite a while longer.

USEFUL AND ORNAMENTAL.
